Great Wars Bring Changes. Criticizing the President. Some of the Sermons. Magic Words, Gold, Treasure.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

AFTER A GREAT war, important changes occur in government, and "social systems."

116 British bankers and manufacturers implore Great Britain to stick to and maintain free trade, and not be stampeded into protection and retaliation.

Another group of bankers had urged "free trade within the empire, protection against outside competition."

DR. BUTLER of Columbia University, worrying about Russian experiments in government, which shows that he is an intelligent conservatist, says this country should show "tolerance for Russia's colossal experiment."

Russia will go ahead, whether we are tolerant or intolerant.

A NEW SOCIAL concept is needed to meet the challenge and menace of Russia, says Dr. Butler, declaring:

"Humanity must now reconsider fundamental social justice."

If Russia has forced that conclusion on the world she has done a great deal.

To change our ideas of government sufficiently to meet the "Soviet challenge" would require a complete change.

Stalin, and those that govern Russia with him, seek to give everything possible to those who do the work.

Here, as everybody knows, the men in power give those that do the work as much as will keep them working. The real effort of those that govern is to increase their own gigantic fortunes and thus increase their power.

THERE IS AN element against Russia's "colossal experiment" that Dr. Butler for the moment ignores, and that is human selfishness.

Revolutionists begin by working for the masses, and end by accumulating wealth and power for themselves.

REPUBLICANS are already predicting loss of seats in the House and Senate. The vote will show what voters think about the prosperity slump.

Father J. A. Ryan, of Catholic University, does not hold President Hoover accountable for the stock market collapse, or the financial depression, but he does say in the "Commonweal" that President Hoover is sinking in public esteem.

He finds it necessary to criticize President Hoover for things done, and things left undone, and finds that the President lacks superior qualities attributed to him before election.

President Hoover perhaps knows that this attack is part of a program that will increase in intensity from now until 1932.

IT IS AN INTERESTING duty, and worth while to read as many sermons as possible on Monday, having listened to at least one on Sunday.

In one Sunday's preaching these suggestions are offered:

To make profit your ideal is perilous.

Millions out of work prove that our social plan is a failure. The Golden Rule would remedy the trouble.

Labor should be happier—"the song has been taken from the workers' lips."

The worker is getting more money now than he ever did. Perhaps it is his automobile installment that takes the song from his lips.

The "spiritual racketeer" with "only contempt for the Bible" worries one clergyman.

Another suggests that society be rebuilt on "plans and specifications of Jesus the carpenter."

A clergyman from Australia, the Rev. Dr. Morris, says the "life of the spirit" would give us everything we need.

GOLD AND TREASURE, the words that excite nearly all men.

Italian divers clad in iron, going down 400 feet to the bottom of the Atlantic, and up again as rapidly as swift elevators in our skyscrapers, have discovered the British treasure ship Egypt, with $5,000,000 of gold and silver in her hull, lying on the gray sand on the ocean's floor.

No difficulty in persuading Italian divers to go 400 feet down. They would go to the earth's center if Mussolini ordered it, and they could get there.

A SMALL EARTHQUAKE is felt in Tennessee, buildings rocked in Harriman and Rockwood, no harm done. And Eastern newspapers treat it as a small earthquake.

If that little quake had occurred on the Pacific Coast, eastern newspapers would have made it conspicuous and serious, not through meanness, but because of foolishness.

CHICAGO HAS A new racket. Three hundred toy golf courses are informed that they "must come across" or be made unsafe for ambitious golfers.

That was tried in New York, but Police Commissioner Mulrooney found a way to discourage the idea.

Civic bodies in Chicago united "to put a stop to the Capone-Baker racketeer control, which takes $300,000 a week out of Chicago business men." That is only one small item in Chicago's crime budget, and it amounts to $13,600,000 a year. The wonder is what the racketeers do with all their money.

THIS COUNTRY is still prosperous although worried. From one city, New York, 2,000,000 people were able to go away for the Labor Day week-end. In one day 44,000 automobiles went through the tunnel under the Hudson River, paying $44,000 for the round trip.

Nye Calls McCormick Detectives

NYE SUBPENAES RUTH'S HIRED TRAILERS

Senator Summons Woman's Sleuths to Find Motive For 'Shadowing' Him

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The Senate Campaign Funds Committee summoned before it today the officers and operatives of a Chicago detective agency employed to "shadow" its chairman, Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota.

Senator Nye announced:

"This is the answer to Ruth Hanna McCormick's question: 'What is Senator Nye going to do about it?'"

The Illinois congresswoman had issued a statement acknowledging that she retained private detectives to inquire into the "methods and affiliations" of the committee chairman.

SUBPENAES NINE

Senator Nye issued subpenaes for nine men and a woman, nine of them representing the Dannenberg Detective Agency here and the other witness being cashier of the Harris Trust and Saving's Bank, supposedly the agency through which payment was made to the detective bureau.

Chairman Nye and Senator Porter H. Dale, of Vermont, went into session at the federal building at 10 a. m., announced that an inquiry into the "shadowing" of Senator Nye was their business and awaited the appearance of the witnesses called.

Only two witnesses were reached by subpoena servers during the morning.

'MONKEY' BUSINESS

During the course of the hearing, Senator Dale said the rumors of under-cover spying had gone so far that the detectives themselves suspected they were being watched. He declared:

"In my opinion, all kinds of monkey business in Chicago has been charged against this committee and a great many rumors put out about activities it is alleged to have been engaged in. Mrs. McCormick says her office has been ransacked and her

OURSLER QUITS STEEL POST

John S. Oursler today resigned as vice president of the Carnegie Steel Company, effective October 1. Ill health was given as the cause of his resignation.

Oursler's resignation is the second in the Carnegie Steel official family within a week, President William G. Clyde having resigned last week, giving ill health as the cause of his retirement.

As the successor to J. Lamont Hughes, who previously had been elected a vice president of the United States Steel Corporation, Oursler had been vice president two and a half years. Previously he had been general superintendent of the Homestead Steel Works.

Hearst Treaty Expose Draws Resentment Of France

International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The Paris newspapers today announced that William Randolph Hearst had left Paris yesterday for London as the result of a foreign office request that he leave French soil.

LONDON, Sept. 2.

William Randolph Hearst issued the following statement here today:

I have no complaint to make. The officials were extremely polite. They said I was an enemy of France and a danger in their midst. They made me feel quite important.

They said I could stay in France a little while longer if I desired, that they would take a chance on nothing disastrous happening to the republic.

But I told them that I did not want to take the responsibility of endangering the great French nation; that America had saved it once during the war, and I would save it again by leaving.

Furthermore, I was like the man who was told that he was going blind, and who said he did not mind, as he had seen everything anyhow.

Similarly, I had seen everything in France, including some very interesting governmental performances.

Then I asked Mr. Tardieu's emissary to express to Mr. Tardieu my immense admiration at his amazing alertness in protecting France from the peril of invasion, and we parted with quite elaborate politeness.

It was a little bit foolish, but extremely French.

The reason for the strained relations—to use a proper diplomatic term—was the publication of the secret Anglo-French treaty two years ago by the Hearst newspapers, which upset some international "applecarts," but informed the American people; and of course that being the reason, the French government was entirely right in levelling its attack at me, and quite wrong in its action towards Mr. Horan, who was only my agent.

I think, however, that the general attitude of the Hearst press in opposing the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, or any protective pacts to involve our country in the quarrels of European powers, is mainly responsible.

Also, there might have been some slight irritation at the occasional intimations in our papers that France, now being the richest nation in the world, might use some of the German indemnity to pay her honest debts to America, especially because if it had not been for America she would now be paying indemnity instead of receiving it.

If being a competent journalist and a loyal American makes a man persona non grata in France, I think I can endure the situation without loss of sleep.

In fact, the whole affair reminds me of the story of the rather effeminate young man who went to call on his best girl and found her in the arms of another young fellow.

The effeminate youth went into the hall, took up his successful rival's umbrella, broke it and said: "Now, I hope it rains!"

You see, for the French national policy of "revenge" to be completely successful, we will have to have rain.

TOWING GARAGE ADMITS HIRING CRIMINALS

Proprietor Begs New Chance; Clark Ponders Plea in Lone Auto Theft Inquiry

Thieves and criminals have been employed in his garage, it was admitted today by Joseph Calic, proprietor of the Center Garage, 72 Roberts street, which enjoys police towing privileges, according to Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

Calic made the admission. Director Clark said, in the latter's office where the concessionair had been summoned in connection with an investigation of garages which tow and house cars impounded by police.

The investigation is the result of complaints that accessories were being stolen from cars after they had been stored there on police orders. Two employes of the Center Garage were held for court recently following testimony that they had stolen a wheel and tires from a truck towed to the place.

ASKS NEW CHANCE

Following his statement to the director, Calic asked for another chance, and promised to bond his employes in the future. Clark reserved his decision, and announced he would pass final judgment after conferring with automobile detectives.

Clark's investigation apparently began and terminated with the questioning of Calic, since he announced today that no other heads of police towing garages would be ordered into his office. He said he had gone carefully over the records and had found no evidence of complaints concerning other garages.

PROMISED REVOCATION

Clark, on a previous occasion, had announced that he would revoke the towing license of the Center Garage if he found the charges substantiated.

Following Clark's announcement that an investigation would be launched, C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, announced he would seek state legislation to stamp out petty thievery incident to such towing.

7 MURDERS TOP CRIME WAVE

Robbery and murder ran rampant in Pittsburgh during the month of August, or, to put it in the jargon of detectives:

"The thieves have burned up the city."

An examination of the official records in the Bureau of Detectives reveals that the number of robberies have increased 23 per cent over the preceding month, while seven murders during the month boosted the percentage more than 200 per cent.

WORST MONTH

The city sleuths say that never before has the bureau experienced a similar month. The number of robbery cases investigated was 164. Seven cases of murder dur-

World Pays Homage as Dead Explorers Are Returned After 33 Years' Absence

International News Service.

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 2.—Salomon Auguste Andree came back to his starting point today, a little fishing village from which he sailed with two companions 33 years ago to trust his fate to a swinging balloon in the hope of reaching the top of the world.

The venture failed, but in death the adventurers remained triumphant. World honors awaited the tiny whaler Bratvaag as it sailed into the harbor today, bearing at least that part of the Polar heroes which 33 winters of ice and snow failed to wear away.

While the pious villagers of Tromsoe stood on the pier with bared heads, the black box containing the remains of Andree was carried ashore by the crew of the Bratvaag.

Military heels clicked and rifles were held at salute as the box was carefully placed upon a hearse and taken to the city hospital.

BODIES TAKEN ASHORE

Dr. Gunnar Horn, leader of an Arctic expedition which stumbled upon the remains of the Andree camp on White Island, carefully supervised removal from the vessel of the remains of the explorers—two unrecognizable skeletons and a pile of bones. He was emphatic in explaining that previous reports to the effect that the bodies

DIEUDONNE COSTE

Capt. Coste, noted French flier, who with Maurice Bellonte is nearing New York, goal of their non-stop flight from France over the Atlantic Ocean.

LINDY TO GREET COSTE PLANE

CURTISS AIRPORT, Valley Stream, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the man who flew east across the Atlantic, was expected to be on hand to greet Dieudonne Coste, blazing a new westward aerial path.

Col. Lindbergh has been invited to be present when the French trans-Atlantic plane reaches here late this afternoon.

TETERBORO AIRPORT, N. J., Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh landed here at 11:21 today, after spending the night at Bellefonte, Pa., when they were forced down in the fog.

The Lindberghs were driven off their course by fog yesterday en route from Detroit to New York.

OCEAN PLANE WINGS DOWN ATLANTIC COAST

Due to Land This Evening; Metropolis Prepares Gala Welcome for Frenchmen

Associated Press.

Along the cloudpath of Canada's maritime provinces and toward the coast line of New England, two French fliers in the "?" winged today over the last thousand miles of a flight from Paris to New York.

An optimistic broadcast direct from them was picked up by a government radio station at 11:30, Pittsburgh time, today. It said:

"Passing over Halifax; expect to arrive in New York at 5 p. m., Pittsburgh time."

At 10:30 o'clock this morning (Pittsburgh time) Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte made history when their ship soared over Canso, Nova Scotia, on the Canadian mainland, achieving the first flight from the continent of Europe to the continent of North America.

An hour later they were passing the entrance to Halifax Harbor, more than a hundred miles nearer New York, and were headed swiftly for their goal.

SALUTE THEIR OWN FIRST

In reversing the trail which Charles A. Lindbergh followed from New York to Le Bourget Field, outside Paris, Coste and his comrade made one patriotic digression—they edged around the southern tip of Newfoundland and came first over North American territory above an insular possession of their native France—the isle of St. Pierre.

That was at 7 o'clock Pittsburgh time, this morning. Their subsequent progress along the coast indicated that they would come to earth at Curtiss-Wright Field, on Long Island, near New York, before sunset this evening.

NEW YORK READY

With a spontaneity of enthusiasm, New York prepared to give Coste and Bellonte a hearty welcome.

The word on the city streets was:

"Where are the fliers now?"

Before midday a throng was gathering at the airport to wait for them, with a city welcoming committee in the van.

If the fliers reach New York by 7 o'clock tonight, Pittsburgh time,

PARISIANS WILD OVER COSTE

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Paris abandoned practically all forms of work early this evening to celebrate when broadcasters announced that Capt. Dieudonne Coste and his flying mate, Maurice Bellonte, French air aces, were speeding down the coast of Nova Scotia on the last lap of their flight across the Atlantic Ocean to New York. Cheer after cheer went up from street crowds as Coste's victory over the sea was reported hour by hour.

The city began its preparations for a great celebration in honor of France's beloved ace and his comrade.

Workers officially got through with their day's tasks at six o'clock, but long before that hour the Place de la Concorde had heard the glad news, and throngs were eagerly scanning the bulletins and listening to thousands of loud speakers.

Reports of the flight were virtually the only news published on front pages of Paris newspapers, which presented the appearance of almost solid masses of headlines.

The cheering in the streets rose to a mighty roar when it was announced by a broadcaster that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh would be on hand in New York to welcome the Frenchmen to America. The throngs shouted:

"Vive Lindbergh! Vive Coste!"

Coolidge Urges School Pupils to Faithful Study

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 2.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

"Another school year is opening." Over 27,000,000 scholars will be enrolled. To this great throng will be added more than 800,000 college students. The teaching force reaches toward a million. Education is a great business enterprise requiring an expenditure of well over $2,000,000,000 each year. This will soon be felt in many avenues of trade.

Calvin Coolidge

While it is easy to waste money on education it is the only thing which we cannot afford to curtail. The true ideal would seem to be a system that supplies those in the lower grades with the power to think.

Under the modern tendency, education covers many subjects. This method subjects the student to the danger of being only superficial and not having a thorough knowledge of any subject.

The school is not the end but only the beginning of an education. Yet its place cannot be filled in any other way. The best thing the millions of our youth can do to assure their future success is to work faithfully at their studies. That opportunity for improvement and discipline will never return.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

GIRL RED HELD IN JAIL

Evelyn Roth, 19, of 244 Dinwiddie street, and three of her companions, arrested in an alleged Communist rally at the National Tube Company in McKeesport yesterday, were committed to the county jail today upon failure to pay their fines.

Arraigned before Acting Police Magistrate R. C. Calhoun, of McKeesport, the girl and her companions refused to answer charges police made against them. They were accused of violating a city ordinance and resisting arrest.

The Roth girl was given $50 fine or 60 days to jail; Joseph Chorader, 21, of 805 James street, $50 or 60 days to jail; Steve Myegie, 32, of 7105 Craign street, $15 or 10 days to jail, and Nick Economos, 32, New York, $10 or 10 days to jail.

A boy, Gust Mikades, 16, of McKeesport, was fined $10, which he paid.

Need for Honesty Stressed At Dry Agents' School

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, opened his chool for agents here today with the exhortation that they be intellectually as well as morally honest.

To increase their morale, he stressed the importance of being well dressed, declaring:

"Look spruce and tidy, particularly in court, for its reaction on the mind. Soap and water, razors and shoe polish are within the reach of all."

Getting the commercial violator was given by Woodcock as the principal objective of enforcement. He told the agents:

"If we reach that goal without too manw casualties, we may have further objectives."

The course has been divided into two sections, one technical and the other moral. Under the first will come knowledge of law and procedure, also the technique of investigating violations.

Woodcock disclosed that he had asked the Civil Service Commission to incorporate, in the next examination papers, his theory concerning the need by agents for intensive observation.

The class, comprised of two agents from each of the 12 administrative districts and 10 field inspectors, will return to their posts after the 30-day course and instruct their fellow agents.

3 WOMEN, 2 MEN JURORS ACCEPTED IN DONOHOE CASE

60 OF PANEL TO TRY BELL EXAMINED

Court May Order Night Sessions at Uniontown to Speed Taking Testimony

By AL GOUGH.
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 2.—Five jurors, two men and three women, had been selected in the trial of Anthony W. Bell, former county detective and Masontown police chief, in the murder of Constable John F. Donohoe at the conclusion of this morning's session. More than 60 persons have been examined as tentative jurors in the case which began yesterday and which is expected to go into its third or fourth day before the jury is completed.

Mrs. Mary Rugg, wife of a Dunbar Township schoolmaster, was the third woman to be selected on the jury which will hear the evidence against the former police officer, jointly accused in the slaying with Glenn Allum, reputed rum racketeer. Mrs. Rugg, a native of Finleyville, Washington County, is the mother of six children. The other women jurors are Mrs. Martha Goodman, wife of a Lemont miner, and Mrs. Mary Costello, clerk in the Lemont Company store. Mrs. Goodman is the mother of 10 children.

TWO MEN ACCEPTED

The two male members of the jury are: Owen Pletcher, Tyrone Township farmer, and Orville Stacy, of Luzerne Township, a blacksmith.

Pletcher was the first juror accepted. Stacy was the fifty-ninth person called in the special panel of 250 venirmen summoned for duty the first week of September court. Mrs. Rugg was the sixtieth.

Most of those examined expressed themselves as having fixed opinions or having conscientious scruples against capital punishment.

Strong indication of the nature of the testimony expected to be offered against Bell came out in the examination of tentative jurors who declared they could not be satisfied with circumstantial evidence. A sharp exchange on this matter between Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones and Barton J. Emsley, of Connellsville, was interrupted by Judge Hudson, who inquired whether the juror could not govern his opinio in such matters by the court's ruling. Emsley replied:

"I could not find a man guilty of first degree murder and fix the penalty at death if the evidence were purely circumstantial."

He was challenged for cause and excused.

NIGHT SESSIONS LIKELY

It is considered likely that Judge Hudson might order night sessions of court should there be any further serious delay in the selection of a jury or the evidence of the commonwealth drag out into any length.

President Judge Thomas H. Hudson is on the bench. Assistant District Attorney A. E. Jones, named special prosecutor during the investigation of the Donohoe murder, which was followed by the suicide of District Attorney Nicholas W. Rosenberg, is prosecuting.

At the commonwealth table also are District Attorney J. B. Adams and another assistant, William J. Crow.

Bell is represented by three Fayette County attorneys, H. S. Dumbauld is chief counsel; his associates are Wade K. Newell and Jacob Horewitz.

Bell, displaying keen interest in the selection of a jury, sits at the counsel table with his wife, Florence, conferring from time to time with his attorneys.

SUSPECT UNWORRIED

Young in appearance, albeit old in experience, as former police chief of Masontown for two separate terms and twice county detective of Fayette County, the prisoner looks more like the "young man about town" rather than an accused slayer. He is not visibly worried. His attorneys express confidence in their defense and scoff at accusations as "purely circumstantial."

Bell is the first of two men indicted in the Donohoe murder to be brought to trial. The second man, Glenn Allum, is serving a term in the Allegheny County workhouse on a liquor charge. Several witnesses in the Donohoe murder case also are prisoners in Allegheny County workhouse.

IRIGOYEN SICK, FEARS GROW IN ARGENTINA

President's Rule Feared Near End; Troops Massed As Leaders Discuss Crisis

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 2. (AP.)—Illness of President Hipolito Yrigoyen today caused some uneasiness in government circles.

The President did not go to his offices yesterday. He was said to have suffered an attack of influenza Sunday night, and to have been confined to his bed. His temperature was 101.3.

There were rumors that he had been removed from his residence, where apparently police and military vigilance was somewhat relaxed.

Meanwhile rumors of impeding political trouble will not be stilled. The Buenos Aires morning papers published innumerable reports of disquieting character concerning the extraordinary activity of officials all night.

La Nancion said the government was preparing to disembark the forces of the naval vessels in the harbor and that four motor trucks were bringing the Eighth Cavalry from Campo De Mayo to the capital.

INSPECT DEFENSES

The minister of marine early today visited the destroyer Parana. The minister of war was reported to be on a tour of the various capital garrisons at the same time. The minister of interior had a conference with Police Chief Graneros. Police headquarters was surrounded by a strong force of policemen.

The newspaper Critica said that it had been learned upon the most reliable authority that a reunion held yesterday in the building of the official mouthpiece, La Epoca, at which several members of the cabinet and numerous Yrigoyen senators and deputies were present, the gravity of the political situation was the topic of discussion.

Many of those present suggested that resignation of President Yrigoyen or his absence for some period was advisable in the face of the precarious situation of the country. This would allow Vice President Enrique Martinez to assume the presidency. Critica said that this opinion was shared by nearly all present.

PERU'S TRIAL BOARD

LIMA, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The military junta headed by President Sanchos Cerro today decreed an organization to be known as the "National Sanction Tribunal," which will act as a trial court for all "offenders" under the administration of the deposed president, Augusto B. Leguia.

The tribunal will be composed of the president and four justices, and will have the services of a special prosecutor. Sentences imposed will be final, and it will be impossible to appeal them to any other court. Popular accusations will be admitted, but these must be duly proven. The body will carry on its work during the coming eight months, although its life may be extended indefinitely.

Leguia, who just a week ago resigned as president of Peru, today was placed in an island prison, where, in the 11 years of his dictatorship he jailed hundreds of political foes. The island is San Lorenzo, in Callao harbor.

INDIANS STORM FORT

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The newspaper La Razon, quoting official sources, says a Bolivian attack on the Paraguayan Fort Arce was carried out by a hundred Indians and the small garrison, composed of five soldiers and a corporal, withdrew rather than offer resistance against the primitively armed Indians.

An official investigation developed that no Bolivian troops were involved and the incident was considered entirely due to the Indian warriors.

LAYS FALSE CHARGES TO RASKOB

Tilson Claims 28 Instances In Which Democrat Chief 'Misrepresented' Hoover

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican House leader and chairman of the Republican congressional committee, in a statement today listed 28 instances in which he accused John J. Raskob of responsibility for misrepresenting President Hoover.

The statement was in reply to Raskob's demand as chairman of the Democratic National Committee that Republicans cite instances to support their charge that the Democratic committee's publicity bureau had maligned the President.

TILSON STATEMENT

Tilson's statement said:

"Mr. John J. Raskob's personally underwritten propagandist, Mr. Michelson, has asked publicly for a bill of particulars of the misrepresentation by his agency.

"A perusal of only part of the mimeographed statements, which have been issued from Mr. Raskob's subsidized bureau, supports the charge that the business of the bureau is misrepresentation.

"In proof of this fact I instance the dates of a few of the many such statements.

"September 15, 1929—Misrepresents the President as responsible for 'lobbyists that swarm Washington.'

ELECTION CORRUPTION

"December 18, 1929—Insinuates that the President looks with favor upon the 'corruption of the election of Senators.'

"December 23, 1929.—States that if Al Smith were in the White House and his name had appeared in the Latkin-Shattuck (sugar lobby) correspondence, impeachment proceedings would have been discussed before now.

"Insinuates that the President was venally connected with the sugar lobby.

"October 23, 1929—Misrepresents the President as desiring to abolish the bi-partisan character of the tariff commission."

FLORIDA PLOT CHARGE FAILS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Justice of the Peace J. C. Madison today dismissed charges of conspiring to cause the assassination of Gov. Doyle E. Carlton, which had been preferred against Fred O. Eberhardt, Tallahassee publisher, and Frank Ralls and Henry Halsema, both of Jacksonville, on the ground of insufficient evidence.

In ordering the dismissals, the justice declared the state had failed to make a case sufficiently strong to justify binding the men over to Criminal Court.

County Solicitor L. D. Howell objected to the dismissal and asked Justice Madison if he did not think the testimony of three of the state's principal witnesses, Clem Dowling, Vincent C. Giblin and August Krieger, "showed probable grounds that a conspiracy existed."

Judge Madison replied that his was a court of probable cause and not a trial court, that while there may have been just apprehension at the time the story of the alleged conspiracy was told, he did not believe the case was sufficiently strong to warrant holding the defendants for trial.

He then explained that under the Florida statutes the conspiracy charge was only a misdemeanor. He said he had been "extremely lenient" in permitting considerable testimony to be introduced at the hearing which he felt was irrelevant.

18 FACE TRIAL FOR RIOT FIRE

CHICKASHA, Okla., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Eighteen of the 22 white defendantts charged with conspiracy to destroy government property as the outgrowth of rioting in which Henry Argo, Negro, was fatally wounded last May, were bound over yesterday for trial in Federal Court.

The charges arose from the burning of an Army truck used by National Guardsmen in an attempt to disperse a mob around the Grady County Jail here which was bent on lynching the Negro.

Among those held for trial was G. W. Skinner, husband of the woman Argo was accused of attacking. Skinner stabbed Argo as the Negro lay dying from a wound inflicted by a bullet fired by one of the mob as the rioters struggled to take the prisoner from his cell.

Weather Conditions

There is considerable cloudiness over the Ohio Valley States and the Lake region, and eastward to the coast, due to a disturbance centered over the Lakes and extending southwestward over the Central Valleys. Rain occurred in Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, the Lake region, Northern Indiana, Northern Illinois and Wisconsin. The rains were mostly light, but generous in some localities. High barometer over the West is attended by fair weather and moderately cool.

Flying Weather

The skies are overcast over the Ohio Valley states, the Lake region and eastward to the Coast, and it is raining in Northern Indiana and Illinois. This condition is due to a disturbance centered north of the Lakes, and extending southwestward over the Central Valleys. The ceiling this morning is unlimited from the mountains of Pennsylvania eastward, while west of the mountains it ranges from 2,000 to 10,000 feet. Visibility ranges from two to eight miles. The wind is light from the southwest. Thunderstorm conditions will prevail over this entire section this afternoon and tonight, followed by fair weather Wednesday.

MEXICO-SOVIET BREAK HIT REDS

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 2.—(Universal.)—The breaking of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia by Mexico was heralded by President Pascual Ortiz Rubio yesterday as a definite checking of the spread of Communist subversive propaganda throughout all the Americas.

The President made this declaration in his message convening the twenty-fourth Congress of the Mexican union last night.

U. S. Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, accompanied by the staff of the American Embassy, attended the session.

President Ortiz Rubio stressed the good relations existing between the Mexican government and the United States.

Soviet Russia, he said, had been using Mexico as the base of operations against the governments of all North and South American countries. Despite a warning not to persist in this course, President Ortiz Rubio informed the congress, the Soviet minister continued in Communist work until ordered to leave the country.

Be Prompt, Fosdick Warns Congregation

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside church, which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., attends, gives notice in a letter to members of the congregation that it might have a wholesome effect for the church to say that people who do not care enough for worship to come on time may not come at all.

U. S. Vice Consul Dies Following Fall

CAPRI, Italy, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—John Randolph Robinson, 26, of New York, United States vice consul at Naples, died this morning from the effects of a fall from a window of the Hotel Quisisana, on the Island of Capri. He fell several stories onto a cement pavement.

Robinson was the son of a prominent attorney living in Paris. He was born in Paris and educated in French, Swiss and English schools, later graduating from Harvard in 1927.

PINCHOT PLANS LABOR STUDY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—With the campaign for the November general election getting underway following the summer holiday season, Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for Governor, proposes to organize a committee of citizens soon to investigate unemployment in Pennsylvania and submit recommendations by January 1.

The next Governor will be inaugurated late in January.

Mr. Pinchot, in an address at a Labor Day celebration at Altoona, also reiterated several pledges of the platform on which he won the nomination in the May primary, including a promise that, if elected, he would eliminate the coal and iron police force, which is privately controlled, by July 1 next year.

While the nominee is continuing his primary platform for the November election, with the possibility that the Republican state committee will attempt to superimpose a platform of its own drafting, leaders of the Philadelphia Republican organization will confer soon to decide whether they will formally indorse Pinchot. Most of the "war board" members have returned from vacations.

Gas Station Yields $50 Haul to Thugs

The attendant of the American Gasoline Company's service station at Beech and Irwin avenues, North Side, was held up early today by two armed highwaymen, who escaped with $50.

The attendant, B. U. Nolan, was forced to stand in the station office while the thieves rifled the till. They threatened to shoot him if he sounded an alarm before they were out of sight. They escaped in an automobile.

NYE SUBPENAES DETECTIVES

papers pawed over. I think this idea has goe so far that these detectives believe they are being spied upon. The committee has instructed employes not to engage in such activities."

The witnesses heard in the forenoon sesion were Edward W. Alz, private detective formerly with the Dennenberg agency, and Mrs. Alice Klober, stenographer substituting for Rose Mauer, the regular typist for the Dannenbergs.

ADMITS SHADOWING

Mrs. McCormick, whose Republican senatorial primary campaign expenses were recently investigated by Senator Nye, was self-revealed today as the one who retained private detectives to inquire into what she termed Nye's "methods and affiliations."

The "shadowing" of Senator Nye, the Republican senatorial candidate said in a statement issued last night at her Byron (Ill.) estate, was an aftermath of the campaign funds inquiry.

Mrs. McCormick pointedly answered press dispatches quoting Senator Nye's "indignation" at being investigated with the terse remark:

"I did it. I am still doing it and the results have already justified my course. What is Senator Nye going to do about it?"

CHARGES PERSECUTION

The nominee said she had cooperated in every way with the Nye committee by submitting a detailed report—"the most complete statement ever submitted to a Senate committee by a candidate." She went on:

"Meanwhile, after the Chicago hearing last July, and while I was assisting the committee in every way possible, what took place?

"Prosecution became persecution. My offices were broken into and my personal and business correspondence files were rifled. Spies invaded my living headquarters. My residence and office telephone wires were tapped and they are still under supervision.

"I'm making my own investigation of the Nye investigation. I have acted in self-defense. If Senator Nye is indignant, so am I—a congressman-at-large."

ADMITTED HIGH COSTS

In the funds quiz Mrs. McCormick admitted a personal expenditure of $250,000. An additional $67,000 was expended, the testimony showed, by others in her behalf.

ing the month are on the official dockets.

The robberies occurred in every district in the city, with the North Side and East Liberty districts reporting the greatest numbers. Of the 164 cases reported, 48 were actual holdups, 29 were "pick pocket" cases, 22 were house and business robberies, 12 were of the purse snatching variety, and three were confidence robberies.

The figures do not include automobile thefts. Records show that 420 automobiles were stolen during August, or an increase of 105 over July. A vast majority of these cars have been returned to their owners, since, detectives explain, most of the thefts are committed for joy-ride purposes. Most of the machines were stolen from the North Side district, the downtown running a close second.

PURSE-SNATCHING

The 12 cases of purse-snatching were reported by women in the downtown district.

The murder record is unusually high for this city, according to Homicide Lieut. Frank Ferris. The average number of murders a month in this city is three, a figure attained during the month of July. Lieut. Ferris said he could not account for the marked increase.

To combat the crime wave, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh has ordered his entire force of police and detectives to reduce the figures during September. He has inaugurated a drive against street loiterers and other undesirables. He is also directing special attention to railroad stations.

The total dividend declaration for the quarter will amount to $650,000.

Labor Day Brings City Final Fling at Summer Joys

Pittsburghers joined with the rest of the nation yesterday in a final gesture, a farewell to summertime joys as thousands took advantage of the three-day holiday and celebrated Labor Day at seashore, mountain resort or touring.

Approximately 50,000 residents of McKeesport attended a community outing at Olympia Park yesterday staged under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. A program of sports and dancing during the day and at night a baby show and beauty contest were the features.

Wilkins township also staged a community outing, the affair being held at Lewin's Grove. Congressman Clyde Kelly was the speaker of the day. Children were the guests of the township civic clubs.

Mr. Lebanon took advantage of the holiday to throw open for the first time the new $80,000 municipal swimming pool. Nearly 1,000 persons used the pool during the day, a check-up showed.

Other celebrations were held in Dormont, Allison Park, Oakdale and in the North boroughs.

The local aviation fields drew large crowds also and many Pittsburghers enjoyed trips over the city and their home communities. Pilots at all fields reported a large increase in the number of passengers.

BALLOONS DRIFT OVER NEW YORK STATE IN TROPHY RACE

REITERATES DENIAL OF 'TREASON'

Charges of Trying to Sell Military Secrets Dropped When Brother Intercedes

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Back in her native land after an airplane flight from Cuba, where she was accused of treason, Mrs. Martha Lane Marlote, widow of a Cuban army officer, today was on the way to visit her father in Longmeadow, Mass.

She denied that she had entered into negotiations with agents of Colombia and the United States, to sell a secret code of the Cuban Air Corps, after her husband was killed when his plane fell July 1.

Mrs. Marlote, who went on a hunger strike while in jail, was released yesterday after an investigation, through the intercession of her brother, Louis R. Lane, of Vedado, Cuba.

ACCUSES GOVERNMENT

Allegations that she was held by the Cuban authorities on false charges of high treason in order to curtail her pension from that government were made here by Mrs. Marlote. She was alleged by the Cuban government to have negotiated with secret agents of the United States and Colombia, to sell a key to the Cuban Army Air Corps code.

She left Miami last night by train for New York and Longmeadow, Mass. She said she was 19 years old and the mother of two children.

Lane declared the release papers stated there was insufficient proof to hold his sister after the formal inquiry.

HAD REFUSED FOOD

He added that she was in a nervous collapse when released from the prison, having refused to take food while confined there, and said she probably never would return to Cuba and would try to forget the whole thing. She contemplates no action against the Cuban government for her arrest, he said.

Mrs. Marlote was taken into custody by officers on the general staff of the Cuban army after she had booked passage on the steamship Morro Castle, which sailed Saturday for New York.

She had planned to accompany her mother, Mrs. Emma Lane, and her two children, Roger, Jr., and Peggy Marlote. She told newspapermen she was mystified by the charges and knew nothing of any secret keys.

HEFLIN STARTS CAMPAIGN

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Senator J. Thomas Heflin formally started his independent campaign for re-election today with his emblem a Liberty Bell bearing the inscriptions, "White control" and "Down with the 27."

The second slogan referred to 27 members of the state Democratic executive committee who voted for a ruling barring from the primary candidates who opposed Alfred E. Smith, the 1928 party presidential nominee. That action excluded Heflin as well as Hugh A. Locke and Dempsey Powell, independent aspirants for governor and lieutenant governor, respectively.

Formalities incident to placing the independent ticket in the field were completed here yesterday at a convention.

At a meeting of the Democratic executive committee last week, John H. Bankhead, nominnated for Heflin's seat, said "the Democrats of Alabama accept the challenge of the Ku Klux Klan," and charged that klan leaders were aligned with the independents.

In the independent convention, J. B. Wadsworth, permanent chairman, said:

"We are not a third party. We are the dry wing of the Democratic party."

Man Held in Slaying Of Wife's Brother

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—South Philadelphia's Italian colony was the scene of another fatal shooting today when Thomas Di Guglielmo, 32, was killed as he sat talking with Christian Leonetti, his brother-in-law, in the kitchen of the latter's home.

Leonetti, 33, told police Guglielmo was killed by bandits in an attempted holdup when he refused to comply with their demands. He is under arrest on suspicion of murder and his wife is in custody as a material witness.

Five Women Killed As Train Hits Auto

TURNER, Ore., Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Five adult members of one family were killed here today when the Southern Pacific's West Coast Limited struck and demolished a car at the Battle Creek crossing just inside the city limits.

The dead are Mrs. D. G. Briggs, Miss Inez Earnest, Mrs. A. D. Robertson, Miss Irene Robertson, all of Turner, and Mrs. Herbert Briggs, of Portland.

Shattered Train Wrecked by Stones on Track

WRECKAGE OF THE TEXAS SPECIAL AFTER ENGINE AND THREE CARS LEAPED RAILS TEN MILES OUT OF ST. LOUIS Someone who placed stones on the rails, officials charge, and are disputed, wrecked this train at Osage Hills, Mo., instantly killing six and injuring many others. Rescue workers for many hours combed the wreckage in a search for further victims.

WRECK INQUEST DATE SET

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—President J. M. Kurn, of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad, returning today from his vacation, began an investigation of the wreck of the "Texas Special" Sunday night in which six persons were killed and 11 injured.

Kurn was unwilling to comment on the cause of the wreck before he had discussed the accident with other executives who agree that the locomotive left the rails when it struck a large stone, or stones which they said had been deliberately placed on the track. The wreck happened at Osage Hills, 15 miles west of St. Louis.

Coroner O'Connell, of St. Louis County, has scheduled an inquest in the six deaths for tomorrow at Kirkwood. Railroad officials have been asked to appear with the fragments of stone and powdered rock which were found on the track at the point where the locomotive left the rails.

Chief of Police Schroeder, of Kirkwood, asserted yesterday he found no evidence of vandalism on the right-of-way. Frisco executives, however, said they were convinced the wreck was the result of a deliberately malicious act, or a childish prank.

Buy British Goods, Canadians Advised

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A reciprocal trade policy between Great Britain and Canada was urged by Lord Melchett, member of the House of Lords and widely known industrialist, in an address last night before an influential group of Canadian businessmen at York Club.

If Canada is to sell her wheat to Britain she must be prepared to buy British goods in return, the speaker declared. The British Empire, he added, was potentially the greatest economic unit in history, but strength was being wasted through the individualistic trade policies of its dominions.

Old Fire Horses Win Plaudits In Parade

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Three old gray horses came out of retirement to prance over Pennsylvania avenue and their progress was marked by a cheering from the thousands of spectators who watched the firemen's Labor Day parade.

The horses were Barney, Gene and Tom, last of a long line of steeds which made many a carriage—and automobile too—pull over to the capital curbs as they galloped by.

The three were retired six years ago when Washington's fire fighting equipment was entirely motorized. They were sent out to pastures near Blue Plains, Va., to graze their life away, but they are brought back annually to march on Labor Day. As usual their driver spent a good bit of his time in tugging at the reins and yelling: "Whoa!"

JOSEPH JAFFE HURT AT FAIR

Joseph Jaffe, 42, brother of George Jaffe, Pittsburgh theatrical man, was injured when struck on the head by a beam which fell on him while he was attending races at the Wheeling Fair in Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday. He is in the Wheeling Hospital.

Jaffe, who lives at 432 Atwood street, was standing under the grandstand at the time of the accident. X-ray examinations were to be made today to determine the extent of his injuries. Milton Jaffe, another brother, left Pittsburgh last night for Wheeling.

Another man and woman standing near Jaffe were bruised when struck by the beam.

SEEK TREASURE IN SUNKEN SHIP

BREST, France, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The work of blasting open the hull of the sunken liner Egypt, which went down in 1922 with $8,000,000 in gold on board, began today.

The Italian salvage experts who located the liner off the storm-ridden coast of Britanny say it appears to have suffered little from the long submersion. It lies almost on an even keel at a depth of about 360 feet.

Divers from the tug Artigilo had no difficulty in identifying the liner by means of the dimensions of the hull and by the various instruments, notably the compass. The ship was found off Armen Light, near Douarnenez.

The Italian tugboat Raffio came into the harbor here to take on explosives for blasting the deck of the treasure-laden liner.

Father of 2 Killed By Bomb Indicted

EBENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Percy C. Langham, of Hillside, Indiana County, was indicted by a Cambria County Grand Jury on charges of murder growing out of the death of his two children, who were killed when the Langham home at Emeigh Run was dynamited.

Others indicted included Joe Parse, of Johnstown, charged with complicity in the slaying of Louis Hoffman in Adams Township in July, 1928. Four men already have been convicted of first degree murder in the Hoffman killing.

Detective Shot Dead On Anniversary Eve

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Plans for celebrating the ninth wedding anniversary of Detective John Pickley, of the Hamtramck police force, today were turned into arrangements for his funeral.

Pickley was shot and killed late last night in a gun battle with a thug whom he had interrupted in the act of holding up a theater box office. The murderer escaped.

NEVADA VOTING ON RENO JUDGE

RENO, Nev., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—An attempt by three opponents to replace District Judge George A. Bartlett, who has granted thousands of divorces, vied with the gubernatorial contests as the center of interest in Nevada's primary today.

Judge Bartlett, widely known for his views on divorce, was opposed by B. F. Curler, former district judge here; Walter M. Kennedy and Frank Ingram, Reno attorneys.

The office is non-partisan. The two highest in the primary count will contest at the general election in November.

Fred B. Balzar, incumbent, Mayor E. E. Roberts, of Reno, and Richard H. Cowles, state senator, sought the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Horace A. Agee, prominent rancher, and Charles Richards, former Congressman, were the Democratic candidates.

Congressman S. S. Arentz, Republican, was unopposed for renomination. He will be opposed in the general election by Maurice J. Sullivan, former lieutenant governor, an anti-dry.

Jap-U. S. Fliers Hunt New Starting Field

TOKIO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—After inspecting beaches and plains within a 50-mile radius of Tokio, in search of a suitable place to take off on their projected non-stop flight to Tacoma, Wash., Harold Bromley and Harold Gatty today decided to look elsewhere for a starting field.

The fliers received a week's extension of their permit to use Kasumiguara naval air field. They attempted to take off there recently but failed to get the heavily loaded plane into the air. Ultimately they may be obliged to use the field, starting with a lighter load and making a one-stop attempt.

AIR RACES CLOSE AS DEATH TOLL REACHES 4

Page Martyr to Speed Mark For Classic on Last Day; 60,000 See Fatal Crash

CURTISS-REYNOLDS AIRPORT, Chicago, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The 1930 edition of the national air races became history today with the names of four dead engraved on the records as martyrs to man's fight to master gravity.

Capt. Arthur Page, Jr., of Washington, D. C., noted Marine flier, whose racing ship crashed down on the airport yesterday, died a few hours later. He had been leading in the speed classic of the 10 days of competition—the Thompson trophy race.

More than 60,000 spectators saw Page's plane swing around the home pylon at a speed of 207 miles an hour, wallow crazily for a moment then dive to destruction.

Flying at a speed of 201.91 miles an hour, Charles (Speed) Holman, of Minneapolis, swept on over the 100-mile triangular route to win the race and a prize of $3,000, and to set the fastest pace in the records of national air race closed course events.

HUNT CRASH CAUSE

A determined effort to learn the cause of the crash was under way today. Samples of the flier's blood were taken to learn whether he had been overcome by carbon monoxide during the race.

At the same time Maj. R. W. Schroeder, aviation authority and chairman of the air race competitions, announced that investigations of previous crashes during the meet had given invaluable information to an industry which seeks to advance flying in America.

SEEKS ALTITUDE MARK

Wrapped in fur flying costumes, Capt. Wilfred G. Moore, of Kansas City, went aloft shortly before the Thompson race in an attempt to break the altitude record with one passenger, His companion was Miss Alice Campbell, of Evanston, Ill. Back on earth two hours later, Moore's altimeter indicated he had attained an altitude of more than 28,000 feet, sufficient for a world record if his barograph, yet to be tested, corroborates the altimeter.

Capt. Page

Among other events of the closing day of the races was 50-mile free-for-all dash for women, won by Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, Cal. Mae Haizlip, of St. Louis, was second; Opal Kunz, of New York City, third.

Last night race executives distributed $100,000 to winning pilots in competitions at the airport and in the seven derbies which were flown from points on the rim of the country to Chicago. Scores of trophies also were presented, as the great Labor Day crowd looked on and applauded.

And today, the sky over the scene of the races was filled with aircraft departing in all directions for home hangars—an exodus of what air race executives declared the greatest congregation of pilots and civilian flying machines in the nation's history.

2 State Policemen Injured in Crash

RESCUE VESSEL HAILED AT PORT

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The Matson liner Ventura, bearing 91 of the 317 persons rescued from the liner Tahiti, which foundered in the South Seas two weeks ago, passed through the Golden Gate and went to quarantine amid a tumultuous welcome.

Airplanes escorted the Ventura through the strait and bombarded the decks with flowers. Crissy Field Army planes circled over the ship and dropped more blossoms. At quarantine the Ventura was met by an official committee which boarded the vessel after the usual customs, health and immigration formalities were over.

On behalf of San Francisco, Capt. William R. Meyer, master of the Ventura, was presented with a scroll testifying to his 800-mile dash to the rescue of the Tahiti's passengers and crew.

From quarantine the ship proceeded to her pier where customs and police lines already had been broken by relatives of the rescued Tahiti passengers.

Count Divorced from Peggy Joyce, to Wed

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—An announcement today said Miss Geraldine Fitch, New York newspaper woman, would shortly wed Count Gosta Morner, of Sweden, a former husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

Count Morner, who is 33, came here in 1920 as a member of the consular service but now is engaged in publicity work. He married Miss Joyce in 1923 and they were divorced in Paris in 1924. Miss Fitch is a niece of Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

3 OBSERVED IN CENTRAL SECTION

Other Entries Unreported; Belgian and American Set Gordon Bennett Cup Pace

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Two veterans of international balloon races were setting the pace as the Gordon Bennett trophy seekers veered from their course and found themselves drifting across the state of New York today.

A huge silken bag identified as that of Capt. Ernest de Muyter, of Belgium, dean of the 19th international classic, was reported over Earleville, in central New York, at 7:30 a. m., (Pittsburgh time). It was than approximately 325 miles from the starting point.

Another, believed to be the City of Detroit piloted by Edmund J. Hill, of the American trio of contestants, was seen at Syracuse at 8:30. Hill won the event three years ago.

A third and unidentified balloon passed over Cortland, about 20 miles west of Earleville, at 9:10 a. m. The other three were unreported but presumably were following in the same general direction.

ALTERS ITS COURSE

Later the third balloon changed its course and was sighted over Cincinnatus, southeast of Cortland. A Cortland airport official afterward indentified the craft as the Goodyear VIII, piloted by Ward T. Van Orman, with Alan MacCracken as his aide. It was high over Cincinnatus at 9:30 and headed due west.

Observers of atmospheric conditions believed that the balloonists, instead of proceeding directly eastward across New York, as the latest reports indicated, had a good opportunity of striking crosswinds which would blow them in a more northerly direction and let them circle into Maine.

REPORTS POSITION

"Goodyear VIII passing over Penn Yan at 7 a. m. Progress satisfactory."

The Goodyear VIII won last year's race. Penn Yan is 75 miles nearer the starting point than Earleville, N. Y., where the Belgian entry had been sighted.

Definite knowledge of the balloonists' progress was fragmentary since they faded into the night sky after the start of the race late yesterday, but early reports and a study of atmospheric conditions indicated they would drift in a general northeasterly direction toward the Labrador coast or perhaps to Maine.

Brisk winds from the southwest promised a long race of from 600 to 800 miles that will keep the balloons in the air probably until tomorrow noon. The longest distance traversed from the starting point determines the winner.

Two of the bags were reported at 1:30 a. m., Pittsburgh time, over Erie, Pa., heading out over Lake Erie, but their identity was lost in the darkness. It was considered likely the others were blown out over the lake earlier.

ONE DRIFTING LOW

Previous reports placed the Belgica, piloted by the veteran Capt. Ernest De Muyter; the City of Detroit, with Edmund J. Hill in charge, and the City of Cleveland, in the hands of Roland J. Blair, grouped within a few minutes of each other at Geneva, O., near Lake Erie, at dusk.

Earlier the three others were seen over East Cleveland, 35 miles from the takeoff. They were the Barmen, piloted by Dr. Hugo Kaulen, Jr., of Germany; the Pierre Fishbach, piloted by Albert Boitard, of Paris, and the Goodyear VIII, piloted by Ward T. Van Orman, of Akron, O.

A report that one of the balloons was flying perilously close to the surface of Lake Erie alarmed race headquarters, but a diligent search by coast guardsmen failed of results and confidence was felt that all were safe. All carried inflated rubber boats or other life-saving equipment.

200,000 SEE START

A seventh balloon, in which George Hineman and Milford Vanik, of Cleveland, took off ahead of the international racers to show wind velocity and to establish a duration and distance record for free bags of 25,000 cubic feet capacity, also was in the air east of Cleveland today. The racing balloons are of 80,000 cubic feet capacity.

The race started at 6:04 p. m. yesterday as the climax of a two-day air show. The City of Detroit led off.

A crowd estimated at 200,000 watched and cheered.

9 Hurt in Collision Outside Zanesville

ZANESVILLE, O., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Nine persons were injured, one seriously, in the collision of a Zanesville automobile yesterday with one containing five Negroes from Pittsburgh on the National highway, 12 miles east of here. The Negroes, whose names were not learned, were taken to a Cambridge hospital for treatment.

SCHOOLS BEGIN FALL TERM

The school bells rang again today for Pittsburgh's boys and girls. The children spent the two-month vacation in ended traveled back to start the last semester. Little time was needed for registration and studies began immediately in both parochial and public schools.

Advance registration of the 27 school pupils made it possible for the students to go direct to new report rooms and receive their lessons where they ended in June. Only in the kindergarten and the first grade was it necessary to take time for enrolling pupils, it was said.

In the county, however, hundreds of buildings remain closed the fall terms not opening next Monday. Parochial schools in Clairton and Wilkinsburg are to open tomorrow and those in Duquesne, Swissvale, Braddock, Rankin and McKeesport on Monday.

An enrollment of 700 was expected at the new Civic-Vocational trade school, Bedford avenue and Fullerton street, which opened its doors for the first time. A number of other new buildings also were in the city.

CONTRACT LET FOR BALLOTS

The County Commissioners today awarded to the William G. Johnston Company, the city, the contract for supplying materials for the November election at the bid of $11,175.

The contract includes the printing of ballots and manufacture of slugs for voting machines. Approximately 300 machines will be in use at the election, it is estimated.

A request of Joseph A. Vichestain to appear in protest against payment of $3,500 as the 1926 appropriation to the Flood Commission was approved. In a letter, Vichestain contended most of the money goes to one man. Payment of the appropriation recently approved has been withheld by filing of the protest, Controller R. G. Woodside said.

Friday at 11 a. m. was the time set for a conference with officials of the Pennsylvania Water Company, whose protest has temporarily halted construction of the Allegheny River boulevard at Nadine.

At the instance of Commissioners J. G. Armstrong and C. C. McGovern, notices were ordered sent to all desiring them as to future meetings on the Tuer Hall.

WEST VIRGINIA VETS PARADE

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 2 — A mammoth veterans parade, with numerous floats, many drum and bugle corps, several bands and hundreds of marching men was an outstanding event of the eleventh annual state American Legion convention here.

Edgar Panier, of Point Marion, collapsed during the parade.

John Cornwell, war time governor of West Virginia, former Romney newspaper editor and now general counsel for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was one of the speakers at the opening session of the Legion in the Carmichael Auditorium. He lauded the veterans of the World War for the victory they won, reviewed economic conditions, stressed the fact that the business depression is world wide and declared it will eventually be corrected, with the ex-soldier taking a conspicuous part in the work.

CITY LABORERS ON HALF TIME

About 800 laborers in the Bureau of highways and sewers have been placed on half time, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang announced today.

It will be arranged so that 400 of the men shall work every other week. The weeks will consist of five days as has been the practice during the past six months.

Director Lang said the order was necessary to keep the payroll within the funds available. He said he chose the method of alternative employment because it would enable each man to have some work at a time when it is extremely difficult to secure new employment.

FLINN BOOMED FOR CONGRESS

The name of Ralph E. Flinn [illegible] succeed Congressman Scott Porter, who died recently, as representative of the Thirty-second Congressional District.

Congressional Committeeman Joseph G. Armstrong, who is also Republican County Chairman, today admitted that he had received several letters suggesting Flinn for the Thirty-third Congressional District vacancy. Most of the letters were written on the stationery of financial institutions.

Chairman Armstrong has not yet set a date for a convention of the county committeemen and women of the Thirty-second District to select a party nominee whose name is to appear on the ballot at the November election. A special election will be called by the Governor for the unexpired term, and it is believed the party nominee for the full term will get the support for the unexpired term.

Nominated by Ex's for 20 years Congressman Porter's secretary has been making a strong campaign for the nomination.

WOMAN DIES, 2 DEPUTIES HELD

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 2 (AP.)—Mrs. Thelma Wooten, 24, died here today of bullet wounds and Deputy Sheriffs J. H. Sullivan and C. C. Lane who fired into a passing automobile in which she was a passenger several nights ago were served with warrants charging murder.

The officers were imprisoned without bail soon after the shooting. They said they suspected the automobile was transporting liquor.

Others in the automobile told authorities two men, who later were identified as Sullivan and Lane, appeared at the side of the road and shot into the car without warning.

Denial was made that the car contained any liquor.

VICTIM OF DRUG UNKNOWN HERE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—As the Buckeye express rolled into New York today a young lady lay unconscious in her berth.

At Bellevue Hospital it was said she suffered from an overdose of veronal. She identified herself as Mary Downer, 19, a telephone operator, of 258 Atwood street, Pittsburgh.

Mrs. M. V. Klingensmith who conducts a boarding house at 258 Atwood street, said she never heard of Mary Downer. She has only four lodgers, all men. The girl is not listed in any Pittsburgh directory and the Bell Telephone Company has no knowledge of her.

Three youths were held for court today and another boy turned over to Juvenile Court authorities at a Central Police Court hearing where they were charged with highway robbery and three charges of larceny.

The boys, John Petroski, alias Sakolsi, 17, who escaped from Morganza Friday with four other inmates by stealing an officer's car, Mike Sable, 18, and Ray Billings, 17, were held for court. A third boy, 14, was turned over to juvenile authorities. The boys were accused of stealing automobiles and beating and robbing Mrs. Eva Shatten, of 2269 Tilbury street, escaping with $125 in cash and $250 in checks after a holdup in Hobart street.

BUDAPEST RIOTS LAID TO REDS

BUDAPEST, Sept. 2 (INS.)—Communist agitators were blamed by police today for the riots and clashes between 100,000 unemployed demonstrators and troops and police, in which two persons were known to have been killed and more than 300 wounded.

Several hundred of the disturbers were arrested. The riot, which resulted in several violent clashes in the public squares and streets between howling mobs and police, was precipitated when authorities attempted to disperse thousands of paraders who demanded vociferously that they be furnished food and work.

Failing to disband the surging throng by ordinary methods, police and troops fired several volleys from their rifles, also using revolvers and sabers freely. Troops and armored cars rushed in to quell the riot.

BODY OF FLIER FOUND AT SEA

PORT HANCOCK, N. J., Sept. 2.—(INS.)—The body of Second Lieut. William Harbold, whose plane dropped into the ocean off Sandy Hook during a heavy fog, was recovered today from the cockpit of his plane by a Coast Guard patrol.

Daniel Baxter, co-pilot, was rescued shortly after the plane crashed into the water. He suffered severe injuries.

Aviation experts here attributed the accident to the fact that the fliers did not realize they were so close to the water and struck it at high speed.

Aviatrix Makes 11 Spins In 20 Seconds, Record

CLEVELAND AIRPORT.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—The first official world record of airplane spins for women was set by Mrs. Blanche Wilcox Noyes, daring Cleveland aviatrix, here during the aerial carnival being held in conjunction with the start of the Gordon Bennett International balloon race.

Defying death with every twist of her plane, Mrs. Noyes made 11 spins in 20 seconds from a height of more than 5,000 feet. She was flying a Great Lakes Aircraft Corporation plane. The record is the first to be officially recognized by the National Aeronautic Association.

Mrs. Noyes said she planned to go aloft again today in an effort to break her own record.

Twenty-five thousand persons saw six balloons take off here at 5:30 p. m. They caught various air currents which bore some south east, some east, some south [illegible].

ANDREE BODIES MOVED ASHORE

were found in a nearly perfect state of preservation were erroneous.

Andree's body, he stated, was identified by a coat button bearing an insignia and by the fact that his small diary was found in the vestpocket. The headbones were picked. The second skeleton was believed that of Strindberg while the bones were the remains of Frankel.

After a close inspection of the Andree camp as he found it, Dr. Horn concluded the explorers after safely landing in their balloon were unable to endure for long the rigors of the vicious Arctic climate. Exhaustion, he believed, ended their sufferings within a few weeks. This was attested to by the fact that numerous shells remained untouched showing that the explorers found little opportunity to hunt game. White Island offers best fox and game.

The Bratvaag brought with her not only the ice-packed bodies but also various camp implements dug out of the ice where the last camp had sheltered the explorers. Among these were the Andree sledge, rifles and tent stakes. In the ship's safe was locked away the brittle diary of Andree in whose pages Dr. Horn hopes to discover the entire thrilling account of the expedition from the day it left Spitsbergen to within a few days of Andree's death.

TO SEARCH CAMP SITE

Andree's logbook and diary, Dr. Horn said, would be turned over to scientists for preservation.

On revelation by Dr. Horn that he believed the Andree camping spot on White Island still had much to offer in the way of relics, the Norwegian government radioed the steamship Isbjoern to turn back on its course to Tromsoe and make a thorough search of the location.

The Isbjoern originally left Norwegian shores some days ago to search for the Bratvaag after learning of Dr. Horn's discovery. It failed to contact with the sealing vessel as did a number of other vessels bent on similar mission. The ship carried a number of newspaper correspondents.

LOG HOLDS CHIEF INTEREST

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Possibility that the log painstakingly kept by the Explorer Auguste Salomon Andree on his balloon venture to the North Pole may supersede the widely heralded diary in importance and richness of content was offered today in a report to the London Times by its Stockholm correspondent.

First examination, the report stated revealed to the delight of its discoverers that the Andree's observation log contained several hundred pages of the Swedish explorer's easily readable handwriting. These timely and detailed entries, it was indicated, may unfold a story far more complete and dramatic than the small, ice-cracked diary kept by Andree.

The log was found in the small canvas boat recovered by Dr. Horn, while the diary treated in Andree's vest pocket and consequently suffered more from exposure than the log. It was held quite probable that every major incident of the trip from the first to the last would be found faithfully recorded by the careful and methodical hand of Andree.

MANY RECORDS HELD BY COSTE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(Universal)—D'Artagan of the Air they call him—this intrepid Capt. Dieudonne Coste who is winging his way over the perilous East-to-West Atlantic Ocean crossing.

Daring, uncontrolled, impatient of discipline yet a most careful and painstaking airman, he has won the title with dashing flights that have captured the imagination of the world.

Only 37, he has been exploring the reaches of the sky for 19 years. From the obscurity of a farm in Gascony he came as a 16-year-old boy inspired by the English Channel flight of Blerlot to become a war ace and record-holder honored by a dozen nations.

At the end of 1929 he held these records: Non-stop long distance flight, 4,940 miles; distance flight in a closed circuit, 4,991 miles; flight with load of 1,100 pounds, 2,587 miles; and flight with 2,000 pounds, 2,051 miles.

And besides with Joseph Lebrix, he has made a world-circling flight of 35,000 miles and started another trans-Atlantic flight that had to be abandoned because of unfavorable winds.

During the war he won nine official victories, was given eleven citations for bravery, and was credited with spending 317 hours in the air.

'Anzac Flier Studies American Methods

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Harold (Bert) Hinkler, Australian flyer, who in 1928 established a record in a flight from England to Australia, today began a three week's study of aviation at American centers. He is en route to Australia, but will not make the trip by plane.

6 OCEAN FLIERS SET TO HOP

International News Service

While Capt. Coste's French plane whirled over the Atlantic Ocean today toward New York, six American aviators were waiting good weather for hops in three planes to Europe. One—or possibly all of the planes—may take off within the next 24 hours.

J. Erroll Boyd was waiting at Montreal to start his flight to London. His plane is the monoplane Columbia in which Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine flew to Germany in 1927. Harry Connor will accompany Boyd as navigator. Boyd plans to hop off from St. Hubert Airport, Montreal, with 500 gallons of fuel.

At Roosevelt Field, New York, Ted Lundgren, Los Angeles flier, and Roger Q. Williams and a radio operator were ready to launch their round-the-world flight. They plan to jump from either New York or Old Orchard, Me., to Berlin on the first leg of their long journey.

In Boston, Russell Boardman was poised for a hop to Dublin, Ireland. He plans a round-trip from Boston to Dublin and return. He will use a monoplane with 600 gallons of gas. It was said to be doubtful that Boardman would take off immediately, as he met with delay in installing navigation instruments on his plane.

Farm Bureau Head Gets Year's Leave

WAYNESBURG, Sept. 2.—L. F. Engle, for 16 years head of the Greene County Farm Bureau, has been granted a year's leave of absence to pursue special agricultural studies at Penn State College. Lyle R. Bennett will serve as county agent during Engle's absence.

Girl Buried Day She Expected to Start Teaching

School bells which were to have called her to her first day as a teacher today tolled a requiem as funeral services were being held for Elvira Ann Seel, 21, of Natrona, who was graduated from the Indiana State Teachers' College in June.

She was to have taken up her duties in the Natrona public school as a teacher, but died Sunday after a two weeks' illness. She will be buried late today in Prospect Cemetery, Tarentum.

Miss Seel was born in Natrona and had attended the schools there before going to the Indiana school. She leaves her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Seel, and a brother, William.

RICH RELATIVES CLAIM SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Wealthy relatives today claimed the body of Charles E. Bedford, Jr., who ended his life by inhaling gas in a dollar-a-night Brooklyn hotel. He was the son of the vice president of an oil company and grandson of the multi-millionaire head of a refining concern.

Although he had an income, Bedford choose to live in cheap hotels, spending most of his time watching elevated trains whirl past. He left no explanation of his suicide.

COSTE FLYING OVER COAST

they will have made the Paris-to-New York journey in about 37 hours.

To reach St. Pierre the "?" traveled an air-line distance of approximately 2,525 miles from Le Bourget in 25 hours and 6 minutes from the time of its departure, 10:54 a. m. (5:54 a. m. Pittsburgh time) yesterday.

DODGED BAD WEATHER

The distance traveled probably was several hundred miles greater due to a considerable southward detour from the course in mid-Atlantic, made, it was presumed, to escape fog and adverse weather conditions.

Coste's landfall and passage over St. Pierre was a gracious gesture to his countrymen there.

In the first 16 hours of flight from Le Bourget, France, which they left at 10:54 a. m. (5:54 a. m. Pittsburgh time) yesterday, they covered 2,090 miles at an average speed of about 115 miles an hour.

For six hours, from 6 p. m. to midnight, the "?" took a sharp southwestward course, which placed it far to the south of the usual ship and air routing off the coast of Newfoundland and set it almost due east of New York City. It was presumed that this diversion was to escape strong winds and the fog off Newfoundland, which Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith found baffling in his recent transocean flight.

Paris dispatches said progress of the plane exceeded even the most sanguine hopes of its backers who had expected to meet adverse winds before they reached mid-Atlantic.

NEVER ACCOMPLISHTD

In his effort to complete a non-stop flight from Paris to New York, Coste is attempting what never before has been accomplished, although tried often. The Bremen, flown by the Fitzmaurice-Koehl-Von Huenefeld combination, reached Labrador from Ireland, and Wing Commander Kingsford-Smith recently flew from Ireland to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, but other flights westward across the Atlantic have been either several-stop affairs or failures.

MERGER AUDIT FACTS GIVEN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—George O. May, senior partner of Price-Waterhouse & Co., testified today that had any accounting adjustments been made in the firm's audit for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem Steel merger, they would have favored Bethlehem, but he considered any margin of doubt should go to Youngstown because it is a smaller company.

After the week-end adjournment, May resumed the stand as a witness for the defense in the suit brought by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to enjoin the merger.

May was questioned by Attorney F. H. Wood, Bethlehem counsel, who is seeking to discredit an audit compiled by Ernst & Ernst for the anti-merger group, in which large adjustments were made in Bethlehem's depreciation account in favor of Sheet and Tube.

The plaintiffs claim the final ratio, 1 1-3 shares of Bethlehem for 1 of Sheet and Tube, was unfair to Youngstown stockholders on the basis of the Ernst & Ernst conclusions as to Bethlehem's 1929 earnings.

DIAMOND FACES DEPORTATION

AIX-LA-CHAPPELE, Germany, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, New York's racketeering peer, probably will be deported back to the United States, German police said today.

Although he can not be extradited to the United States because the United States-German extradition treaty has never been ratified, police said he could be sent back to the country from which he sailed because he is considered an undesirable alien in Germany, and other European countries are not likely to accord him hospitality as a tourist.

He was arrested on his arrival here last night from Belgium, upon notice from Belgian police that he must leave there within 12 hours.

To police here Diamond is said to have admitted he was a bootlegger in the United States, but denied he had even been implicated in banditry. He refused to eat the ordinary fare served by the Aix-La-Chappelle jail, and sent out to a nearby restaurant for special food.

Grant $63,050,000 Claim Against Soviet

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—A court of arbitration today awarded the Lena Goldfields, Inc., a British corporation, a judgment of £13,000,000 (approximately $63,050,000), against the Soviet government for breach of contract.

The court held that the Soviet government had prevented the corporation from fulfilling its contract to develop mining concessions in the Lena basin of Soviet Russia.

Lawyers Discuss Universal Air Code

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—International aerial law will be one of the major subjects discussed at the world conference of the International Law Association, opening today. A code of international laws governing air traffic is badly needed, said R. E. L. Vaughan-Williams, of England, heading a group of 47 delegates from foreign countries.

Native Turtle Wins $7,100 in Annual Terrapin Derby

PONCA CITY, Okla., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Goober Dust, a home-grown speedster, put foreign entrants to shame in the seventh annual 101 Ranch terrapin derby here, winning the first prize of $7,100.

This hard-shelled sprinter was entered by Mrs. Cora M. Day, of Ponca City. Second place and the $1,250 prize went to an unnamed trutle belonging to F. V. Huddleston, of Bluff City, Kan.

FLIERS' WIVES WAIT LANDING

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Mme. Dieudonne Coste today waited in their Paris apartment for her husband's promised long-distance telephone call from New York at the end of his flight across the Atlantic Ocean. She was sure he would phone her well before midnight today.

The bride the premier French aviator left behind is a beautiful, slim blonde Georgian princess. She watched beside her husband while he slept before starting upon his flight, and she has had no sleep since.

"I went to bed to dream of him, to be with him in the great loneliness of the black night over the sea," she said today.

VIROFLAY, France, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Mme. Maurice Bellonte said today that she is one of the happiest women in the world because she is sure her husband will succeed in the first non-stop Paris-New York flight with Dieudonne Coste.

Mme. Bellonte is an English-born girl, and was Doris Stafford when she, like Mme. Coste, met her future husband at a flying field.

N. Y. PREPARING TO GREET COSTE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—As Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte sped down the Atlantic coast on their hop from Paris in the "?" officials of Curtiss Field were preparing for the arrival of the intrepid Frenchmen.

The airport's huge floodlight will be turned on when darkness descends.

The Mayor's reception committee of distinguished guests will have charge of the welcoming program. The two fliers will be welcomed officially at City Hall by Mayor James J. Walker the day after their arrival here.

Preparations were completed today to broadcast the arrival of the French conquerors of the Atlantic Ocean.

A broadcasting company has arranged to transmit the first words uttered by Capt. Coste on reaching New York over trans-oceanic radio telephone to Paris. Nation-wide hookups will describe their landings to radio listeners in the United States.

As the "?" neared New York it was expected radio messages would be received direct from the plane. The ship has special radio. Its call letters are FRANS.

Jules Henri, French charge d'affairs at Washington, the highest diplomatic representative of his country in the United States, was at Curtiss Airport early this afternoon to greet the fliers.

2 Dead, Another Hurt In Airplane Crash

CARPENTERSVILLE, Ill., Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Two men were dead and a third believed dying today as the result of an airplane crash here at a Labor Day celebration.

Reaching an altitude of 150 feet, the motor failed and the craft struck within 500 feet of 10,000 persons attending the celebration.

Bandit Gets $5,700 From Iowa Theater

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A masked, armed man held up three theatrical employes early today and escaped with $5,700, the week-end receipts of the Orpheum Theater.

Woman, 85, Flying, Recalls Ox Cart Ride

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—The first ride Mrs. Anna Smith ever had on Long Island was in an ox cart. The latest is in an airplane. She is 85 years old.

This Town of Ours

The Courtney ("Only Saps Work") Terretts, the Lawrence Woods (Georgia Gwynne of Shubert's "Wonderful Night") and the "Scrappy" Lamberts have phffft! . . . Bernt Balchen, the S. Pole pilot, who was refused his citizenship papers, is gettin' 'em . . . The legend is that "they didn't dare indict E. Carroll because he has too much on them" . . . Jack Anthony, who won the Liverpool Grand National three times, broke a stem in Va., on a 2-foot jump.

Harry Richmann's latest diversion is Germaine Giroux, the Frenchy in "Ladies All" . . . What's this about the John Gilbert-Ina Claire divorce confirmation, and the Jed Harris-Anita Green Mexico abrogation? . . . How they all worked themselves up into a lather last November when it was first chronicled here! . . . "The Little Show" belittles the critics.

The town's heaviest romance will be Justice-of-the-Peace'd (no can get a Church knotting') as soon as his squaw gets her very sotto voce Reno-vation . . . Capt. Alton Parker, who was promised he'd fly Byrd across the S. Pole, but didn't, still feels wretched about it . . . Byrd is promoting a Distinguished Flying Cross to soothe matters . . . It's a boy over at the Matthew Kings' she was Elene Meade of "Artists and Models" . . . Countess Martini went Communistic at the Atlantic Beach Club deploring Peggy Drum's million $ pearl throat-rope . . . The town's "awfullest gossip" has never been in the sue-p . . . Haw! The Mayor, however, is served for slander!

Former Police Comm. Whalen, while motoring on L. I., was chased for miles by a car containing mysterious persons who became casualties in a crash . . . Suggested for a swelegant orchestra combination in a smart joint: Seven accordians, five violins, a bass viol, a viola and piano . . . The George (Carter's) Marxs, Dorothy Miller) are being baby'd.

E. Leterman, insurance king, has insured all Central Park traffic cops, paying their premiums, he says . . . The editors of Editor & Publisher and Variety have been argued by the 4 local tabloid columnists to prove a Brooklyn lad's charge that "a certain tab lad and a theatrical weekly publisher pulled a 'shake' on a doctor's squaw . . . Dudley Byrd and Ruth Walters are on fire!

Elinor Smith, who hopes some day to hang up a new femme air speed record, meets with the most mysterious barriers every time she tries to borrow a fast ship . . . Gertrude Lawrence is the only woman ever to enter the Racquet Club . . . Mrs. Jed Harris is now running a riding academy in Woodstock . . . If the gullible editors in town read the foreign news dispatches they would know that the Prince Mohamet Ali of Egypt is at home helping keep his pappy, King Fuad, on the throne, and is not on Broadway getting engaged to any of Mr. Ziegfeld's follys!

Recommended to diversion seekers: John (Corey Ford) Riddell's comical travesty on Philo Vance in Vanity Fair, but he doesn't know how to spell "phffft" the dope! . . . Ward Greene's novel, "Ride the Nightmare" . . . The St. Louis hit chune: "In the Cool of the Evenin' (When the Lovin' is Good)" . . . Louis Armstrong's platter of "Rockin' Chair" and "Dinah."

Cab Calloway's blazing songs at the Cotton Club . . . Mayo Methot, the star of "Torch Song" . . . Variety's: "There's many a broken heart when there should be more broken heads on Broadway" . . . John Wilstach in Top-Notch mag . . . The Four Funniest Re-Marks Brothers "Animal Crackers," a new shouting flicker . . . And "Le Sexe Fort," at the 55th St. moompitcher Theater, a very highly sophisticated wow.

The Christian Science Monitor, which taboos the word "death" in its col'ms, recorded Lon Chaney's with "Lon Chaney, the movie actor, passes on" . . . Morton C. Eustis and Philip K. Crowe, cubs on the Evepost, are Socially Registered . . . "After all," sniffs Glenn F. Ireton, "Broadway is just composed of the rank and vile!" . . . Only the regular operator of a phone company coin-collecting car can start the motor . . . Anyone else who attempts it gets a load of tear gas . . . Hollywood studios refuse to take photos of movie stars playing minute-you're-thru golf, believing that the new fad has hurt theater business . . . The Rob't Murrays have dissolved . . . The apple pie at the Central Park Casino costs only 55 cents.

The Nieu Yaukur dropped over 700 grand before clicking . . . Ever so many fraternities at Columbia are about to withdraw, the town holding too many attractions for the fraters to make the lodges profitable . . . Dorothy Mackraill's sister, who is a home gal, is just as good-looking . . . Overheard: "Aw, he can't do anything. He has as much on her as Carroll had on Faith Bacon!"

The theater spec business must have been jolted, at that, considering that Equity, the Brokerage at 47th, has sold half its space. . . . Gwen Bristow, whose "The 9th Guest" story was melodrama'd by Owen Davis, is a New Orleans reporter . . . The characters in "West of Fifth" are supposed to include Nunnaly Johnson, Viola Brothers Shore, Marion Spitzer, Harlan Thompson and others.

Most newspapers are co-operating with the Crime Commission and will drop from the Lost and Found columns the phrase "No Questions Asked" . . . Chic Young's new comic strip, "Blondie," should be as popular as a beautiful orphaned debutante, because she is as snappy as an elastic band . . . I thought the International Polo Match was an amateur affair, so how come Gerald Balding is on the British team? Wasn't he the polo pro at the Rumson Club? . . . It appears that Donald Ogden Stewart's pet aversion is Marc Connolly, who, of all persons, has been asked by Joe Cook to come to Boston and fix up Stewart's plot for Cook's new tour . . . It's a boy at Neils Formans (Kay Kelly).

Almost everyone in town, doggonit, appears to be behaving in a most decent and uninteresting manner . . . Ruth Wilcox's version of the "Vanities" bottle-dance is swell . . . Leo Friede, who is being divorced, anyway, has a new idea, who is plenty pretty . . . "Little White Lies," first recommended here, is the nation's leading song smash.

The Joseph (Little Tim's son) Sullivans (Agnes McGuire of Easthampton) are being melted in Chicago, and because they never had the time for a real honeymoon they are enjoying one before the decree is granted . . . Her charge (now don't collapse) is desertion! . . . Gunmen never use the expression "going for a ride" or "take him for a ride," which is strictly newspaperese . . . The victim "gets the wagon."

George Sharp's Players Win Battle Against The Thermometer

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Summer was playing a return engagement yesterday, but so were George Sharp's Players, and they won out. It may have been loyalty, it may have been starvation for real dramatic fare, or it may have been curiosity to see the new members of the company. Whatever it was, the house looked like a good little girl's Christmas stocking, though it wasn't Christmas weather.

George Seibel

To satisfy the curious ones that were not there, let it be proclaimed at once that the new leading lady and the new leading man will do very well indeed. To tell the truth, they worked something very much like a miracle last night. They blew the breath of life into three acts of rather thin conversation. If no one was bored, that was because Jean May and Paul McGrath would not permit it.

"Rebound," described as a comedy by Donald Ogden Stewart, has hardly enough bounce to justify its title. "Nothing's going to happen," says the heroine in the last act, and she should have said it in the first. Her father implores her pathetically "never to change," but it isn't at all clear what his wisdom is driving at nor why he should have a weakness for Alexander cocktails. Nor why Hugh Banks as a young lover who missed his chance should be doused with so much champagne.

A Brilliant Bubble

Nay, this comedy is not a Zeppelin, but merely a brilliant bubble, which the author has great difficulty in keeping afloat. He may thank Jean May and Paul McGrath for helping him to do so.

Miss May has a comely countenance and a musical voice. She can strike a note of flippancy or one of pathos with convincing naturalness. But her great feat in this comedy is to convey the impression at all moments that she is about to say something very important or very clever. Sometimes she does. The dialogue has some real flashes—like a new cigar lighter.

Paul McGrath is as handsome as a leading man should be and as intelligent as he dare be. He has the difficult task of standing three feet off when he should be holding the heroine very close. But he does even this quite convincingly, and redeems himself in the final clinch, even though Mabel Kroman has been trying to vamp him for two acts by tying his ties. These vamps are so resourceful and unscrupulous.

Is Marriage a Failure?

Yes, Mabel Kroman is there, and so is Robert Fiske, and so is Alice Ann Baker, and so is Hugh Banks, and so is Joseph Lawrence—all these old favorites received flattering ovations. And all of them did their part nobly in the pulmotor work called for by the dramatist.

Among the new faces were those of John Thorn, Stephanie Diamond, and John Winthrop, who also took part in the conversation. It seems there is some reason about love concealed in the three acts—as to why marriage should be a failure—and the solution seems to be not to let your husband go out for the mail on a honeymoon in Paris. He is likely to meet his old sweetheart, and never return till his wife's old sweetheart has walked in and made himself at home.

Such things might happen. And the actors make them plausible by quiet and sincere work. There is Virginia Harmon, for instance—as a maid she has hardly a line to speak, and she plays so unobtrusively that you do not notice she is there. That is art.

It is the sort of art that characterizes the whole performance. The ladies wear some ravishing frocks as if they had been born in them. The men look and talk like gentlemen at home amid the velvet draperies provided by the scenic artist. And that is what saves the play, if there is a play concealed about the stage of the Pitt this week. Hardly enough to hide the capable actors George Sharp has brought for his new season.

HARRISON ROLL'S HOLLYWOOD COMMENT APPEARS ON PAGE 10.

COUPLE OBITUARIES: LOTS OF FUN IN "EAST LYNNE"

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"East Lynne"—we're not calling the trains now, we're talking about the "drama"—is what Captain Menke is handing out on his Golden Rod Showboat, located at Montrose, just above Aspinwall. And, ladies and gentlemen, direction has nothing to do with it. It would be "East Lynne" by any other sign post.

But it is melodrama. It is grand; it is glorious—it is insane, insanely funny. They, the Menke players, choke the life out of the drama. But, in its death, there is a birth. Meet Kid Laughter!

Talking about death, they give us a couple obituaries. The tears—maybe from laughter—roll down your cheeks. Little Willie dies. He's the heroine's son. And Lady Isabel dies. She, dear lady, is the heroine. Which either

PARADE MARKS CONVENTION

A civic parade, business meetings of the women's auxiliary and sight-seeing trips throughout the city, were scheduled today as highlights of the state convention of the Order of Independent Americans, in a three-day session at McKeesport. Headquarters are at Hotel Penn-McKee. Nearly 200 delegates are in attendance.

Several thousand members of the order, according to official estimate, will participate in the parade tonight, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. Valuable prizes will be awarded to individuals and organizations. Twenty or more lodges in the western part of the state are to participate. James A. Martin will be marshal. City officials will review the procession.

Last night a banquet to welcome the visitors and state officers was held in the Penn McKee Hotel. State Senator W. D. Mansfield was toastmaster. Speakers included Past State Councilor Perry F. Ramey, of Conshohocken; Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Swissvale, and Congressman Adam Wyant, of Greensburg.

Election of officers is scheduled for tomorrow, under the supervision of State Councilor Earl Bullock, of Royersford, who is in charge of the meetings. Tube City and Versailles Councils are hosts to the gathering.

10 DIE AS SHIP SINKS IN CRASH

SEATTLE, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Ten members of the halibut schooner Orient's crew perished yesterday in the Strait of Georgia, north of here, when the 50-ton craft sank after colliding in a dense fog with the Pacific Steamship Company's freighter Admiral Nulton.

The victims included Capt. Sedolph H. Rudd, of the fishing schooner. Only three of the Orient's men survived. They were saved after having been thrown clear of the fishing craft. Most of those who perished were trapped in the cabin of the Orient, where they were sleeping.

Eric Remarque's New Book Ready for Screen on First of October

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 2.

The first of October will be a momentous day at Universal. At that time, "Kamerad," the new novel of Eric Maria Remarque, will be delivered to them.

This story will be made into one of Universal's big specials of the coming year. It's advent is a significant literary event, because "All Quite on the Western Front" has sold 3,500,000 copies, more copies than any other book except the Bible.

James Bryson, manager for the film company in London, has just returned from a visit to Remarque in a little German town, where the 32-year-old author is completing his new book. Bryson quotes Remarque as follows:

Eric Remarque

"I allowed Paul to die because I had no peace of mind to continue the story of my own battles out there. Most of my comrades were killed, but those who were not live on in 'Kamerad.' It is their story and mine."

It is unthinkable that anyone but Lewis Milestone should direct "Kamerad." But as he is on the verge of signing a contract with Universal, there's apparently no cause for concern.

To my mind, one of the most encouraging factors in the motion picture situation today is the success of "All Quiet on the Western Front" in small towns as well as big cities. It lays a ghost that has been responsible for many cheap and shoddy productions in the past.

A KICKBACK

Paramount may not have been so smart in dropping the Buddy from Charles Rogers' name. Whereas a few fans requested it, hundreds have registered their objections to the change. Buddy's fan mail has been filled with protests for a month. After all, what's the matter with the nickname Buddy?

WINS OUT

At last, Samuel Goldwyn has officially okehed Constance Cummings for Ronald Colman's lead in his new plane picture.

She was brought out here very quietly, and Sam objected strenuously to my printing the story of her arrival. He said, with justice, I admit, that if the girl was ballyhooed and then didn't get the part, it would injure her in the film colony.

But she has proven satisfactory, and is now several days into the production, which, you will recall, is from an original story by Frederick Lonsdale.

In the old days, Samuel Goldwyn was out for every line of publicity that he could get. Now he feels that he doesn't have to go that far. And perhaps he's right. His pictures certainly do demand respect, and he has an artistic conscience, which is by no means unanimous among our producers.

JANNINGS RETURNING

Emil Jannings returns here around the first of January to start his Warner Brothers picture, "The Idol."

Emil Jannings

The German star, whom the talkies ousted from his throne as king of Hollywood actors, has signed to do another film for Warners, but no story is selected as yet. Jannings has to okeh each of his vehicles.

Al Green, who directed the memorable "Disraeli" and "Old English," will direct "The Idol."

DO YOU KNOW that after "Alibi" was released, Chester Morris received most of his fan mail addressed to Chick Williams?

McClintocks to Hold Reunion Saturday

The McClintock family, of Gibsonia and Bakerstown, will hold a reunion on Saturday, September 6, at the Epworth League Home in Bakerstown. The celebration will start at 2 o'clock, and supper will be served at 5:30. Harry McClintock, of Bakerstown, is in charge of all arrangements.

Church Postpones Annual Celebration

Owing to the illness of Father Raphael Guglimotti, pastor of the Queen of Heaven Church, Juniata street, the Lauretana feast, which was to be held September 8, has been postponed. High mass will be said in the church on that day.

POWER INQUIRY RESUMES SOON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(Universal)—Hearings in the Federal Trade Commission's sweeping investigation of power trust stock "watering" boosting of values and high rates will be resumed in the next few weeks, it was learned today.

Loss of records in last Saturday's fire will result in no considerable delay, if any at all, according to Commissioner Edgar A. McCulloch, in charge of the utilities inquiry. Most of the power records either escaped damage or can be copied or replaced.

Those that were to be used in the immediate future are virtually intact, McCulloch said.

Although dates have not yet been set it is understood the $900,000,000 North American Company system will be one of the first taken up. It was scheduled for attention last May, but need for rewriting certain reports forced a postponement.

North American's acquisition of control of the Washington Railway and Electric Company and the Potomac Electric Power Company here will be one of the subjects covered, it is understood. Another will be its acquisition of a large if not a controlling interest in the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, serving San Francisco and much of California.

Other properties in this system to be investigated are grouped about Milwaukee, Cleveland and St. Louis.

'EAST LYNNE' ON SHOWBOAT

WHY HURRY?

"I'm dying," says Isabel. And someone in the audience says, "Don't take so long." But Isabel is an actress. She'll take as long as she wants. She's going to get in all the dramatic gestures. And she does. It is St. Elmo and Sonny Boy all mixed up. Or, if it isn't St. Elmo, it is something else. But it means the same thing.

Grand and glorious! We mean it. Grand and glorious burlesque. And it is burlesque because these Showboat Players do it so seriously. They aren't working for Capt. Menke. They are real people. They are living, loving and dying—just as they would do it in real life. But, they are so old-fashioned.

Yes, old-fashioned—in life, but not in "East Lynne." This "East Lynne" is modern. It is dressed up in short skirts, turban hats and everything.

OH, THESE "ASIDES"

Yet it is "East Lynne," though it is an "East Lynne" that its creator, Mrs. Henry Wood, might not recognize. But the Theater Guild would. It and Eugene O'Neil. That's where all the "asides" in "Strange Interlude" came from. One character says, to another's face, "I like you so much." Then, in stage undertone, "you big bum," or something like that.

However, it isn't "bum" entertainment. It is melodrama; melodrama, presented against a romantic background; a background of a showboat that has "played" the rivers for years. It is amusement. It is something the small-town folks take with clinging-seat seriousness; something we alleged sophisticates take with rocking-seat reality.

And we must mention the cast. But not in person. What's in a name, or names? Yet, these players have a time of it. Take the heroine. She dresses in mourning two scenes before she dies. Which is we call foresight.

WOMAN TAUNTS OFFICER, SHOT

DAUPHIN, Manitoba, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Angered by the jibes of several men and women who "dared" him to shoot, a Royal Canadian mounted policeman shot and seriously wounded a 26-year-old South Dakota woman last night.

She is Mrs. Sophie Light, wife of E. J. Light, of Ipswich, S. D. With several friends she was attending a picnic celebration in the Assiniboine Valley incident to the linking of the Manitoba and Saskatchewan highway system.

Witnesses said members of the party, and the officer, Constable J. Pirt, had been drinking. He drew his revolver, and she and her friends laughed at him. Angered by the taunts, he fired. Physicians said she would recover. Pirt was arrested.

Hunger Strike Costs Bank Robber's Life

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Pneumonia, superinduced by a hunger strike in the Nebraska Penitentiary, caused the death of Johnny Brown, 26, bank robber, here yesterday.

Warden W. T. Fenton said Brown has stopped eating three weeks ago and contracted pneumonia three days ago.

Brown was under a 20-year sentence for robbing a Sioux City, Neb., bank of $20,000 in 1925.

Safe Robbers Slay Night Watchman

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Charles Widierer, 64-year-old night watchman employed by the Tunnel Glue Company, was murdered today when he surprised a group of prowlers looting the plant.

The man's body was found by Joseph Day, private operative for a burglar alarm system, when Day went out to investigate Widierer's failure to turn in regular calls.

'BLACK SHIRT' PAPER BANNED

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Mayor A. G. Dudley has issued an order prohibiting the American Fascist organization from selling its publication, "The Black Shirt," on the streets of the city.

In a statement accompanying his order, the Mayor said the organization "has no right to dictate to employers of labor." He said further:

"Such an anti-social, anti-racial organization, apparently set up for the personal profit of its organizers, will not be tolerated in the community."

The association, which has applied for incorporation under Georgia laws, sets forth as its purposes the maintenance of "white supremacy," the offering of assistance to authorities in maintaining law and order and obtaining of employment for its members.

Claims have been made that the "black shirts" have attempted to have employers in Atlanta and other Georgia cities dismiss their negro employes and replace them with white workers.

Suffered Searing Acid Stomach For 15 Years

NEW FORMULA ACIDINE ENDS IT

That has been the delightful experience of Mr. C. M. Reade of Merchantville, New Jersey, who says "After 15 years of stomach trouble caused by acid that just seared, without any relief whatever, I was about despairing of any relief. Then I began taking Acidine. From the first dose about three weeks ago, I have enjoyed my old health back again. I have a smile on my face now-a-days." When you are tormented almost constantly with burning, gnawing indigestion and gas, why fool with things which at best give only partial relief? Marvelous new formula Acidine banishes burning acid stomach, pain before or after eating, belching, gas, bloat, heartburn for millions. Physicians are prescribing it as the best thing they know for acid indigestion and dyspepsia. Remember, this new Acidine is entirely different from other remedies. Contains an effective digestant, Japtase, one grain of which promptly liquefies 800 times its own weight of starchy foods under proper conditions. Five other scientific ingredients relieve burning acid, stop gas formation and soothe irritated stomach lining. This wonderful scientific combination quickly relieves acid stomach trouble. Get Acidine today. Watch pain and gas stop. Eat, drink, and smoke what you want. Relieve resulting acidity with Acidine. Results guaranteed or money back. Get Acidine at your druggist or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

ANOTHER LINGLE SUSPECT HELD

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(INS.)—Israel (Izzy) Alderman, reputed muscleman for the Alphonse Capone forces, was under arrest here today for questioning in connection with the murders of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, racketeering reporter, and Jack Zuta, gang chieftain.

Alderman is known as an associate of Teddy Newberry and a friend of Frankie Foster. Foster is now under indictment for the murder of Lingle. Between $2,000 and $3,000 in cash was in Alderman's pockets when seized last night. Police records here show the suspect was indicted October 19, 1925, in New York City for the murder of a jeweler in a $25,000 holdup. New York authorities were unable to extradite him.

5 NATIONS HIT ON DOPE EVIL

GENEVA, Sept. 2.—(Universal)—The existing international machinery, including the League of Nations, is powerless to suppress the illicit dope traffic of the world, L. A. Lyall, chairman of the League's Central Opium Board, confessed today.

Lyall assigned as his reason the "bad faith of certain governments."

The governments, it is indicated, are those of Turkey, Switzerland, France, Germany and England, which were indicted on the same charge in the board's report after a two-week meeting. Chairman Lyall declared:

"Only one thing can stop the drug traffic, and that is public opinion.

"When the people of countries manufacturing drugs are convinced it is a disgrace to poison other peoples, then their governments will stop the excessive manufacturing of dope. It cannot done only by outside pressure from victim nations."

Lyall also admitted under questioning, that illicit traffic in narcotics is growing, with the number of victims increasing yearly.

PASTOR BEATEN, 3 MEN HELD

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Three men were under arrest today charged with kidnaping and beating the Rev. Ben W. Carlyle, pastor of Free Will Baptist Church. Cecil J. Carroll, his brother, Russell, and James Beecham all denied the charges and were released on bonds of $500 each.

The minister told police he had been apprehensive about the safety of the tent in which he and the Rev. Robert P. Turner were conducting religious services. Their first tent was burned Friday night. Saturday night and part of Sunday night he stood watch over the new tent. Late Sunday night he became tired and decided to go home. Near home, he told the police, the men assaulted him and cursed him.

Carlyle related he was then taken by automobile to a secluded spot, where an argument took place as to whether he should be killed. The men finally allowed him to leave. Police said they had not ascertained a motive.

Mexican Volcano Suddenly Active

PICHUCALCO, Chiapas, Mexico, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Reports from the village of Ostuacan said today that Chichonal volcano began to belch columns of smoke and steam, causing the villagers to flee in terror. The volcano hitherto had been inactive as far back as the inhabitants could remember.

Why should a school child have a Waterman's?

Any writing teacher will tell you quickly enough! It's just this—the better the pen, the better the handwriting. Don't handicap your child—give him the best.

Waterman's pens write better. Ask any bookkeeper, or other steady users of pens. He'll tell you that the way a fountain pen writes depends on two things—the pen point itself, and how the ink flows to the point.

Waterman's make their own gold pen points and have done so for 47 years—no wonder they are better. Then, every Waterman's has the patented spoon feed which brings the ink to the pen point just as it is needed—no skimping, no blotting.

Every Waterman's has these features—writes better. Select the one that suits your purse and your child's hand. It will amply repay both of you for years to come. There is a wide choice of Waterman's pens suited for school use. Those illustrated are $4 and $5. Others both higher and lower in price. All are fine writing instruments. Always use Waterman's Inks—for school and general correspondence Waterman's new Blue Ink is especially good—a clear, bright blue, easy to read and easy on the eyes.

Every Waterman's is guaranteed forever against defects. Service Stations are maintained at the addresses below for the purpose of making good our guarantee and for servicing our pens as required.

Town Crier Needed | Few Foreign Tunes
McNamee Just Smiles | Political Debates

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Though they have been active and adroit in recapturing the spirit of an earlier America, the mahatmas of the microphone continue to neglect, save for a brief instance or two, the sprightly functions of the old-time town crier.

Louis Reid.

Bringing the town crier up to date, they might present him as a radiant and informative attention-caller, a mellow stentor who would make of the microphone a source of infinite interest and amusement to the vast gossip-hungry population of the republic.

Such a program might become the most popular that could be offered the cretonned cogswells between a championship fight and a national election, provided, of course, the right town crier was chosen. The selection of the right man would be difficult.

Such a man must have the authority of not only a man-about-town but an encyclopedist of American civilization as it ranges from applesauce to Ziedfeld. Moreover, his chatter, to be appealing, must tumble from the loudspeakers with easy grace and effortless wit.

A Town Crier Is One Of Radio's Greatest Needs

The town crier's gossip would embrace not only the glamorous figures of the day, but the more attractive retreats of the gourmet, intimate insight into the byplays and byways of life as it is lived between Gotham and the Golden Gate, the latest and richest anecdotes of Broadway and Pennsylvania avenue.

I should like to see the radio rulers give a genuine towncrier some consideration, if only as compensation to the earcuppers for the wearisomely repetitious hours of quartets and string ensembles. And when they get around to it I hope they will dispatch him to a megaphone unencumbered with ballyhoo.

The criers of wares, it seems to me, would be particularly unwelcome to the ears just after they have been cocked to hear what Herbert Hoover eats for breakfast, who is the latest fiance of Clara Bow, the newest story of James J. Walker, and what really is the favorite tune of Henry Ford.

While Milton J. Cross and Alwyn Bach, of the announcers, may be the choice of the academicians for purity of diction, Graham McNamee continues to arouse most of the controversy. Controversy is profitable. McNamee receives the largest salary of any announcer in radioland. Moreover, he adds handsomely to his income by magazine articles and singing engagements here and there about the country.

McNamee Can Afford To Laugh at Lampoonists

Columnists find in McNamee an ever-reliable source of material for lampoons. They delight in reproducing his confusion over all names save his own. But the confusion they fail to point out, may be the art that conceals art. Unquestionably it aids in creating suspense and excitement in the broadcasts of sports events. And without suspense and excitement the average sports broadcast would be about as interesting as an antique auction in Plymouth, Vt.

Life for a front page celebrity in America is just one microphone after another. Male quartets on the air seldom raise their voices, thank Allah, to "Sweet Adeline." "King Cotton" is for me the least inspiring of all of Sousa's marches.

We send annually to Europe dozens—well, five or six—first rate tunes. You can count on one hand the first rate tune Europe has sent us in the last 10 years. Of the list "Valencia" is so far in the lead as to suffer no comparison. Old-time fiddlers are succumbing to jazz. Mellie Dunham, discovered in the Maine countryside by Henry Ford and who later sawed out "Turkey in the Straw" in vaudeville, has joined a seaside dance band.

Political Debate Rare on Radio

Political debate, it seems to me, does not occupy as formidable a part of the broadcasting arena as it might. Opposing views on public questions are seldom aired in one evening's program. Something ought to be done about it—maybe a letter to your Congressman.

The most persuasive voice I can recall on the radio is that of Ramsay MacDonald. Not only does he speak with poetic fervor, but his expression is one of the sincerest and most intelligent that has come to the microphone.

The most resonant voice to these wise, if not handsome ears, is that of William E. Borah. The most booming voice—he easily could be heard a mile—is that of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky. The most characteristically American voice is that of Calvin Coolidge.

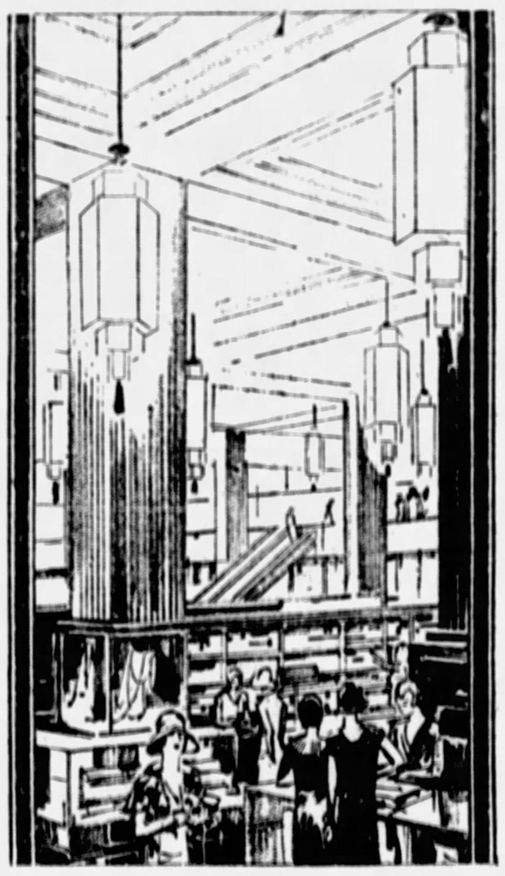
IT'S A PLEASURE 'to Shop in Pittsburgh

WHETHER it's a smart evening gown . . . a lamp . . . or a new radio . . . buying has its own particular thrill. Most people like to shop . . . especially in stores where modern electric equipment helps to make the environment a pleasing one. There are dozens of Pittsburgh stores aware of the selling value of a pleasant atmosphere . . . and the part electricity plays in creating it.

In any shop or store, good lighting, that without glare displays merchandise . . . day-light lamps, where color is an issue . . . rapid, dependable, elevator service . . . escalators . . . are valuable aids to successful sales. In summer, ventilators and electric fans add to the patrons' comfort, as does a properly heated store in the colder months.



Noted as a money-making city, Pittsburgh is also famous as a shopping center. Many up-to-the-minute retail stores and specialty shops, offering the finest and newest merchandise, make shopping particularly enjoyable for the people of this district. For many years the Duquesne Light Company has been furnishing electric power to Pittsburgh stores. In that time periodic reductions have brought electric rates to a low figure . . . comparable to those of any city in the country.

The services of our engineers are at the disposal of store managers and shop owners. Advice and information concerning efficient planning and distribution of electric power will be given without obligation. Call GRant 4300 . . . Line 233.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor

Signing of Vaughn de Leath as a staff artist of WTAM, Cleveland, did not come to us exactly as a surprise. In our last visit to the lake city there was some rumor that John F. Royal, station manager, was dickering for the network star for regular programs. Adding such a prominent artist to the staff, however, forecasts a new era in the conduct of independent stations.

Vaughn de Leath.

Vaughn will sing her first WTAM program tonight at 7:30.

Getting closer to home we find the Football Dinner on WJAS at 9:30 the biggest attraction. Knute Rockne, Glenn Warner and Tad Jones are to comment on the pigskin outlook this fall.

Two new dance orchestras take the air regularly: Jan Garber on WJAS at 7 and 11, and the Coon-Sanders Nighthawks on WCAE at 8:30.

* * *

Edgar Sprague, who is reputed the highest paid tenor in Pittsburgh churches, is to do the solo honors for Westinghouse Salute to the Twin Cities, KDKA at 10.

* * *

Paramount Playhouse, WJAS at 10:15, is a new program featuring a male trio, mixed chorus and Jesse Crawford, organist.

A dog and cat hospital is the dream of Helene Kremer, radio pianist of Leechburg.

Gus Edwards as "teacher" is m. c. in the RKO production of "School Days" over WCAE at 10:30. Days of study from the kindergarten to college will bring forward such favorites as "School Days," "I Can't Do That Sum," "Betty Co-Ed," "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" and "Medley of College Airs." Baby Rose Marie dodges the radio curfew long enough to sing "Mississippi."

Floyd Gibbons is to tell how he lost his eye in the World War this Sunday night over KDKA.

QUESTION A DAY

Father Keyer, Millvale: Will Harvey Hays and the Empire Builders be on the air this year?

A.—Yes, starting Monday, Sept. 29, over KDKA.

KQV's new crystal control unit, the first of its kind installed by the Bell Laboratory, was put on the air last night.

It is a delicate mechanism that keeps the station within 50 cycles of its assigned wave.

* * *

This old Greek adage: "Life is the gift of nature; but beautiful living is the gift of wisdom," is an oft quoted favorite of G. Dare Fleck, KDKA program director.

Our sympathy to Ford Miller, WCAE announcer whose father died yesterday.

Jim Simpson is managing a golf team composed of Albert A. Buehn, Wallace Russell, Ludwig Hommel and Elmer Hamburg. They have one ambition—to beat KDKA.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

When Sally Goldstein, WCAE secretary refused to pose for a picture recently, Tampa the Magician said he would change her into a rabbit if she didn't oblige. Sally smiled and the camera went "boom!"

I Gained 9 Lbs. in 3 Weeks. Pimples Gone, Look Younger

"I was run-down, complexion all pimples. Since taking Ironized Yeast I gained 9 lbs. in 3 weeks, complexion lovely, look younger."—Mrs. M. H. Harvey.

Thousands of "skinny" people write new Ironized Yeast adds 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 weeks. Ugly hollows fill out. Bony limbs get graceful roundness. Blotchy skin clears like magic. Nervousness, indigestion, constipation vanish overnight. Sound sleep, new pep first day.

Two great tonics in one—special weight-building Brewer's Yeast and strengthening Iron. Pleasant little tablets. Far stronger than unmedicated yeast. Results in ½ time. No yeasty taste, no gas.

Quit being "skinny," tired, unattractive. Get Ironized Yeast from druggist today. Feel great tomorrow. Money back from manufacturer if not delighted with results.

KROGER STORES

YOUR Neighborhood PANTRY

ready with NEW 1930 PACK

PEAS

In the fertile fields of Wisconsin are grown the finest peas in the world. At harvest time the Kroger buyer is in Wisconsin making his selection of the "choice" of the crop. His many years of experience enables him to skillfully select those peas that are best and most suited for canning. The "choicest of the choice" are harvested, sorted and packed into cans bearing the Kroger label. The picking and packing process is very rapid, none of the tenderness or the sweet mellow flavor of the peas is allowed to escape, in fact, less than one hour passes from the time they are picked until they are in the can. These delicious peas are now ready for you in Kroger Stores.

SEES JOB AID IN 5-DAY WEEK

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—An abbreviated working week to aid in affording jobs for the unemployed in times of business depression was urged here in an address by George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants of North America.

He also suggested legislation to prevent competition between child labor and able-bodied men.

HOUSTON, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Labor is more upon the defensive than at any time during the last decade, Charles P. Howard, of Indianapolis, president of the International Typographical Union, declared here. He continued:

"Organized workers recently have been confronted with demands for wage and hour reduction and have suffered from unemployment.

"During the past year, the unorganized worker has suffered greatly from the application of the moth-eaten industrial philosophy that wage reduction and increased hours will return prosperity. These workers must depend for protection upon the conscience of their employers and business has no conscience."

30,000 NICKELS HOLDUP LOOT

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Three youthful gunmen robbed an amusement park of $12,000, including 30,000 nickels, locked two policeman and the cashier in the park police station and escaped.

Armed with sawed-off shotguns, the men drove up to the administration building at "Playland" which is operated by Westchester County. They forced Patrolmen Patrick Bruder and Frank B. Hamilton into the police station which is in the building, and bound Victor Sturgeon, the cashier, with ropes.

While two gunmen stood guard the third smashed into the inner office and scooped up the receipts. They escaped in an automobile.

Communists Meet Peacefully in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—A demonstration by about 3,000 Communists was held in Union Square Monday without disorder. The meeting, under auspices of the Trades Union Unity League, was watched by 100 policemen.

The only police activity was the arrest of four members of a group which attempted to parade from a meeting place on East Fourth street to Union Square.

Sleeping Motorist Killed, Another Hurt

OIL CITY, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—John Hoover, 18, died here of injuries he suffered when he fell asleep at the wheel of his automobile and the car ran into a ditch, pinning him under it.

Don Schreffler, 18, who also fell asleep while driving, was cut about the face as his car crashed into a culvert. Asleep, he had driven an eighth of a mile past his home when the accident occurred.

HOME AGAIN!

VACATION days are over. Dad is back on the job trying to catch up with his work. Mother is getting the house straightened around and getting the kiddies ready for school. After several weeks in the country, it seems hard for either of them to get quickly settled down to home and city life. What they forgot to do yesterday should be done today. Yet they still forget.

Before they went away, the evening newspaper was an essential and important part of their home life. Dad says, "I'll order the carrier to start delivery again right away," but he forgets it. Night comes and there is no newspaper at the door. Mother says, "I'll call the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow."

But she has to get knickers for the boys, dresses and stockings for the girls, and it slips her mind. And they both miss their newspaper again.

That's why the Sun-Telegraph prints this convenient order blank.

FILL in this blank at once, mail it today and the Sun-Telegraph will come regularly to you by carrier—rain or shine, hot or cold—no matter what the weather. The Sun-Telegraph carrier boy never misses. He's always on the job.

2 DEAD, 16 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Mister Pfarr:

This may not be acceptable for your column. It is not about any politicians. I notice that whenever I send you anything about politicians you print it. This is about a photographer, Arthur Chapman. He got married recently. One morning last week he woke up and smelled smoke in his apartment. He found that Mrs. Chapman had put his clothes on to boil. That makes them white. But she forgot. When he got down to the cellar there were flames shooting out of the wash boiler, fed by his precious unmen'nables and other shirt. Being a newspaperman yourself, you will appreciate the tragedy of having the old laundry go up in smoke. Usually it's the steak or potatoes that the new bride makes a holocaust of. This does not sound so good now that it's written, but you asked for something, you old cut-up.

E. P. O'B.

DOPE:

I was reading over E. P. O'B's shoulder, and if you have the poor taste to print his billy-doo you'll print this one, too.

It shows you that some guys is gone but never forgot. John Canny, the East End boy, who was a police reporter for seven years, left town three and a half years ago. He came back last Thursday. Friday he was walking into Central Police Station when a jolly, tough cop stopped him, slapped his back resoundingly (all slaps resound) and cried aloud, too loud:

"Well, well, well, Canny! What are you doing now—working inside the office? I haven't seen you for a coupla weeks!" W. S. L.

The most touching tragedy of the summer is that which has befallen James Gravely, a tree sitter. After sitting in a Brushton tree for 1,130 hours, Master James fell out, accidentally. James is going back to school today and we'll wager a homely penny that his schoolmates will point a joking finger and shout, "He fell from a tree, he fell from a tree," forgetting that our hero did not fall for 1,130 hours. But what we started out to write was that James can hardly complain now when teacher asks him to give a sitting exhibition after school.

It might be said that the tree sitting season ends with the beginning of the school season. And we are wondering just what degree of prominence the tree sitters, virtually all of them being schoolchildren, will attain among their fellow students. Will, for instance, Stephen Moseenski, of Homestead, be more of a hero because he sat in a tree, not alone, but with a goose under his arm? Will Stephen Moseenski be more popular with the ladies than the captain of the football team? Ticklish questions, these.

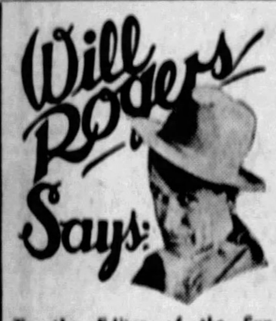
Will Rogers Says:



To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

TAHOE TAVERN, Cal., Sept. 2.

Quit hollering about how poor we are and look at the real troubles of some of these other birds. Down in the Argentine soldiers are guarding their president. Peru just loaded theirs on a battleship and advised him to head for Siberia. Brazil is in a huddle. The labor government in England is about to join the unemployed. It looks like Mexico is about the only one with no trouble at all. Yours, WILL.

PLANE HITS HAY STACK, 3 HURT

Pickup, Pilot Who Escaped Death in Mill Roof Crash, Probably Fatally Injured

Escaping death miraculously May 1 when his plane crashed through the roof of a steel mill at Duquesne, C. H. Pickup, 27, Pittsburgh aviator, was injured probably fatally when the plane he was piloting struck a haystack at Elkins, W. Va., yesterday. Two other men riding in the plane also were seriously injured. Pickup suffered spine and hip fractures.

On the first of May he was piloting a plane over Duquesne, having taken up a passenger in the hope of curing the latter's deafness. The plane fell through the factory roof, the occupants being forced to leap in parachutes. Pickup formerly was with the Curtiss Flying Service, working out of Bettis Field.

The accident yesterday occurred at Scott Field, a few moments after the plane had left the Elkins Field for Fairmont. It was rising when the lower right wing struck a haystack. The ship had gained an altitude of between 400 and 500 feet when the wing collapsed, the plane nosediving into a creek.

Those injured with Pickup were Cecil Barr, 30, of Fairmont, general manager of the Fairmont Airways, and Harold Wells, 25, also of Fairmont. Barr suffered skull, right arm and right leg fractures and internal injuries. Wells was cut on the head and has concussion of the brain.

The plane, owned by the Fairmont Airways, had been brought to Elkins yesterday to carry passengers from Scott Field.

It was being returned to Fairmont when the accident occurred.

4 FINED AFTER POLICE CHASE

Four men who were arrested early this morning at Duquesne way and Sixth street on suspicious person charges by Lieut. Zack Fleming and Precinct Detective Florence Brunner, after a chase in Fleming's car, were ordered to pay $5 each or spend five days in jail by Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court.

The men—August Intrieri, 23, of 312 Linden avenue; Joseph Seriano, 23, of 620 Altmeyer street; Peter Catto, 25, of 1501 North Canal street, and Anthony Leo, 21, of 221 Eighth street, Sharpsburg—were seen acting suspiciously at Lacock and Federal streets by Brunner, according to court testimony.

Brunner's leg was injured between the two autos in the pursuit.

Mysterious Blaze Destroys Dwelling

In one blaze, which destroyed a large barn, several horses were burned to death. Allison Park firemen were called to last night's fire.

Fire in White St. House Extinguished

Firemen were called out this morning to extinguish a small fire in the home of Bryant Prentice, a Negro, of 7 White street. The fire started from an undetermined cause on the second floor of the two-story frame dwelling. Firemen confined the blaze to one room. Police reported the damage as $200.

Boy Walking Rope Injured by Fall

Policeman Clubs Superior In Street Fight Mixup

It was so funny the police themselves enjoyed a good laugh when it was all over, even though it did hurt.

The scene was Forbes and Craig streets shortly before midnight.

The Cohen brothers, Frank, 34; Yale, 22, and Henry, 25, of 237 North Craig street, according to police, were besting a man in a battle while a large crowd looked on. Lieut. Frank McNichols, attracted by the commotion, ran from a nearby restaurant. In civilian attire, he attempted to stop the combatants, much to the displeasure of the Cohens, according to police.

The brothers dropped their first antagonist and set upon McNichols. The trio and the lieutenant were at it hammer and tongs when a patrol full of policemen from the Oakland station, responding to a riot call, arrived. The first to be seized by one of the patrolmen was Lieut. Nichols, whom the subordinate did not recognize until he had dealt him a hefty blow on the head with his mace.

Realizing his mistake, the patrolmen apologized to his superior and went after the others. After it was all over McNichols and Henry Cohen were taken to the Homeopathic Hospital, where four stitches were placed in the scalp of each.

The three Cohens and William Lester, 20, of 310 Thirty-ninth street, a newsboy who witnessed the fight, were arrested, the Cohens on disorderly conduct charges, and Lester as a material witness, police said.

Cathie Makes Decision to Marry Her Employer

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. In the office she meets Gordon Moore, junior member of the firm of Moore Brothers, engaged in important construction work for Farnsworth. Catherine is instantly attracted to him, and he to her, but what seems a serious love affair to her is just a pleasant episode to him, and she soon realizes that he has forgotten her. Her earnings in the office must go to help her family, so she is not so well dressed as the other girls and is snubbed by them, particularly by Marsha Darrow, private secretary to Farnsworth. Office gossip has it that Miss Darrow is not only angling for marriage with Farnsworth, but carrying on a flirtation with the good-looking Gordon Moore as well. However, all things drop to insignificance to Cathie when her mother falls seriously ill. She allows her sister Ruth to persuade her to borrow money from Farnsworth. Farnsworth, who is many years older than Cathie, completely overwhelms her by proposing marriage with him as a way out of all her difficulties.

CHAPTER VIII.

"Now what's the matter?"

Mary Paige was so upset at seeing Cathie walk in in the middle of the afternoon that her voice sounded harsh and angry. It was because she was flustered at being caught in the steamy kitchen in the midst of the ironing, after she'd promised to send all the flat pieces out to be mangled, and to lie down and rest every day between 1 and 4. And besides . . . Cathie . . . coming home like this, in the middle of the afternoon . . . "Darlin', you're sick. Something's happened!" she cried.

Cathie looked at her out of unnaturally bright eyes that didn't see anything. Not the ironing board, nor the heaped basket of tightly rolled, dampened clothes, nor the middle blouses and house dresses, draped over chairs.

"Oh, ma, please don't fuss. It isn't anything. I had a headache and so I thought I'd come home and lie down."

And when her mother echoed "A headache!" and laid the iron on its little black iron stand and bustled over to take her hat and coat Cathie cried, "Oh, ma, DON'T. I just want to lie down. Oh, ma, please don't make me talk now. I'm so tired, and my head does ache, it does, it does!"

"I don't know what's got into our Cathie," she confided to Ruth a little while later when they were setting the table for dinner, and Cathie still shut in her room not wanting anything, not even a hot cup of tea. "She's that nervous and run down. And then this afternoon, coming home with a headache."

Uneasiness

Cathie Tries to Think Of Way Out

Ruth polished the forks and knives on a tea-towel as she laid them on the table. "It's working. I used to try to explain to her how I felt, but what's the use of talking? You've got to go through it for yourself." A long sigh. "She didn't have any trouble at the office, ma? With—with anybody? You know men aren't all like Mr. Browning—men in business. Sometimes I think—"

Ma lifted her head sharply. "You don't have to worry about Cathie. She's tired, but she'll pull through it. Cathie's wiry, like me. Go call her. She'll feel better after her dinner."

But Cathie wouldn't come. She said her head still ached too much, and she wanted to lie still in the dark.

She wanted to lie still in the cool dark and think. But the thoughts wouldn't come. Just heaviness, and a kind of wide-awake dreaming, and turning, twisting, looking for a way out .....a way out.....there must be a way out.....there always is, if you can just find it.....

Mr. Farnsworth. When Cathie thought of him the gooseflesh came out all over her. It was so scary, thinking of getting married, of getting married to Mr. Farnsworth. Funny, too .....like a movie.....marrying your boss.

A Problem

Cannot Ask for Her Mother's Advice

Funny he had never said anything to her before. Never showed he liked her. Never touched her hand, never even looked at her as if he cared. . . . and maybe he didn't. He hadn't said anything about loving her. It was about being lonely that he talked. He said he had been a widower for eleven years. He had been happy with his wife, had never thought of marrying again. Little ways she, Catherine, had reminded him of her, he said. She had been fair, too, with a trail of freckles over her nose, Cathie made him think of her again, made the old loneliness come back. He was alone in a twelve room house, now that his son was married and gone . . . "I would be very good to you," he had said, softly, as if it were hard for him to say it. . . .

That part wasn't hard to believe. He had always been good to her. Look what he had done for Ma. . . .

"Oh, ma . . . ma, if I could only ask you what to do!" But she couldn't ask ma. Ma mustn't know until it was all settled, until she could make up her mind . . . tomorrow . . . she'd have to make it up . . . she had promised . . . had gone home to think it over, and here she was not thinking at all. . . .

She pressed her burning face against the pillow. No thoughts came. Just heaviness, and that throb, throb, throb in her head.

"Is there anyone else?" Mr. Farnsworth had asked, and when she hadn't understood just what he meant at first he had added, "Anyone you care for? Anyone who loves you? Don't be afraid to tell me, my dear. It would be only natural."

"No, there is no one else," she had answered, honestly.

There wasn't. . . . Once she might have thought of Frank Prout. Everybody teased her about Frank, and once it had seemed that they might. . . might get married some day. But somehow she hadn't felt that way toward Frank for a long time and Frank. . . Frank hadn't been very kind in the long weeks that ma was sick. He had failed her. Not understanding, not caring. . . never once asking at the hospital. . . No, there wasn't anybody . . . nobody at all.

It would probably be all right to marry Mr. Farnsworth. Fifty-eight wasn't so old. The people in the office didn't think

2 HELD IN GOLD BRICK SWINDLE

Extradition papers were being prepared today for the return of Herman Steinberg and Abe Getter, captured in New York and Baltimore respectively, after a two-year search by city detectives.

They are accused of swindling Mrs. Laura Shauffer, a widow of Frankstown and Penn avenues, of $1,400 in what the detectives described as the "gold brick racket." A tin box supposedly filled with gold was given Mrs. Shaffer after she paid $1,400, detectives reported. When Mrs. Shaffer opened the box she found it filled with lead slugs, the sleuths said.

STOCK STARS LIKE CITY

Two recent arrivals in Pittsburgh's theatrical world, Paul McGrath and Jean May, George Sharp's stars for the coming season, seem destined to become popular with the public.

Both declare that they like Pittsburgh. Neither has been here before as a member of a stock company. Pittsburgh is not new to McGrath, for he prepared for his stage career at Carnegie Tech. Miss May also has been here before.

The two players were brought to the Pitt Theater this year in accordance with Sharp's policy of presenting new faces to the audience each season. Miss May said:

"We expect our Pittsburgh stay to be very pleasant."

They opened on Labor Day in "Rebound," a comedy.

Duncan's wife, Gertrude, 34, and their two children, Norma Jane, 7, and Dale, 3, suffered probable fractured skulls and broken legs. Duncan sustained a fractured nose and severe lacerations of the body. Robertson, a cripple, and his companion, Mildred Orcher, 28, of Galveston avenue, also suffered fractured skulls. DEADLOCK ENDS IN UNANIMOUS COUNCIL VOTE

Low Rate Foes Yield, Claim Compromise, But Burgess Sees Political Motive

Coraopolis taxpayers will have a 11-mill borough levy for 1930, a reduction of one mill from 1929, Council last night agreed after a four months' deadlock. An ordinance setting the millage was unanimously passed at the Council meeting. At previous sessions Council had been divided four on each side.

Councilmen who had stood firmly for the 12-mill levy said after the meeting last night that they voted for the reduced rate only after they had won their fight to have the water receipts kept in a separate fund so that important water improvements might be made.

Burgess Fred C. Gangloff, who led the fight for the tax reduction, claimed those opposed to the move capitulated through "political expediency." This assertion was denied by the opposing faction.

PLANE CRASHES ON MOUNT

INDEPENDENCE, Cal., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Jack Schneider, Fresno pilot, and Floyd Shellabarger, state ranger, returned to Independence today after escaping injury in a forced landing of their plane near Mount Whitney, Cal., where they had flown on an errand of mercy.

Schneider and Shellabarger said their plane had been wrecked yesterday in a forced landing in a creek near Mount Whitney after they had dropped medical supplies at the emergency camp where Ed Jordan and Donald Downs were being treated for serious injuries received in a landslide last week.

Neither flier was injured. They returned here on horseback. Schneider said motor trouble made it impossible for their plane to return over Shepherd's pass to Independence after dropping the supplies.

Jordan and Downs, the most seriously injured of a party of four men trapped by the avalanche, were said to be recovering.

HOLDUP THREAT BRINGS ARREST OF SUSPECT

Armed Man Taken Downtown After Taxi Driver Tells Of Overhearing His Plan

Penniless and hungry, Robert Brown, 24, of New York, started out this morning to obtain funds, police say, with the aid of a revolver. An alleged boast that he would find a prospective victim within a few moments, overheard by a taxi cab driver, resulted in Brown being held in Central Police Station pending a hearing today.

Brown, a guest at the American House, Liberty avenue, was standing in front of the William Penn Hotel when he made the boast. An hour later, when he again sauntered up in front of the hotel, a driver who claimed to have heard him make the boast informed a house detective. Brown was taken into the hotel office and City Detective William Best summoned.

Police say Brown declared he was broke and hungry and admitted he had decided to stage a holdup. The loaded revolver was found in his pocket, police said. According to Detective Best, Brown admitted serving 18 months at the Elmira (N. Y.) Reformatory, for robbery.

END PERCHING AFTER 48 DAYS

The school bells summoned four Negro boys from their Brushton tree-tops yesterday. The quartet returned to earth at 6 p. m.

They had spent the summer up there. Robert and Lawrence Gravely, 10 and 11, of 631 Sickles street, and Sam King, 14, of 41 Wandless street, claim a record aloft—1,154 hours or a full 48 days. James Gravely, 14, tumbled down inadvertently Sunday, so that means he has only 1,130 hours—or 47 days.

Brushton School called the younger pair of boys. James Gravely registers at Peabody High School today. King goes to Herron Hill Junior High School.

Aside from being a little dizzy when they stood on the ground again last night, the boys felt fine. They agreed:

"We're ready for school."

BETTY 73 HOURS ATOP POLE

Five cents a look through field glasses from Liberty avenue today was the city's latest racket as natives and visitors craned their heads skyward to see Betty Fox atop the Fort Pitt flagpole. And business was brisk for the ambitious owner of the glasses.

CANARY 'LICKS PLATTER'

After Jimmy Paulatt, 18 months old, of 1107 Haslage avenue, Spring Hill, gets through eating his meals, his pet canary, "Sunny," cleans up the crumbs.

The bird doesn't clean up the crumbs in the ordinary sense of the word—that is by eating them in his cage as most canaries are willing to do.

On the other hand, "Sunny" must be liberated from his gilded prison before he gets an appetite. Once this is done he flies over to his little master's high-chair, bids a top of the morning to him with a golden song and prepares to indulge his uncanary-like appetite.

Jimmy's mother, Mrs. Gustave Paulatt, has had "Sunny" for about a year. For several months he was content to sing his song from his cage. Now he must be liberated. "Sunny's" favorite bathing place is the kitchen sink.

The prisoners will be arraigned before justices of the peace and will be prosecuted in the state courts, it was reported.

Camera Question Box

Today's question—Does the lack of demonstrations by labor organizations on Labor Day indicate that organized labor is losing ground or are such demonstrations now unnecessary to show the powers of labor?

M. J. MARTIN, elevator operator, North Side—I think that some sort of demonstration is a good thing and a few parades and things of that sort would insure a better standing for organized labor.

M. J. Martin

A. LEWIS, jeweler, Pittsburgh—There should still be demonstrations like the ones that used to be held in order to show that the labor class is still united in just as strong a manner as before.

A. Lewis

MRS. IRAL HUNTER, clerk, Chicago—If demonstrations are going to help organized labor then we ought to have more of them. I hope organized labor isn't losing ground—we need much more of it.

Mrs. I. Hunter

MISS ALYCE MIZERA, clerk, Chicago—If organized labor needs something of that sort to hold its ground then we should do anything within reason to be sure that it doesn't lose grip at all.

Miss Mizera

EDWARD LEIBERT, electrician, Hazelwood — Organized labor has reached a sufficiently high point now, I think, that any demonstrations would be unnecessary to assure its position.

Edw. Leibert

HARRY FRISS, jeweler, East End—The more intelligent the people get the less they care to have demonstrations. Work is done in a more systematic way now, and demonstrations don't always bring the best results.

LUCKY GIRL

he was too old to marry. Marsha Darrow didn't.

Cathie smiled a little in the dark, thinking how mad Miss Darrow would be. Miss Darrow with her hundred-and-twenty dollar suits, and her permanent waves, and her manicures . . . Miss Darrow wanted too much . . .Mr. Parnsworth, and the other one. . . Gordon Moore.

Cathie's weak little smile faded. . .Gordon Moore. . . Her mind went back to that April day when she went celebrating with him. . .with a Gordon Moore in a gray suit and a tie that was a sort of heather color . . . And the thought came to her that it would be worn out now, thrown away, probably. . .Somehow the tears sprang to her eyes when she thought of that. . . of that heathery gray suit, hanging up in a Salvation Army storeroom maybe. . .ready to be given to some tramp. . .If it only could have been he, instead of Mr. Parnsworth. . .

Makes Decision

To Marry Her Employer Within Fortnight

For a long time she lay motionless. She wasn't crying, but the tears oozed through her tight-shut eyes, soaking the pillow.

Silly, silly dreams . . . What a fool she'd been to ever think of him . . . yes, and what a fool she'd be to let a school-girl crush haunt her whole life. . .

Besides this was no time for dreams. Not with Eddie writing from South America, saying he could get into something good down there if he had the capital to buy into a business, and Jean growing out of all her clothes, and Ruth ranting about night school and looking like a little old lady already, with the worry lines around her mouth, and her strained eyes. . .

Cathie got up and washed her face, letting the cold water run over it, soothingly, refreshingly.

Ma and Ruth were still sitting over the teacups at the kitchen table when she came in, blinking a little in the light.

"There! The rest did you good!" ma exclaimed happily, noting that Cathie had brushed her bright hair until it crinkled all over her head in glittering, glorious masses of light, and that her eyes, though shadowed, were once more tranquil and clear.

"Yes, the headache's gone," Cathie said, and sat down at her place, to take the cup of tea that ma was already pouring.

In the morning she went straight to Mr. Farnsworth's office.

He was deeply moved. He took the neat white handkerchief out of his pocket and wiped his glasses. "God knows I shall try to make you happy," he said. "And if you ever come to regret it I shall not hold you."

For a minute she thought he was going to kiss her, and her whole body stiffened. But he didn't kiss her. He just reached out his hand. She did not remember ever having touched him before. His hand was warm and dry and hard. She found herself squeezing it, taking comfort in its strength and gentleness.

"When—do you want to be married?" she asked, evenly.

"I don't know why there should be any delay. Next week or the week after?"

Cathie went out, and back to her desk. She typed the letters she had left from yesterday. Mr. Farnsworth was going to marry her next week or the week after. She tried to keep her mind on the letters, but sometimes she couldn't, and whenever she forgot to type she felt Miss Darrow's light eyes on her, boring, boring into her very soul.

NEWEST EVENING WRAPS FOR FALL ARE RICH AND REGAL

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Sept. 2.—It is quite excusable and quite easy to be all wrapped up in wraps this season, for the new autumn crop is both rich and regal, both as to fabric and embellishment. Evening wraps are longer than ever without being heavy or overwhelming. This is avoided by an absence of fulness. The voluminous evening cloak seems to have vanished. Line is the principal element in the sartorial picture. Rich velvets will enhance the evening scene, and sumptuous furs will continue to make luxuries ever so much more popular necessities. Florentine sleeves and de Medici collars are obvious reminders that the modern age can gratefully follow from the picturesque modes of the Middle Ages, and combine such details with the styles obtaining today in a harmonious blend. Ermine and fox remain the most popular pelts, they are both flattering and becoming to all types. Of course there will be some sable, mink and kolinsky, but these skins do not seem to be so in demand as the other furs named.

BOTH OF THE EVENING wraps sketched at the ateliers of two famous dressmakers are notable for their dignified and distinctive elegance. The gracious and sumptuous wrap from Redfern (at the right) is of rich wine colored silk velvet with loose-hanging Florentine sleeves of ermine and a shallow de Medici collar of the same snowy pelt. The entire wrap is lined with a heavy white satin. The coat is fitted easily to the figure and rounding down towards the back trails slightly behind. It is shown with a white dress.

THE OTHER LUXURIOUS wrap is from Jane Regny. It is of black velvet heavily trimmed with black fox. The coat dips in back and trails slightly giving a sophisticated line which is accentuated by the deep and cleverly handled border of fur. Although all black, there is a rich, rather than a sombre, note about this model.

Trustees to Operate Slick Oil Properties

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Trustees for the late Thomas B. Slick, independent oil operator, have announced that his organization will continue to operate and develop the oil properties, in line with the old policies and without change in the present organization.

Management of his estate, under the terms of his will, was left in the hands of the widow, C. F. Urschel and Arthur A. Seeligson.

Slick died in Baltimore. The bulk of his estate, between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000, was divided between Mrs. Slick and their three children.

MISS HARD-BOILED

Adams Ignores Commands Of Raquel's Employer

CHAPTER XLII

Raquel and Bertie Adams skirted the dance floor in the garden of Chateau Madrid. They were nearing the table at which they had left Alphonse and Greta, when the rose Raquel had taken from the bowl slid from under the black lace strap of her gown and fell at Bertie's feet.

He stooped to pick it up and would have returned it to her. Something in her eyes arrested him.

"May I?" he asked, raising the rose to the lapel of his evening coat.

By the merest drooping of her creamy lids she gave him the permission he sought. He fastened the rose securely in the buttonhole.

To Alphonse that rose, which had destroyed with a single stroke the somberness of Raquel's costume and turned it into a gala gown for a dashing señorita, was a red flag of revolt.

It broke down the resistance he meant to give to his desire. If he could twist his fingers around the throat of this insouciant youth; if he could pick up that defiant woman in the mystery of lace and carry her away in his arms to his treasure trove in the Champs Elysees!

Alphonse Ignored

He lowered his head so that his eyes were pin-points of hate beneath his bushy brows.

"You will return the rose to Mademoiselle Raquel," he shot at Bertie Adams unexpectedly.

For the briefest second Bertie showed the confusion of such a blunt attack. Then generations of Adamses, bred to face the enemy with courage if worthy, with disdain if unworthy rallied to his assistance.

"You assume authority you do not possess," he said evenly. "Only Miss Rojos herself has the privilege of depriving me of the favor."

"Return it," Alphonse snarled. "Now—at once."

"Monsieur behaves like a child," Bertie's strong chin stood out clearly. "The rose will remain where it is, unless Miss Rojos—"

He turned to Raquel, giving her opportunity to extricate herself at his expense, if she thought it wise to do so.

"You may wear the rose," she said. She spoke as languidly, as indifferently, as though the blinding jealousy, the shaking rage, of the man across the table did not concern her. Nor did it at the moment.

"Fools," she told herself, "no longer bait me. They only annoy. Make me long to be clear of their grimacings and their mouthings."

Bertie Adams' jaw was working dangerously. How dared this fussy dress designer rap out orders, as if he owned her, just because she worked for him? As if she were his chattel. Maybe Raquel could handle Alphonse, but he needed a lesson. One he'd remember.

Raquel touched Bertie's arm, waved him toward the empty chair the waiter had placed at the table to hold her bag and Greta's. The gesture was provocative, imperious.

Greta Falls

"I'd like something cool," she said, though her tone left a doubt of her need for what she asked. "That was a gallop of a dance, wasn't it?"

Bertie sat down with alacrity. Signaled a waiter. To do so was a breach of good taste, he knew, since Alphonse was the host at the table. But if the cad-ger wanted to behave like a boor, browbeating women, then he must be treated like a boor. And Raquel wanted him—Bertie—to stick it out. It was enough that she wanted him.

"Gosh," Greta said with a belated attempt to save the situation by camouflaging it with comedy, "that was a swell scene. When are you going to play it again? John Barrymore and Lon Chaney couldn't have done it better."

For once Greta's irrepressible spirits clattered to the floor. Not one of the three at the table found use for her well-intentioned cue. Failure irked her. Her mettle was laughter. Glumness, glowering faces, she would not long accept.

"Hey, hey," she said, wriggling impatiently in her chair, "Tune out the old dirge, will you? Let's eat, drink and play whoopie. We can bury the body tomorrow."

Alphonse rose abruptly.

"If the ladies will excuse me," he was striving desperately to recover his usual sauvity, "that is unless they wish to return to their hotels—"

He waited expectantly.

"Thank you, Monsieur. I shall remain for another dance or two. The night is too lovely to be spent indoors." Raquel could smile at him as she said it.

"Then I'll stay and save my boy friend Bertie from the hot mamma over there, the one with the bloated diamonds. She's trying to win him for herself," declared Greta.

Alphonse disappeared into the Chateau.

Bertie Apologetic

"Sufferin' cats!" Greta erupted. "That's a raw one. Alphonse has taken his little red wagon and gone home. And he's left Bertie with the check."

"Oh, no," Raquel protested.

"Oh, yes. I thought they only pulled that stuff in the movies. And is he peeved? Say, I'll bet he's blown up out in the Bois."

Bertie Adams watched Raquel.

"If there are any disagreeable results," he said, "if he makes a move to discharge you, I'll see—"

"Put it in the ice box, old top," advised Greta. "He'll cool off. These Frenchies always do."

"I'm sorry I came," Bertie's tone was apologetic.

"You are?" Greta drew herself up dramatically. "Well, I like that. Look who's here!" Her sharp eyes described a figure hovering at the edge of the dance floor. "My pet geegalow."

She was off in a flurry of orchid tulle, swaying a path that intercepted, with every appearance of accident, that of a thin young man with dark, wavy hair and lips like a woman's.

"I wish they'd play a tango," Raquel said. A musician was testing the strings of his violin.

"Are you sure, Raquel, that you want to stay?" Bertie Adams asked. He was uneasy for her. She was such a thoroughbred.

"Please, let's not speak of it—the silly tantrum of Monsieur again," she said. The request was a command.

"Then let's dance. You see, they have given you your wish. They are playing a tango."

Fay King Portrays Destructive Effects of Panic by Mismanagement

LAST MINUTE RUSHES ARE AN EXTREMITY A SENSIBLE PERSON NEVER IMPOSES UPON HIMSELF OR OTHERS
FIVE MINUTES OF PANIC ARE MORE INJURIOUS THAN HOURS OF STEADY WORK
RAGE IS MENTAL PANIC IN WHICH REASON TAKES FLIGHT AND A BAWL-OUT ACCOMPLISHES LESS THAN CALM CRITICISM
FAY-MING

By FAY KING

Nothing is worse than panic. It should always be avoided.

Whether it expresses itself in extreme fear, anger, remorse or haste, it is self destroying and disorganizing.

Twelve hours of steady, calm, hard work is not as exhausting as one moment of panic.

Panic accomplishes nothing. It can undo everything!

Always arrange your plans so that you do not make yourself the victim of a last minute rush and by your thoughtlessness impose panic upon others who must carry out your orders.

Those who in a panic of rage unreasonably bawl out their subordinates lack the foremost quality of leadership, which is calmness under the most trying circumstances.

In one moment of panic we say and do those things that we regret forever.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Mrs. Cosgrove Is Fearful For Her Brother's Life

There was something in Mrs. Cosgrove's restrained calm as she spoke of the uncertainty hanging over her household which brought home to me the imminence of Robert Savarin's death far more forcibly than the wildest hysteria could have done.

"He—is so near the end, then?" I asked.

"It is his heart," she explained. "If it were not for that there might be hope for him. But—as it is—they have warned us—it may stop at any time."

"Then," I asked fearfully, "will not a sudden shock, like Lillian's appearance—" I left my question unfinished, but Mrs. Cosgrove answered with decision.

"It's just as likely to give him a false strength for a little time," she said, and I remembered Katherine's dictum. "And then, of course, his physician has left powerful stimulants for use in an emergency. He has instructed the nurse to give them to him if anything should happen in the household which might be a shock to him."

She stopped and looked at me meaningly.

"I told her just before you came to administer one," she said.

"Does that mean" I asked, "that you wish Lillian to come over at once? I'll go after her immediately."

"No," she said. "The nurse said not for an hour. I had to tell—her—something of the circumstances." She stopped and looked at me appealingly.

"Of course," I said quickly.

"She advised" — Mrs. Cosgrove was picking her words slowly—"that you come to see Robert first, saying that you bring a message from Lillian and then prepare him gradually for her appearance."

I hoped that Mrs. Cosgrove did not see me wince at the prospect of this unexpected ordeal, and I made my answer hasty and fully approving.

"Count on me for anything," I told her heartily. "I will go back now and try to persuade her to eat a little of Mrs. Hasbrouck's hot supper. Then I will bring her over and go upstairs first to see him. In that way she will be so near that he will not have to wait a minute to see her after I tell him that she is here."

"That is a very good arrangement," Mrs. Cosgrove said. "But I remember you always as resourceful and thoughtful."

Her calm friendliness was like a warm cloak tempering the desolate chilliness investing our errand. It heartened me to say something of Lillian's qualms before the two women should meet.

"Thank you," I said gratefully. "You embolden me to ask you something for Lillian."

I stopped, and she looked at me steadily, her whole attitude one of watchful attention.

"Lillian thinks, naturally," I began, "that you may feel a perfectly justifiable resentment toward her because of—"

She put up her hand in a protesting gesture which stopped my little speech most effectually.

"That is all past," she said with finality. "I do not wish her to know it—there is no need to tell her now—but I was resentful at first—unreasonably so—but I worshipped my brother, and I could not bear to see him suffer as he was suffering. I am a just woman, however, and I soon came to realize that with his peculiar views made more rigid by his age and his long affliction, he never could have been happy with Lillian. No, it is far better as it is—better to have him go out loving her tenderly than to die embittered as he must inevitably have done if they had married. And they could have had but a few years together anyway. This trouble of Robert's is of long standing. It is remarkable that he has lived this long."

A cold little fear which had been with me since I had read Robert Savarin's letter to Lillian slunk away from my heart.

"Then Lillian is not to blame—" I began.

"Not for anything," Mrs. Cosgrove said decidedly. "Tell her that from me, and say that I am waiting for her—without any change in my feeling toward her."

I took back that message to Lillian, but I did not deliver it until after her husband had caught his bus. He was just finishing his supper when I came back to the house, and he had time only for the reassurance as to Mrs. Cosgrove's attitude toward Lillian, which he had demanded before consenting to go.

"That's splendid," he said as I stood with him on the veranda waiting for the bus—he had said goodby to Lillian in her room upstairs. "And I haven't any fears about Lil as long as you're on the job. Remember, if she needs me telephone me immediately. I'll drop everything and come to her."

The big bus came around the corner and he ran down the path to board it. In another five seconds he was gone, and I was on my way to Lillian's room to deliver the message from Robert Savarin's sister.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, September 3

The sidereal operations for this day must be read as having an adverse influence. There may be opposition and hostility from many quarters, open and secretive. Although the general trend of events is stirring and far-reaching, there is hint of sudden change or travel, but these may not be of a profitable nature; per contra, the finances are critically aspected, and there may be losses through speculation, insecure investments, fraud or litigation.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for a general effort to safeguard the interests and finances from many unprofitable and perilous influences.

A child born on this day, while, perhaps, energetic, ambitious and clever in many directions, should have sound economic and commercial principles instilled.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Indian Summer Musings.

Never try to rob another woman of your husband's affections—because, it's just a foolish waste of time.

Women are supposed to be more jealous than men; but, if that were true, the "It-Girl" of the movies would be as cordially envied and disliked by her own sex as the "Crooning Tenor" of the radio is by so many men.

A woman loves each man in her life in a different way from the one before; but a man's heart appears to be like an old-fashioned music-box with only one love song, which he repeats for each woman in turn.

There are lots of things that a modern girl can think of, to do, more exciting than learning to cook and cultivating the virtues of forbearance and placidity—but few that will come in handier, when she finds herself tied to a husband and a kitchenette.

It's a wise young bride who will sweetly but firmly refuse to be the three things that every man first expects and afterwards hates in a wife—his alarm clock, his food censor and his curfew.

Most of the younger girls seem to be planning to have careers, these days; most of the boys appear to be concentrating all their intellectual faculties on getting more speed out of the car and finding newer and better ways of growing a mustache.

Absence may make the heart grow fonder—just at first; but it soon makes the head grow steadier and robs you of that dizzy feeling caused by the intoxication of propinquity.

Jealousy is the "separater" that skims all the cream off the top of love, and leaves it awfully weak and thin.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Informal Introduction

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When introducing my husband to a relative—say an uncle—shall I say: "Uncle John, may I present my husband, William" (or shall I say Bill, as he is most commonly called).

Or, "Uncle John, may I present my husband, Bill?" (Uncle John having heard my husband's surname previously.)

READER.

The latter form is better, far better, since, of course, it would not be necessary for you to tell the last name in this case. Better still, I think, would be the more familiar (and more family-like) "this is;" "Uncle John, this is my husband."

A Confusing Phrase

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper to say "I eat soup" or "I drink soup?"

H. G.

It is correct to say "I eat soup." Of course if you prefer to say, when you are served bouillon, that you "drink" the soup, I cannot see that you would be technically incorrect, since bouillon is drunk as we drink tea — sipping a few mouthfuls first with the bouillon spoon, and then drinking the rest of the bouillon or consomme.

Ending the Bridge Game

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I recently attended a bridge party and as the hostess did not play, will you please let me know who should have suggested when we stop? I made the remark that it was up to the hostess, but others at the table said that it would be an insult for the guests if the hostess should tell us when to stop. READER.

It is perfectly correct for the hostess to suggest that the playing is to stop, since she can indicate, for instance, that tea or supper is to be served. In other words, it is easier for her to carry out the definite plans that she has for her party—else some bridge players would probably go on playing forever!

Household Hints

Every child has his favorite foods just the same as his elders. Why not increase his pleasure in his own birthday party by permitting him to choose the menu or at least designate certain items on it? It is one way also to give him the feeling that his birthday is an event of importance.

When purchasing fish in the morning to be used for dinner, leave it in the papers in which the store man wrapped it and put the package directly on the ice. No odor will permeate the refrigerator if this is done and yet the extreme cold will keep the fish beautifully for this short time.

A metal clip placed at a convenient height over the kitchen table will be found useful to hold the recipe while mixing is being done. In this way the recipe is kept clean and out of the way during the cooking process.

When uncertain as to the size of your table for the number of invited guests, remember each person should be allowed two feet of space along the table edge for absolute comfort.

A nut pick is a handy implement for picking hard-shelled crabs.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Modern Girls Don't Want Damaged Goods For Husbands!

Are you a pretty girl? A nice girl and very, very good?

Then be sure you stay pretty and nice, and maybe some day, as a reward, Othello will "drop in" and offer you his hand and heart.

Cynthia started it, with her moan that goodness doesn't pay. Othello protests that it does and offers himself as Exhibit A to prove it.

Othello's a prize. He admits it himself. And though he may act rough, he's really serious at heart. And he likes his women refined.

Just now, of course, he isn't playing 'em this way, for a few years yet, until he's had his fling, he's picking the high steppers . . because he's "only looking for diversion." But when he's had enough of that he'll settle down with some worthy young lady who has kept herself worthy of that glorious honor.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"These few words are intended for Cynthia, whose plight seems to weigh heavily upon her. I feel that she entirely misunderstands men, and what we expect of her.

"Listen, Cynthia! I am one of those young men whom you would judge as being in the market for 'wild women.' At heart, though, I am not. Well, why the double standard then, you will ask. I will explain.

"I am 26, and have been educated both in America and abroad. I am of pure Latin blood, considerably Americanized. Among my acquaintances and friends now I number both kinds of the present-day women—the 'good' and the 'bad'. The old-fashioned and the new-fashioned. The would-be intellectuals and the never-will-be-such. I can have dates with any of them. But when I do go out I invariably pick out the wild and wooly kind. Why? Just because I am interested at present only in diversion. In short, nothing serious.

"Seriousness is really the dominating factor in my make-up; though as yet I have not let it come to the surface. This is the way of most serious-minded men, I think.

"I have learned that there are the women whose lives are dignified and clean, just as yours has been. The right-minded fellow feels this distinction, and lives up to it. He doesn't trifle with fine women with high ideals. When he wants a wild time he knows where such girls can be found. Hence the petting, smoking, drinking and what not.

"But with your kind, Cynthia, a man must be serious, upright, loyal. All of which he is only too glad to be . . . at his own set time. The men of your age haven't come to that time yet. In short, today is the hour of the wild women of your age, whose sun will set when yours rises. And yours will rise again with each new day, but theirs will have set forever.

"'Wild women' Cynthia, are an attraction to men insofar as they, and they only, can satisfy illicit masculine cravings, which a 'decent' girl should not and would not and could not do. There is no spiritual gain to be had with them. Absolutely none. And the man who takes them out doesn't want spiritual gain then. It is the jazz dancing, in a setting of lights and music; the smell of cigarette smoke that issues from painted lips in circles as insinuating as the lovely smokers, the petting, the mirth that rings in every corner. All this, Cynthia, is the reason for the seeking of 'wild women.'

"But when I feel serious, I choose to be with girls like you. It is then that I want evenings full of substance which may be conversation, a worth while movie, an opera or concert, which I enjoy so much. Or it may be books, walks, or just you there with me! I have raised you above the others because you merit it . . . and I treat you accordingly, in respect, thought, word and deed. And having found you, I keep you.

"Would you prefer to meet me on the other plane? Well, then, and good. If that's what you want. But your sun is sure to set there. Surely I'll call on you. I'll see that you have a good time. Anything, in fact. But, I'll never respect you again. This may seem harsh, Cynthia, but it's the truth. The truth among men.

"Sally has given you good advice. Live up to it. Your days are many, while those of the girls you speak of are numbered. Keep up the admirable traits, and know that back of the scenes you have a thorough and appreciative admirer—who will one day turn up at your door.

"OTHELLO."

And, so, you're going to be the answer to the Maiden's prayer! How you hate yourself, beautiful! And where have you been sleeping for the last hundred years?

Time was when your line went big. Girls actually stood around waiting for things like you to happen. Though even then they weren't so crazy about you as you thought. But you were the only available meal ticket, and what was a poor girl to do? Such as you were—and you were generally badly damaged goods—she had to take you and make the best of you. But those days are gone forever, Playful. And a smart girl nowadays doesn't fool around with funny things like you, even to keep in practice.

"You'll turn up"—will you? You, with what's left of body and mind after you have scampered through every gutter! And you expect some fine girl to give up all her youthful fun and adventure in order to stay worthy of you! And you "won't" respect her" if she doesn't. Well, well, well—what a blow that would be! And are not 3,746,298 young ladies going to bust into big wet tears at the thought? Yes, they are not, Othello. Instead they're going to hand themselves the biggest laugh they've had in many a day.

For wake up. Wonderful, and listen to news. Husbands like you have been off the lists for the last 30 years. There are a thousands funnier ways for a girl to commit suicide. Nowadays, in America, ladies do not sob with gratitude when something like you "turns up." They ring up the Board of Health and ask for the fumigation squad. Chew your nails over that!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Find the Offending Factor in Asthma.

There is seldom difficulty in recognizing an attack of asthma. The appearance of the patient and his symptoms are characteristic.

DR. COPELAND

The attack is likely to begin without warning. The patient's breathing becomes noisy and labored. He is pale and speechless. His skin is clammy. He sits with arms propped on his knees or on a chair-back, to give support to his chest muscles.

If the attack is long continued, the skin becomes more or less blue in color. The pulse is rapid, weak and possibly irregular.

After a few minutes in some cases, or several hours in others, there will be a paroxysm of coughing, when there is expelled a thin, tenacious mucus. After this the severity of the attack lessens, until the breathing becomes normal. These attacks may be repeated immediately or not come on again for days.

The medical profession has come to understand that each case of asthma must be treated individually. Of course, immediate relief is necessary in severe attacks, but the doctor will advise the best procedure.

The next step is to determine whether or not the patient is sensitive to the breathing of some irritating substance. More likely the trouble can be traced to some particular food.

Many persons are irritated by sleeping on pillows filled with rabbit hair or those filled with feathers. Other persons may be susceptible to the hair of horses, or to cat fur, or to the pollen of certain flowers or grasses.

Occasionally occupation plays a part. In a report which I read bakers were found who were sensitive to wheat protein, a sifter of green coffee beans sensitive to green coffee protein, and so on.

But in many persons the attack follows the eating of some common food, as cereals, eggs, milk, fish, and even potato.

When the offending article has been discovered it must be eliminated from the diet. If something not a food is at fault it may be necessary for the patient to move from a certain locality or to change his occupation.

Fortunately not a large percentage of persons suffer from asthma. But the victim must be studied carefully to find the offending factor.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

In her desire to appear blooming little Miss Makeup must not let her beauty ambitions run away with her. Rouge, used discreetly, will compensate for nature's stinginess when distributing rosy cheeks. Plied too diligently, the carmine pad will overreach the mark and will impart an appearance of haggardness and fatigue. The faded darling must be most cautious. Instead of youthifying, an excess of factory blushes will age her. This year's fashion in complexions calls for almost no reddening of the cheeks and an extremely light touch of the raspberry colored lipstick.

Finger nails are white and transparent; the delicate rosy color is made manifest by the blood vessels under the nails. The building material of the finger nails is supplied by the blood; when the nails break or split, some of the building material is lacking. To soften the cuticle about the pink shells that serve as finger-tip shields, apply cold cream every night. When drying the hands, push back the cuticle with an old soft towel. Better than clipping with pointed scissors.

In the old days of inside pompadours — sometimes referred to as "rats"—of coronet braids and crown puffs, a woman thought nothing of spending a half hour arranging her hair. Factory tresses were pinned to the bedspread and dressed with brush, brilliantine and hairpins. Now the hairdressers say that that it is almost impossible to promote a coiffure that requires any special attention. Snail curls, pendant ringlets, nape puffs and narrow braids are talked about and written about, but the darling dears can't be bothered with them. They're getting coiffure-lazy.

PIRATES GET DAY OF REST

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

More Duke Arc Games. Three May Be Added. Pirates Given Setback.

Shakeup in Sox Clubs. Kremer's Streak Ends. Bottomley on Block.

CITY WILL LEAD IN NIGHT FOOTBALL

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY will play plenty of night football this year, probably more than any other school in the country. The night game is a great success in Pittsburgh. Last season John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics at the institution on the Bluff, proposed the experiment and carried the idea convincingly through a wealth of skepticism, so successfully, in fact, that the Dukes will use the same plan in 1930 on a much broader scale. There is even a possibility that Duquesne will be the first college in the land to play an entire gridiron schedule under electric lights.

John D. Holahan

Seven out of 10 games have been definitely carded for moonbeam hours, and it is possible that all three of the others may be changed to the night. That move is being seriously considered, and a shift of any or all of the remaining day contests may be made at any time. Two of them are scheduled with Slippery Rock and West Virginia Wesleyan at Forbes Field, on September 27 and November 22, respectively, and the other is a meeting with Geneva, now slated to be played in Beaver Falls, on November 15.

USHERING IN THE Pittsburgh season at 8:15 p. m. on Friday, September 19, the Dukes and West Virginia University will battle it out with a white football under 28 powerful lamps at Forbes Field. Then comes the Slippery Rock game here, now booked as an afternoon event, and Detroit Institute of Teenology will follow for a night game on October 3. Elmer Layden's charges will then play abroad but still at night. The Loyola University field in Chicago will be lighted for the benefit of the Bluffites on October 10.

After this game the Dukes will go to South Bend, Ind., to see the Notre Dame-Navy clash in Notre Dame's new stadium. A special train will carry the Duquesne delegation to the scene. On their return the Red and Blue athletes will grapple with a team representing the Steel City of the South. The eleven of Howard College, Birmingham, Ala., will try to down the gridders of this steel center under the floodlights at the Pirates' park on October 17.

IN THE NIGHT game of the following week, on October 24, Catholic University's team will be here from Washington to seek revenge for the defeat suffered in Brookland Stadium a year ago. The huge and powerful University of North Dakota players will be the next night opponents, being on the bills for November 7.

Eight days later will come the game with Geneva College, now coached by Howard Harpster, former all-America quarterback at Carnegie Tech, a contest that may be turned into a night number, like that with West Virginia Wesleyan, scheduled for November 22 at Forbes Field. The Buckhannon school will be the second representative of West Virginia to be played by Duquesne. The grand finale will be against Providence (R. I.) College at Forbes Field on the night of November 26. Surely a record season for night football by one college and in one city.

Howard Harpster

THE LABOR DAY DOUBLE defeat at the hands of the Cardinals was a severe blow to Pittsburgh's chances of beating out St. Louis in the race, but if Brooklyn continues to play in-and-out ball it may still be possible for the Bucs to pull ahead of the Robins before the finish and land in the first division. These two defeats make only eight games lost by the Pirates out of the last 26 played, with Sunday's reverse at Cincinnati counted in, they have now lost three games in succession for the first time since the early August slump when they dropped five in a row to the Robins and Giants. They still have a wide margin in their favor in the season's series with the Cards, whom they have beaten 12 times in 18 games up to date.

TO SAY THAT Helen Wills Moody is not a drawing card in lawn tennis would appear to be about as absurd as an assertion that nobody goes to see Babe Ruth in baseball. Yet the officials of the West Side Lawn Tennis Club, which staged a women's national championship tournament at Forest Hills, N. Y., recently, declare they have the figures to prove that the defaulted champion is not a star attraction.

THE FINANCIAL REPORT on this year's tournament shows that the receipts totaled above $14,000, with Mrs. Moody absent from the competition, whereas in 1928, when Helen was in the play, the gate ran only a little more than $12,000. Last year was not considered in the comparisons, the officials explain, because the tourney followed the Wightman Cup matches on the same court, and Wightman Cup years always mean big gates, no matter who plays or does not play for the singles title.

THERE'S GOING TO BE a big change in Sox styles in the American League next season. The word is out that the two Hose

RACE RAINED OUT AFTER 117 MILES

By JESS CARVER, Staff Correspondent.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 2.—Rain brought about an abrupt termination of what promised to be a thrilling duel for the bag of gold in the 200-mile Labor Day A. A. A. speed test here yesterday between Billy Arnold, 1930 speed champion and Deacon Litz, veteran race pilot of Dubois, Pa. A heavy rainfall forced the A. A. A. officials to halt the grind after the field had covered 54 of the 164 laps.

When the field was flagged down, Arnold was the winner by almost a lap, with Litz second, Shorty Cantlon third and Bill Cummings, of Indianapolis, fourth. Arnold averaged 118 miles an hour for the 117 miles reeled off.

The official order of the other finishers was: Russ Snowberger, Philadelphia, fifth; Mel Kenealy, Los Angeles, sixth; Lou Moore, seventh; Lou Meyer, South Gate, Cal., eighth; Phil Pardee, Los Angeles, ninth and Speed Gardner, Pittsburgh, tenth.

SWEEP FOR ARNOLD

As a result, the triumph gives Arnold a clean sweep of all the long distance events of the year. He won at Indianapolis on Memorial Day in a 500-mile grind; was first here on June 14, Flag Day and first yesterday. His hope of winning all three major races without being pushed back into second place in any of them was shattered yesterday, for Litz caught the young Chicago pilot and, aided by a blowout suffered by Arnold, held the lead here for some 10 miles.

A field of 12 faced Starter Jack Rose, of Pittsburgh, after an hour's delay caused by intermittent sprinkles and by the usual pottering around that accompanies every auto race. As the cars roared past the stands on the first lap, Arnold was well out in front, and it looked as though he was out to repeat his easy victory of Flag Day, when he tore off to a mile lead in the first five and held it for the rest of the way.

LITZ BIDS FOR LEAD

Shorty Cantlon, who prior to yesterday, had a mathematical chance of overhauling Arnold in the race for the A. A. A. title for this year, was racing hub to hub with Deacon Litz as the leaders swung into the twelfth lap, but here Litz stepped away and began his fine bid for the lead.

Arnold had the boys by a lap at the end of 25 miles, with Litz second, Cantlon third, Meyer fourth, Russell Snowberger fifth, Stubby Stubblefield sixth and the remaining seven bunched two laps in the rear. On his twenty-sixth lap, Stubblefield broke a piston in his Allen-Miller Special and was forced out of the race. He was the second to leave the track, the veteran Jimmy Gleason withdrawing after 20 miles when he threw a connecting rod.

They tore past the 50-mile stretch with young Billy and his $30,000 Miller-Hartz Special still a mile out in front, Litz second and Lou Meyer riding third, half a lap ahead of Cantlon. The skies which had been overcast all day, looked leery indeed, and it was plain to be seen that the boys were not going to finish a 200-mile grind.

BILLY REGAINS EDGE

Then came the excitement of the day. Chugging into the fifty-eighth lap, Deacon began his great bid for the race. Slowly but surely he forced his Dusenberg to close the gap separating him from Arnold. Into the fifty-ninth they went, with Litz half a mile in the rear. As he rounded the eastern turn, Arnold was seen to suddenly cut his speed and he coasted into the pit with a flat

HULL BOXES M'TIERNAN

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

Featuring a week containing three more boxing shows, the Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, goes to bat tonight with its weekly offering one day later than usual because yesterday was a holiday.

Clyde Hull

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Clyde Hull, of Texas, come together in the 10-round windup that promises to produce a lot of lusty clouting. No one around here doubts that McTiernan can hit with telling effect with either fist, while belting is the best li'l thing Hull does. In fact, only a few years ago, Clyde was very much in the limelight as a result of draping Pete Latzo, then world champion, on the canvas several times during the course of a battle in his native state. That battle made Hull a national figure in the boxing realm and brought him many attractive matches, and he proved in them that the clouting of Latzo was no fluke.

The list of Hull's opponents sounds like a Who's Who of the welterweight division.

SMALLWOOD IN SEMI

An eight-round battle and two six-rounders complete tonight's bill. Chet Smallwood, Akron southpaw lightweight, meets Eddie Ruttman, of Wheeling, in the semi-final, and Johnny Warner, of Clairton, boxes Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, and Tiger Joe Clark, of the South Side, tangles with Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, in the preliminaries.

BUCS-CUBS OPEN SERIES TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The pardon came to late, it seems, in the case of the Pirates, who today had at least a respite, but they didn't know what to do with it, in view of their misfortunes of yesterday.

There was no baseball of any kind at Forbes Field this afternoon, but the weary Buccos, after taking two trimmings from the Cards in the holiday battles of yesterday were not in the right sort of a mood to enjoy the rest.

PLAY SLUGGISH BALL

The Pirates by winning two games Saturday drew up to within four games of second place, but they dropped one in Cincinnati Sunday and then hurried back to Forbes Field to give two of the most sluggish exhibitions in which they have participated for many moons as they took it on the chin morning and afternoon in competitions with the fast-flying Redbirds. The scores were 11 to 6 and 5 to 1.

So today, the Freebooters are far removed from the runner-up position and, to make matters more miserable for them, they look up at the fourth-place Robins and see a big gap which must be closed before they can mount to the lowest of the four money positions.

On the other hand, the next four days hold much hope for the Ensmen. Starting tomorrow afternoon the Buccos will take on the pacesetting Cubs in four battles in the Oakland Orchard.

The Bears may not have so much pepper as they clash with the Pirates in the impending series. The double defeat experienced by the Cubs yesterday and the manner in which they sustained their second setback may have an effect on the Bears' esprit de corps.

GOOD SERIES EXPECTED

In any event, the Buccos generally are tough hombres for the Bears and the coming series should be one of the best of the season in the local park.

Up to yesterday morning the Redbirds were almost as putty in the hands of the Rollicking Buccaneers. Sixteen times had the two clubs met and in a dozen of these engagements, the Ensmen walked triumphantly off the field. But when the worm did turn there was much rejoicing in the camp of the Cards, while the Pittsburgh clubhouse had much gnashing of teeth.

The rejuvenated Redbirds had no respect for anybody, as they walloped the Oaklanders twice in the holiday. Steve Swetonic fell before Flint Rhem in the forenoon fight, while Burleigh Grimes picked on Remy Kremer in the afternoon.

Rhem had the Buccos eating out of his hands until the ninth when he let up and the home boys made four runs. The Redbirds jumped off to an early lead and there was only one moment when the Pirates appeared to be in the middle of the fight—that was the fifth when Pie Traynor singled with the bases filled and only one out. But Rhem made Dick Bartell hit into a double play and from that point the big right-hander was in control of the situation.

Grimes doubtless took a keen delight in holding his former bud-

MID-ATLANTIC FLAG SERIES ON TOMORROW

SECOND HALF TITLE WON BY CLARKSBURG

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Sept. 2.—Playing brilliant ball the Clarksburg Generals took two games of a triple-header with the Fairmont Black Diamonds here yesterday and clinched the second half flag in the Middle Atlantic League. Their twin victory throws them into a play-off with Johnstown. The title series will open tomorrow at Johnstown and the second game will be played there on Thursday.

Fairmont took the morning game, 4 to 1, Slaughter being invincible in the pinches and getting flawless support. Clarksburg took the second game, 4-1, and the final, 4-2.

Andy Bednar, leading pitcher of the Western League who was recalled by the Pittsburgh Pirates, twirled the first game of the afternoon and was touch for 14 base blows, including a homer by Barry in the first.

In other games yesterday, Johnstown beat Scottdale, 6-5, only to lose the second game, 8-1; Cumberland topped Wheeling, 7-4, in the afternoon, but lost at night, 6-5, and Charleroi tripped Jeannette twice by the same score, 5-4.

Ben Sankey Due Back Here Tomorrow

Ben Sankey, youthful shortstop who filled in as utility infielder for the Pirates through a part of the race, is due back from Bridgeport tomorrow, according to an announcement of the local office today.

Sankey was loaned to the Eastern League club for a period of two weeks. He will finish out the remainder of the National League season with the Buccos. John (Hans) Lobert, former Pittsburgher and major league star, is manager of the Bridgeport club.

GRID RULES Interpretations

(This is the second of a daily feature which will take the football fans through a series of 24 plays such as may come up at any time during a regular game this fall. A better understanding of the great fall sport will be obtained by following this series closely.)

PLAY NO. 2.

In a game between the University of Florida and Georgia Tech, Crabtree, of Florida, signals for a fair catch. He then muffs the ball, picks it up and races down the field to cross the goal line.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The referee rules that a touchdown has been made because a fumbled punt which touches the ground is a free ball and the rules governing fair catches do not apply in such a case.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Well, folks, Babe Ruth better step up and wham out a few homers or he will be about as prominent as Art Shires has been the last three months. Art couldn't have been more silent if he had married a henpecking wife. And you've got to give credit to Hack Wilson for forgetting his Emily Post rules for playing center field the last World Series and then come back this year and forget there was any sunshine in his eyes when he started lamming out homers. And while you're on that subject of home run virtuosos, give a thought to Melvin Ott, who didn't do so bad with three homers in three times at bat. You can't spell a boy's name "Ought" after a performance like that.

Sport Vignettes

Local fans will be pulling for Jack Zivic, former Lawrenceville Bearcat, now making his home in Pelham Manor, N. Y., to make a fine showing in his comeback appearance against Ruby Goldstein, a corking hitter, at Henderson's Bowl, Coney Island, tomorrow night . . . . Mere mention of the name of Jack Zivic stirs fond memories in the minds of those who saw him perform in his heyday . . . . Jimmy Thomas, Negro bantamweight boxer, of the Hill, is sporting a flashy new suit because he knocked out Young Nanci recently. His manager, Abie Witz, promised the boxer he would make him a present of a suit if he would knock out Nanci, of course never thinking Jimmy would turn the trick . . . . And, after it was over, Jimmy couldn't take a joke, so he has the suit . . . . The Pirates will vouch for it that yesterday was Labor Day and nothing else but . . . . The papers are so full of the International polo matches and the America's Cup races these days that there's no room for the old foul controversy . . . . Charley Wood's shutout pitching record since he joined the Pirates has been so good that he must think he's on the wrong club . . . . Joe Tipman, of Baltimore, who at the age of 16, knocked out Terrible Terry McGovern, then the greatly feared featherweight champion, in an exhibition bout in a theater, now is managing Al Martin, a good bantamweight, of the Oriole City, and would like to show him here . . . . Tipman, by the way, is a great friend of Dr. J. A. Munster, of the North Side, the newest examining physician for the boxing commission and for years a fight fan of the first water . . . . Billy Arnold never thought he'd swim to the A. A. A. championship, as he did in that rain-interrupted grind at Altoona yesterday . . . . The regulars among the local fight fans, corresponding to the first-nighters in the theater, are planning to go to Cleveland to take in the Young Jack Thompson-Tommy Freeman battle for the world welterweight title Friday night . . . . Herman Schmidt wants to know if the International polo series will be played at the Polo Grounds.—HARRY KECK.

'PEERLESS FRED' HERE AGAIN

FRED CLARKE — ADAM COMOROSKY — CHICK FRASER

Look who's here! Well, if it isn't ol' Fred Clarke, one of the greatest players in the history of baseball and for almost 20 years manager of the Pirates. He arrived in town yesterday with Mrs. Clarke en route to the Oldtimers' game to be staged in Boston next Monday. Honus Wagner also will play in the battle. Comorosky now holds down Clarke's old position in left field for the Corsairs, while Fraser, Pirate scout, is Fred's brother-in-law.

ARNOLD WINS AT ALTOONA

right front tire, and past him whizzed Litz, into the lead and apparently destined to stay there. But Dame Fortune quickly changed her grin to a scowl as far as the Dubois deacon was concerned, for Arnold had hardly sped from the pit with his new tire than Litz limped in with a rear blowout.

On the sixty-first lap, Arnold regained his lead and fighting off the renewed challenges of Litz increased it until at the end of 75 miles he was again a mile to the good.

Starter Rose gave the boys the checkered flag as Arnold and Litz started their ninety-fourth lap and the race was over. A driving rain was drenching drivers and spectators alike. The excessive speed which Arnold and Litz had maintained from the start until the eightieth lap, which attained 120 miles an hour over a period of 40 laps, was cut to 113 as the grind was halted.

CANTLON THIRD

Shortly before the white flag was given the field orders reduced speed. Cantlon swept into third place. Bill Cummings, of Indianapolis, lasted to finish fourth.

There were no accidents yesterday, the biggest thrill of the day coming when Litz' tire blew out and the Dusenberg skidded and twisted momentarily out of control, but Litz righted his mount and averted a serious jam. The following drivers and their cars started:

In qualifying last week, Arnold set a new world record for two-man racing cars by traveling 124.6 miles per hour.

Arnold's prize money amounted to $4,500. Litz took down $2,000 for second, Cantlon won $1,500 for third and Cummings $1,000 for fourth.

NEW CASTLE RACE OFF

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 2.—The 100-mile auto race scheduled at the Fairgrounds track here yesterday afternoon was postponed until Saturday. A morning rain made the track very slippery and the drivers insisted upon the postponement.

AUTO DRIVER HURT

SOMERSET, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP.)—Mansi Pusto, 28, of Altoona, was in hospital here last night in a critical condition as a result of an accident in an automobile race in which he was participating at Jennerstown, near here, yesterday. He suffered internal injuries and a probable fracture of the skull. Physicians held little hope he would live.

Pusto lost control of his car while driving in the tenth lap of a 75-mile race. The car crashed through a fence and was wrecked.

Roscoe Ford, of Hollywood, Cal., won the race in a Frontenac Special, while second place was taken by Speed Kinsey, of Johnstown, Pa., who was driving a Model A Ford. Third place was won by R. P. Mothis, of Cumberland, Md., in a Chevrolet Special.

Louis Sahone, of Connellsville, Pa., skidded off the track at a curve and was slightly injured. G. Stuart, of Pittsburgh, also crashed through the guard rail on a curve, but later brought his car back into the race.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 2.—Dooley Mitchell, curly-haired star of Georgetown University, blasted out straight set victory over brilliant young B. F. Arkle, Wheeling ace and defending champion, here yesterday to land men's singles honors of the second annual Morgantown Country Club invitation tennis tournament. The final verdict read 6-3, 6-4, 7-5, and the tussle was beyond doubt or peradventure the finest exhibition of driving and all-around fast play that Northern West Virginia has beheld in a decade, if not in all history.

Miriam Sullivan, Pittsburgh Athletic Association and St. Mary's College luminary, carried off women's singles laurels for the Steel City by dint of a 6-1, 6-4 triumph over Mary Ebeling, clever Wheeling girl, while Arkle and his home-town partner, Bill Abrams, flashed magnificent doubles to smash out victory over Mitchell and his mate, Major Hills of the Army Leech Cup squad, in an abbreviated two-man finale, 6-3, 6-0.

PITT, TECH GRIDDERS WORK

PANTHERS GET FIRST PAIR OF PLAYS

CAMP HAMILTON, Windber, Pa., Sept. 2.—With the first day's preliminaries out of the way, the Panther football men began their fall work in earnest today, Head Coach Jock Sutherland, giving them their first two plays. Three teams ran through signal practice. Dummy scrimmage, calisthenics, wind sprints, fundamentals and individual instruction in both defensive and offensive tactics were on the program. Yesterday the squad got .two large sessions of calisthenics, sprints and fundamentals and between times were busy with the fitting on of their new uniforms and posing for the picture men.

As early as this, it appears that Capt. Eddie Baker is going to be one of the busiest Panthers this fall. He is being given plenty of coaching in punting, goal kicking and passing. He is fairly certain of being the regular quarterback, but there are few others who can lay claim to a regular position at this stage of the development.

WEATHER WARM

The weather is pretty warm up here in the mountains, about the warmest the Panthers have run into since coming here. For that reason they are working out for the present in trunks and sleeveless shirts, though they have had their new uniforms on both days.

The new Panther toggery is quite attractive, and Pitt this season can boast of one of the best-dressed teams on the gridiron. The numbers are bigger than last year, and the trousers have two blue elastic stripes in the back.

Warren Heller, sophomore halfback, is being drilled along with Captain Baker in kicking. Pitt is weak in this department and Andy Gustafson, new backfield coach, will stress kicking practice at each session. Joe Donchess and Ray Montgomery, last year all-Americans in Pitt uniforms, are swinging into their coaching duties nicely, giving the line candidates individual instructions in defensive work, and Bill Kern, the veteran of the line coaches, is working with the tackles.

CARNEGIE WORKS

Labor Day may be marked as a holiday on most calendars, but evidently the Carnegie Tech football coaches never heard of such a thing. It was just another day in the training routine for them and their 40 young charges, and the usual "two a day" was on the books at Tech Field, with Wally Steffen, advisory coach, arriving on the scene from Chicago, as is his annual custom.

The judge addressed the squad as the piece de resistance of the morning session. There were few words, but plenty of action in the afternoon.

Waddell took the line and Steffen chaperoned the backs through more than two hours of steady work. This method of procedure likely will be followed today, and for several more days until it is deemed time to bring the backs and the line together to start working out the plays that will be used during the coming campaign.

Of the ball carriers who were expected to report yesterday, only John Graveno, the Cleveland midget, failed to get into camp. All of last year's boys—McCurdy, Karcis, Morbito, Thayer Flanagan, Eyth, Armentrout, Carlson, Ewing and Ziegler, were on hand, and the recruits who checked in were Kavel, Dueger, Goldberg, Vorderburg and Schmitt. Eyth was given permission to miss afternoon practice, but even with he and Graveno absent, 13 backs were on the field.

WAR FROM START

It looked like mid-season when Waddell assembled two lines, placed a man behind each to carry the ball, and let them go to it. It was none of this tag and pat stuff. The boys declared war from the start, and time had to be called several times for slight injuries, mostly bumps.

Jacques Croisant, the promising Freshman end, wore a face mask to protect a recent injury.

Close watch was kept on some of the younger linemen during this scrimmage. Bert Pouncey, the reformed fullback, who is now working at guard; Burns and Baushke, tackles, and Sample were active in the mixups, with Dreshar and Highberger, of the oldtimers, doing their bit.

TECH MAKES PROGRESS IN PREPPING FOR SEASON

The Carnegie Tech football squad has developed so rapidly in its training grind that the boys put on a scrimmage yesterday to celebrate the arrival of Advisory Coach Steffen from Chicago. Whitey Ziegler, halfback, is carrying the ball.

Long's Sport Comment

clubs, the Red and White, are going to be made over almost completely before the curtain goes up for 1931.

Bob Quinn

In the Boston case, the announcement is official. President Bob Quinn himself has let it be known that he is done with the present combination, and that he means to have a brand new club for the year ahead.

QUINN ADMITS THAT his customers deserve better things than the 1930 team has been able to give them. Thy have patronized a tail-ender so generously that the owners expect to finish out of the red for the season, and Bob promises to reward them with an improved club. He is after better players and doesn't care where he gets them. The entire scouting staff has been sent out in quest of new material to replace the present workers. Almost a whole new lineup is the objective and few of this season's regulars are to be retained. Quinn has not yet committed himself as to whether or not the reconstruction plans include a new manager to succeed Heinie Wagner.

THE SITUATION IS much the same in Chicago, where the Cubs naturally have been getting the play, with the result that the year has not been a very good one for the White Sox financially. Manager Donie Bush has the full support of Owner Charles A. Comiskey in a plan to rebuild the club for the second season of his two-year contract. There is to be a general house-cleaning, it is said, and a number of men now on the roster will be playing elsewhere next spring.

Bush hopes to convince other managers that some of his players would do much better in different environment and he will get busy on a series of trade projects as soon as the season is over. Donie mentions as his chief needs, a first-class catcher, a first-baseman who can hit, a man for second, short or third, and an outfielder with a wallop and at the same time the necessary fielding skill.

THE DEFEAT HE suffered in the afternoon portion of the holiday bill at Forbes Field kept Remy Kremer from reaching the 20-mark in victories for the season, but with 19 wins against 10 losses he still leads the National League pitchers in games won.

Jim Bottomley

The reverse also broke a winning streak for Kremer, as he had won eight successive games previously. It was only his second defeat in his last nine games.

ONLY THE CUBS and the Reds remain to be seen in action in Pittsburgh before the season ends, the Cardinals having made their final appearance of the year at Forbes Field, following the completion of the Pirates' home schedule with the Eastern clubs. It is said to be strongly probable that when the Cards are next seen here in the spring of 1931 there will be at least one notable change in their lineup. In spite of the denials of the St. Louis club officials, the report persists that First Baseman Jim Bottomley is on the block and will not be with the Redbirds in 1931. In the Labor Day games here Bottomley appeared to have recovered from the ills and injuries that handicapped him earlier in the year and to be back in something close to his best form, but his improvement has not silenced the rumor that the St. Louis club has decided to part with him and that a deal for his transfer to another National League outfit may be expected during the winter.

Grimes' success deprived Kremer of his desire to register his twentieth victory of the season. Remy, however, had not much license to win. The veteran was sick during the morning and he was not himself when he took to the slab in the afternoon fight.

GRID MEETING TONIGHT

Tonight will see the final preseason meeting of the Western Pennsylvania independent gridiron conference. The following teams are expected to attend: West View, Hope Harvey, Majestics, Burns A. A., East Pittsburgh, McChesneytown, Irwin and Monessen Olympics.

Many problems will be settled at this session, but fans are solidly behind the movement to put sandlot football on a higher plane.

Of course, the introduction of night football should help the project in many quarters, and it will certainly eliminate these all-night sessions, trying to bring the leading clubs together.

In past years all of the leading clubs, without exception, have played four or five games with setups, one-sided scores being made to bring the teams up to a point where other contenders could be met.

In the conference this will be eliminated. The session will start late enough to let all of the teams play two games prior to the opening date. The outcome of these games would not injure the standing of the clubs.

Most of the managers and thousands of the fans are keenly interested in seeing the conference get under way so that a compact football schedule can be played.

The game is getting so big financially, however, that something of this nature will have to come to protect the teams, players, fans and managements. The conference looks like the big bet.

Under this system, the league swings into action September 28 and will finish the Sunday after Thanksgiving. Ten games will be played, five at home and five abroad.

The card is complete for the Hickey Park show next Thursday with the signing of Pont Ballot to box Don Frazier in the second bout.

"IT CAME FLOATING IN THRU THE DOOR, I SAW IT! IT'S FROM THE GHOST! IT'S WRITTEN WITH BLOOD

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Robin Dale sets out to investigate the reappearance of Scrimley's ghost in a sparsely-inhabited section of Long Island. Scrimley was reputed to have been a boatswain on Capt. Kidd's private ship. Upon an earlier appearance of the ghost a tragic death had resulted.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER II.

When Robin Dale found himself on Merrick Road again, heading eastward, he was in jubilant spirits. The story was shaping itself even better than he had anticipated. But, in the most vivid flights of his imagination, he could never have foreseen the unearthly, demoniacal occurrences which were about to take place, to follow one upon the other in ghostly procession.

At Old Gabriel's suggestion Dale's destination was the dwelling just beyond Boyleston's, to the east. It was the old man's opinion that the reporter would not find welcome lodging at the Boyleston farm—might even arouse some antagonism because of his mission, but that directly adjoining was Ed Rolfe's cottage, where lodgers were taken.

Dale slowed down as he drove by and through the farm. A huge sign blazoned the name and the fact that it was the largest of its kind in the world. There was a culvert in the road through which a tiny stream flowed. To the right the stream had been widened so that it became a huge pond to which led screen-enclosed runways from a long row of neat, white-washed huts. In each runway were countless snow-white ducks, and the runways ran endlessly toward the south.

Dale found Ed Rolfe's cottage readily enough. It was Queen Anne style, frame with wooden shingles and a verandah that ran across the entire front of the place. The cottage was at the end of a side road within 100 yards of the beach.

Ed Rolfe, a huge, red-faced man, showed Dale to a large room on the second floor. The room faced the ocean and a delightfully refreshing breeze swept through it. It was nearly 6 o'clock and Robin Dale had just about time to prepare for dinner.

The dining room he found to be directly under his own room. At the table beside Rolfe he found a shy-looking girl of more than passing beauty. Her hair was extremely blonde and she had wide blue eyes which seemed perpetually to have a gleam of entreaty in them.

"My daughter, Stephanie—Mr. Dale." Dale acknowledged the introduction and sat down at the table. There appeared to be no one else in the house except a Mrs. Gray, the housekeeper, who brought the food and then disappeared.

Robin Dale was soon to learn that Stephanie Rolfe was inexorably entangled with what soon became known as the Case of Scrimley's Ghost. He was as little prepared for that disclosure as for the rapid succession of harrowing events that were to make the night a gruesome memory.

After dinner Dale went out onto the veranda. There he heard what turned out to be the opening words in the case. Ed Rolfe spoke them to his daughter. The words, and what followed, Dale had occasion to recall before many hours had passed.

"You'd better get dressed up a bit, Steph—you know Avery's coming over tonight," Rolfe had said.

"Why do I have to marry him, father?" the girl had replied in a beseeching voice. "I don't love Avery."

"Love! Bah! He's rich, isn't he? What more do you want?"

The girl had then gone upstairs. Robin Dale recalled later that he had felt sorry for her, but had soon forgotten the incident because of a matter of more interest to him.

In the fast-falling light he was studying the vista which lay before him. Facing the Boyleston Farm, he was directly opposite the main homestead and within one hundred and fifty yards of it. Its windows already showed as yellow patches of light. To the right and toward the main road, the poultry houses were an indistinct mass. Slightly below the main dwelling and somewhat nearer Dale, was a second squat structure like a bungalow, in which light also showed.

The boom of the breakers increase in resonance as the night became blacker. He could just make out, not a quarter of a mile down the beach, the dark, ominous hulk of the wreck. There was no dividing line between the Rolfe place and that of the Boylestons, but some planks were thrown across the stream which had become a tiny brook again, before emptying into the ocean.

Here was an ideal setting for a ghost! Dale felt a slight shiver run down his spine as he thought of it. Eerie black shadows, silence except for the monotonous booming of the waves and the swish of the water, and dots of yellow light in the Stygian, moonless night. Dale experienced an involuntary thrill as a form oozed out of the blackness and came toward the verandah door.

He was about to speak when the porch light was switched on and Stephanie Rolfe came out of the house to greet a frail, insipid, youngish-looking man.

"You came alone, Avery?" she asked.

"I suppose you thought I'd lug Oliver along, is that it?" There was sharp resentment in the man's voice. She tried to placate him.

"You know I didn't mean it that way. But we could have played bridge or something."

"I didn't come to play brid_e!" he replied resentfully.

Robin Dale was in the shadow and he hoped they would not see him, especially as he had inadvertantly overheard their words. But the man spied him and showed it in his expression and immediate silence. Dale rose to go into the house.

"Avery—this is Mr. Dale; he's going to stop here a few days. Mr. Dale, this is Avery Boyleston."

Boyleston—he was, then, one of the two brothers, sons of Harley Boyleston. There seemed to be an undercurrent of something sinister in the air. Dale sensed it. He laughed at himself, ascribing it to the night, the surroundings, but it was not that easily dispelled.

He sat for a long time at the window, now searching for a good lead to his story, now wondering if the ghost would show itself and then, subconsciously, letting his thoughts dwell without apparent motive on the two below. Once he heard the music of a piano.

Then, without warning, it came! A prolonged, frightened shriek from the girl. Before he realized it Robin Dale was in the sitting room. Stephanie Rolfe was standing near the door, which was partly opened, holding in her quivering hand a slip of paper. Young Boyleston came to her side as Dale reached the room and snatched the paper from her hand.

"It's the ghost!" she sobbed hysterically. Dale answered her.

"I wouldn't get so excited, Miss Rolfe, ghosts don't write notes and slip them into people's homes."

"It came floating in through the door, I saw it! It's from the ghost! It's written in blood!"

Dale felt like bursting out in laughter, but restrained himself. Avery Boyleston had finished reading the note. With a gesture Dale asked if he might see. Stephanie was trembling with fear; Avery was white and his hand shook as he held out the paper. Dale gazed upon a small square of plain white paper. There were letters on it formed by blotches of red color. Despite this the message was plainly eligible.

"Do not marry the son of Boyleston or thou wilt die like him."

There was a scrawled, illegible signature and under it a flag in which was drawn a skull and crossbones!

"As I thought," Dale murmured, "merely red ink!"

"I know who it is!" Boyleston shrieked, and before Dale could say another word the man rushed wildly through the door into the darkness.

Dale was about to follow when, in abject fear, Stephanie grasped his arm and held him. When he finally calmed her it was too late!

For out of the night came the agonized shrieks of a man. They told, with startling clearness, that Avery Boyleston had dashed forth to his own doom!

MARKET TURNS ABOUT AFTER DECLINE

Uncertainty Shown in Movements as Trading Resumes—Range Narrow

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 (AP.)—The stock market appeared to be a little uncertain of itself as trading was resumed today after the three-day shutdown, but after absorption of some profit taking during the morning, the list was turned upward by resumption of professional operations for the advance in selected issues embracing several of the merchandising shares.

Trading showed few signs of acceleration despite inauguration of the high speed ticker system, and the advance appeared to be attracting little following, but a slightly more optimistic tenor in the mercantile and trade reports appearing over the week-end gave the bulls some encouragement. Nevertheless, upward progress was not easy, for active traders were apparently willing to take small profits.

RANGE NARROW

Such shares as U. S. Steel, General Electric, Radio and American Can moved very narrowly. Several shares made substantial gains, however. Sears Roebuck, Associated Dry Goods, Worthington Pump, Auburn Auto, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco B, International Business Machine, North American, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and American Car and Foundry gained 3 to 5. Shares selling up 2 or more included Bethlehem Steel A, M. Byers, J. C. Penny, Atlas Stores, Macy, Underwood Elliott Nationl Cash Register, and Warner Bros., Mack Truck gained about 2 on declaration on the regular dividend, and Independent Oil gained as much in response to the merger with Phillips Petroleum. Gillette and Texas and Pacific were heavy.

Conservative weekly advices by several of the economic services may have tended to restrict public participation in the market, but syndicate managers proceeded to bring forward several of their favorites. In addition to the merchandising issues, office equipment shares and manufacturing specialties were pushed forward.

MODIFY VIEWS

The Harvard Economic Society modified the optimistic stand taken several weeks ago.

The society stated:

"Statistics for August probably mean that autumn business will not be as good as we have expected, but it does not mean that recovery will be much longer delayed."

Trade and business surveys coming to hand over the week-end stressed the signs of seasonal upturn in retail trade. Several of the chain store issues appeared to be enjoying more aggressive more aggressive market sponsorship. Republic Steel Corporation reported a better demand from the automotive trade, but manufacturing activity in the automobile centers held at conservative levels.

Rails and railway equipments maintaine dthe upward trend which appeared late last week. Better buying in the rails appears to be based on more optimistic attitude toward maintenance of dividend rates, influenced by reports showing that several carriers here successfully reducing operating costs. Some of the rail equipments also turned upward, perhaps on short covering.

SPLITUP RUMORED

In connection with a movement in Worthington Pump, rumors were again circulated in brokerage circles that the shares may be split up four-for-one, but these were without confirmation.

Office equipments again turned upward. Strength in National Cash Register was coincident with the issuance of a statement to sales forces by J. H. Barringer, general manager, stating that business had turned upward. International Business Machine was again strong. Improvement in foreign business has recently been reported by the management.

Credit conditions remained virtually stationary, with call money holding at 2 per cent, but bankers look for some slight firmness when the effects of the September 1 settlements are felt toward the end of the week.

Associated System's Output Increases

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Steady and further substantial improvement is indicated in operations of the Associated Gas and Electric System, which for the third consecutive week reports an increase over the same week of 1929. The output for the week ended August 23 amounted to 60,783,739 k. w. h., an increase of 2.9 per cent, which compares with a decline of 2.8 per cent in the same week for the industry as a whole, as reported by the National Electric Light Association. Not only are the demands of the greatly diversified territory served by the Associated System falling for more electric energy an a year ago, in contrast with a recent slight falling off, but h week is recording a gain in put of current over its immediate predecessor.

Reichsbank Report.

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—The Reichsbank statement as of August 30 shows these changes in reichsmarks: Gold and bullion increased 60,000; reserve in foreign currencies increased 13,916,000; bills of exchange and checks increased 383,295,000; silver and other coins decreased 20,344,000; notes of other banks decreased 18,758,000; advances increased 155,011,000; other assets decreased 30,017,000; notes in circulation increased 657,685,000; other maturing obligations decreased 185,151,000; other liabilities decreased 3,01,000; total gold holdings 2,616,570,000. Rate of discount 4 per cent.

Lower Prices Influence Trade Comparisons

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Reports received by the Commerce Department from 523 business establishments in 24 cities show that net sales for the first six months of this year declined 6.7 per cent below the same period last year.

It was emphasized, however, by the Commerce Department that this did not mean the quantity of goods sold had declined in the same proportion.

Dr. Frank M. Surface, assistant director of the department's bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, said after making due allowance for price declines the figures indicate the volume of trade during that period, described as probably the most difficult of the recession, compares very favorably with the exceptionally high volume of the same period last year.

Dr. Surface, who supervised the survey, pointed out that wholesale prices other than farm and food products declined 8 per cent from June, 1929, to June, 1930, and that the cost of living, which includes, in addition to clothing and house furnishing, such items as rent, light, heat, etc., declined approximately 3 per cent in the same period.

523 Stores Report

The 523 establishments reported total net sales of $560,708,855 for the first six months of this year. Types of stores reporting included department, furniture, jewelry, men's clothing, shoes, women's specialty and electrical appliance. They were located in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Galveston, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Louisville, Minneapolis, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Portland, Oregon, Richmond, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seattle and Washington, D. C.

The net sales of jewelry stores decreased 19.5 per cent, which was a greater decline than reported for any of the other types of stores. All the others showed decreases except electrical appliance stores, which reported an increase of one-tenth of one per cent.

Gains in Three Cities

For total net sales 21 of the 24 cities reported decreases, the largest being Detroit, where the decline was 16.5 pr cent. Richmond reported a 4.4 per cent increase, Baltimore 3 and Minneapolis 1.6 per cent.

The following reported decreases: Atlanta, 12.9; Boston, 9; Chicago, 11.1; Cleveland, 8.5; Dallas, 5.7; Denver, 3.4; Galveston, 14.4; Indianapolis, 7.6; Kansas City, 3.5; Los Angeles, 8.6; Louisville, 8.6; New Orleans, 7.99; New York, 4; Philadelphia, 10.6; Pittsburgh, 4.5; Portland, 1.3; St. Louis, 6.8; San Francisco, 7.4; Seattle, 7.8; Washington, 1.8.

Credit sales increased slightly in proportion to cash sales. Regular charge accounts comprised 48.3 per cent of the total sales in 1929 and 48.9 per cent this year. Instalment sales were 10.4 per cent of the total in 1929 and 10.5 per cent this year.

Women's specialty stores did a larger proportion of their business on charge accounts than any of the other types of stores with 64.4 for 1929 and 65.1 this year. Furniture stores led in instalment sales with 58.4 last year and 58.9 this year.

Shipping 'Ice' From Tropics

The practice of shipping ice from the United States to tropical countries is now being reversed.

The American Chemical Society announces that a vessel equipped with a compartment insulated against heat exchange is now en route to New York from Mexico with solid carbon dioxide for refrigerating purposes.

A petroleum company drilling for oil struck a supply of carbon dioxide which rushed to the surface at a pressure of 1,000 pounds per square inch, the society said. It added it was too early to discuss whether this would prove effective for refrigeration.

DAILY TRUE STORY

A Broken Resolution

Greta was tired, beastly tired. Last night she had worked so hard getting the little extras ready for the dinner so tonight she could pitch right in with the things that had to be prepared at the last minute—then everything at the office had seemed to go wrong, and she was beginning to realize that she was being made the goat.

Greta was a good cook—if you're a good cook, don't let anyone know it—especially if you're keeping Spinster's Hall with two other attractive young ladies, or you'll become the cook of the household and most generally the dishwasher.

Maybe she wouldn't have felt so downtrodden if she hadn't especially wanted to be in the little parlor with Dan Travis—but, no, she would be in the kitchen cooking, then she would be too tired and hot, and her hands would be too red to be presentable — she would slip away to her room and another evening with Dan would be beyond her reach.

She had left the office an hour early in order to get things started—Bess had asked Dan Travis and Dick Boyd over for supper. They never pretended to ask a fellow for Greta—their young men came, she cooked, they ate and that was that—but Dan—

He had worked across the hall from Greta's office for two years, and she'd had lunch with him once, again he'd taken her to a matinee, they'd wasted much of their company's time talking together in the office but her shyness had kept her from asking him to the house.

Finally when Bess had come up to her office one day, she had introduced them, and P is immediately fixed up the party with Greta cooking the meal.

Happy Moments

Voices in the hall startled Greta from her thoughts.

"Gangway, I smell steak—tell your cook to hurry—she's got some starving men to feed." That was Dan Travis' voice. Greta took another peak at the biscuits in the oven, then called to Bess that dinner was ready.

While they were eating their soup, Greta was dishing up the dinner, and as she entered carrying the big platter of steak, Dan jumped up from his chair and took the platter from her hands.

"So this is our cook? Oh, boy, am I happy? Ask me, some one."

Greta's face was crimson—to actually have her Dan, as she called him to herself, pay this especial attention to her before the others was enough to make the world stop revolving.

Greta hadn't intended sitting down at the table with them, but Dan insisted and made the others move around to give her room. It was such fun having him be nice to her, and if her heart missed a beat or two it couldn't be censored—its owner was too happy to be normal and see to it that her heart behaved itself.

Guests Depart

But Greta's joy was only short-lived—as soon as the meal was over, the girls prepared themselves for departure.

"Aren't you going with us?" asked Dan when he saw Greta making no move to "doll up."

Bess quickly put in—"Greta's going to be an angel and do the dishes for us. We always take turns and do the dishes when the others have dates."

Greta could have laughed in her face—when had Bess or Kate done dishes, indeed, when had Greta had a date, but she smiled wanly and said:

"It'll take quite a while to wash the dishes."

"It wouldn't if we all pitched in and helped," Dan retorted, but Greta seeing the looks on the faces of Bess and Kate quickly replied.

"Oh, I couldn't go anyway, so I'll just do the dishes while you're gone."

They finally left, but Dan lingered saying.

"Gee, I wish you'd go, I—I," Bess took his arm and pulled him along laughingly calling "Goodby, Sugar" to Greta as they went down the stairs.

The lump in Greta's throat had been getting bigger and bigger, and as the door closed behind them she threw herself on the davenport, the tears streaming down her cheeks.

Dan Returns

Darn the luck! who wanted to be a good cook and lose out on all the good times? Greta kicked her two little feet in temper. Never again would she cook a meal for anybody—not even for Dan Travis—from now on she was going to play lady—let 'em starve. What thanks did she get for her labor—just "Gee, this is sure one swell meal, Greta." "My, how I wish I could cook like you, old dear."

Small compensation that was when you wanted the one and only Dan to take you with him and not Bess—oh, dear, the tears started afresh when—knock, knock—who in the world could that be—it must be Mrs. Dale downstairs—no one outside could get in the front hall door without a key. Greta wiped her eyes and opened the door to behold Dan standing before her.

She was amazed she couldn't say a word—just stare.

Dan stepped in and closed the door asking:

"May I come in?"

Between wiping her eyes and trying to fix her hair, Greta answered:

"Oh, Dan, of course you may come in, but where are the others? How in the world did you get in the hall door downstairs?"

Dan looked at her a minute before answering.

Act Explained

"I ditched the others—don't feel so good."

Greta was all concern immediately.

"Can't I do something for you?" she quickly asked. "I'm so sorry."

"Oh, I couldn't let you do that when you're sick." Greta weakly protested, but Dan took her by the hand and together they went out to the kitchen. When the dishes were done, Greta led the way back into the parlor.

"Dan," she asked with a little twinkle in her eye, "how did you get in downstairs—the outside door is always locked."

"Wouldn't you like to know?" he laughingly teased her. "Little Miss Curiosity."

"Please" begged Greta.

"All right, then, listen to my confession—I with my own lily white hands fixed the lock as we were going out—I had this deed in my mind when we started down the stairs—because." Dan took her hand in his as he pulled her toward him.

"You see, Greta," he continued, "I've been in love with you for a long time, and until tonight I thought I was just another fellow in your life—but the way you looked when we left gave me courage to believe—oh, you do like me, don't you?"

He drew her into his arms as he spoke and kissed her. Greta smiled at him through dim eyes.

"I made a resolution when you folks left tonight, but it looks as though I'd have to break it, Dan."

Dan squeezed her hand as he asked—"What was it, honey?"

"That I'd never cook for anyone again—even if he were starving."

Walsh Questions Ward Chairmen's Authority

A curious and amusing situation is presented by developments of the last few days in Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh's campaign against violators of the Blue Law. Walsh has had the audacity to question the authority of Republican ward chairmen. He warned yesterday that he would not let politicians interfere with enforcement of the law against Sunday amusements.

Baseball players who had arranged for a Sunday game told the police last week that they had the ward chairman's "O. K." Walsh answered that it made no difference—that the game could not be played. He went even further in his defiance of ward chairmen when he caused the arrest of the manager of a miniature golf course owned by Michael DeRosa, chairman of an East End ward, and suspended a police captain and three lieutenants who had neglected to interfere with the operation of the course on Sunday.

This denial by Walsh of the right of ward chairmen to authorize Sunday sports in their bailiwicks is the more remarkable because, the evidence is, their authority to grant permits for lotteries, slot machines, speakeasies and the like is, as a rule, unquestioned. At any rate, during the graft trials in Federal Court the testimony was that when a bootlegger prepared to go into business he first obtained permission from the ward chairman, and, with that obtained, could operate without interference from the police. Furthermore, when a North Side merchant applied at the City-County Building last June for a permit to sell fireworks he was told quite frankly that he should see his ward chairman.

Walsh himself was appointed Republican chairman of the First Ward not long ago. Can it be that now that he holds the job himself he does not have so much respect for the position as formerly, and that he may question the authority of the chairmen in other things besides the Blue Law matter?

Innocent readers may wonder why so much undisputed power is entrusted to the ward chairmen by the municipal authorities. The answer is that it is to their efforts as vote-getters that Mayor Charles H. Kline owes his possession of the spoils of victory to which he attaches so much importance. In some of the wards the chairmen control the vote so completely that they could throw it against Kline as readily as for him.

More, probably, than any other mayor that Pittsburgh has had, Kline owes his power to the ward chairmen. He recognizes the debt and has granted them privileges. Many of them hold municipal jobs which do not require too much of their time. They have abundance of leisure to look after the affairs of their wards and keep in intimate personal touch with the voters. Call at the Mayor's office almost any day when the Mayor is in town and while you cool your heels in the waiting room you will see ward chairmen passing in and out of Kline's inner sanctum.

The power and authority that they manifestly exercise make it all the more remarkable that Supt. Walsh has refused them the right to let their followers play baseball and miniature golf on Sunday.

Inconsistencies in Hemphill Publicity

Indications are that the gubernatorial contest will be a rough-and-tumble fight in which mud may be a weapon. That is the impression gained from statements issued during the last few days by those in charge of the publicity of John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal candidate. These broadsides contain frank appeals to prejudice; an effort is made to influence citizens against Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee, by calling attention to things which may arouse bitterness, yet have not the slightest bearing on his fitness to fill the office of governor acceptably.

Thus there are wholly gratuitous references to the fact that Pinchot is a rich man, probably inserted with the demagogic purpose of making those who are jealous of the rich hate him. We find, for example, in a statement issued last Wednesday by Charles Dorrance, Liberal state chairman, a parenthetical remark that in Pinchot's tour of Adams and Franklin counties he will ride "presumably in his Isotta Franchini motor."

If those in charge of the Hemphill strategy feel that possession of wealth renders a man unworthy, they were hardly consistent yesterday in issuing, with a triumphant air, a 500-word indorsement of Hemphill for governor by Pierre S. du Pont. For du Pont is one of America's richest men.

Furthermore, he is not a citizen of Pennsylvania, but of Delaware.

Schools Open; Everyone Should Be Interested

The re-opening of Pittsburgh's and Allegheny County's public schools today should be of interest not only to the families of the children who return to their classes, but to every taxpayer.

The Department of Public Instruction reports that the people of Allegheny County are paying $109.26 a year for the education of each pupil, and that does not include expenditures for new buildings. All citizens, whether they have children of their own in the public schools or not, owe it to themselves to inquire if the heavy payments they are making for education are being wisely and economically expended.

One way of finding out is by joining a Parent-Teachers' Association. Another way is by keeping in touch with the school directors and letting them know what you think of their policies.

The people of Allegheny County are spending more per pupil than the people of most other counties. We are spending over twice as much, for example, as Clearfield County. The expenditures will not be begrudged if full value is received in return—and in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County it is believed it is. Our schools have a high rating, which makes it easier to bear the heavy school tax burden cheerfully.

A Sinister Dollar Sign -:- -:-

Alarming is the vision seen
Arising on our famed skyline,
And growing larger year by year
Is this new, ugly dollar sign.

As boa constrictors swallow prey
A mighty mouthful in its jaws.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Highest Bid Was Adieu

The President of Peru left his country under rather military circumstances. He was acting as pathfinder for a large but elastic group of former admirers who desired him to autograph his own tombstone.

"Bugs" Baer

The president of any country is a nervous man. He gets blamed for everything that happens even when it's postponed.

So the executive of Peru and its romantic environs decided that if he wanted his personal numerals to be included in the 1930 statistics of the Life Extension Bureau the only thing to do was to print a new government edition of certified footprints.

So he took his dignified foot in his equally austere hand and went away from there. His line of march was that of an ant on a hot rock. He jumped any place that seemed a little cooler than the last stop.

His thought en route ran something like this: "I am the first citizen of this land. I hate to disappoint a posse. But in order to be the first citizen of the land I must remain first.

"You cannot always judge the depth of the well by the length of the pumphandle. All these citizens chasing me are the loyal constituents who voted for me at the last election.

"But I never believe in crossing a bridge until the dentist sues me for the bridgework. That's what I get for putting a low tariff on patched parasols, folding bungalows and rundown heels."

It seems that the President of Peru had promised Peru prosperity during a lucid interval between sessions of the Peruvian Senate.

Then when it forgot to rain for three months, when the Peruvian Stock Exchange fell flat on its face and business ricocheted on a bankrupt tangent, the Peruvian citizens started taking crumbs away from sparrows.

You don't need a nurse when you are no longer a boob-in-arms.

Two is company and three can be dispersed by the police. The Peruvians were great admirers of Brazil, the home of the festive pecan and the almond.

Hearing that Peru was chasing its president across the border, the Brazilian Parliament sent Peru a diplomatic protest: "You are infringing on our racket. We don't care what legitimate business you go into. But when you chase politicians across the border you are exporting nuts."

JOHN JOACHIM BECHER

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most extraordinary substances ever fabricated in the history of chemistry, or shall we say alchemy, was "phlogiston." It held its place for two centuries; and was the means of giving enormous stimulus to chemical research. Although the theory behind this "fire principle" was not correct, it was an important generalization which appealed to the scientific mind. "The sparkle of the gem was there, and men followed it until it led them into a clearer day."

The word "phlogiston" derived from a Greek word meaning "something inflammable." This was defined as "the combustable substance, a principle of fire, but not fire itself." Every substance, according to Becher's theory, was composed of a "calx" or ash, and a certain amount of phlogiston. Because from a metallic calx (oxide) the metal could be recovered by burning with charcoal, the metal was held to have absorbed "phlogiston" in the process from the charcoal which, having mostly disappeared, was regarded as almost pure phlogiston. Conversely, when the metal was calcined (or oxidized) by burning without charcoal, it was held to have lost its phlogiston.

This singular theory actually accounted for the facts; and was long accepted by the world's leading scientists.

The man who fathered this strange and influential theory was John Joachim Becher (1625-1682). His father, a teacher and an able linguist, subsequently became pastor at Speyer, capitol of the Bavarian Palatinate. Although he wrote some books and had a gift for expression, his son wrote in slovenly and barbarous style.

This young boy, although he had little formal education, bought books out of his slender earnings as a teacher, and acquired a strange smattering of theology, medicine, politics and law. Through favoritism on the part of the ruler of Mainz, he was made the ruler's personal physician and appointed professor of medicine at the University of Mainz. Thus, at the outset of his career, he was undeservedly elevated to a dizzy eminence. It completely turned his head, and probably is responsible for making him a colossal charlatan rather than a true scientist.

Like many other alchemists and quacks of that time, he dabbled with all sorts of queer experiments: turning sand into gold, making a perpetual motion clock, inventing a lamp that would burn forever! He wrote one useful book, Physica Subterranea, by which he is best known in science. Bernard Jaffe, the author of Crucible, says, "His only lasting contribution to applied chemistry was his experimental discovery of the gas ethylene, which he prepared by the action of common alcohol on the sulphuric acid."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"You're always saying 'forget yourself,'" he writes, "and telling us that is the way to be happy. But that's nonsense and you know it. No one can forget himself, or stop thinking about himself——"

That's true. There are, I suppose, saintly creatures who can completely eliminate self from their thoughts but I'm certainly not one of them, it's dollars to doughnuts, neither are you. Saints aside, every last one of us think of ourselves from cradle to grave. But—some of us think in one way and some in another—and therein lies the whole secret of happiness or misery.

I step to the door of my cabin. Below me the mountains fall away, gulley and ridge, emerald, indigo, violet, beaten gold, down and down to the shimmering plain. Immediately before my door lie the few acres which I own. I love those acres — they are intensely precious and important to me. The life within their bounderies . . . The turnip seed I sowed yesterday . . . the crop of wheat, just in . . . the three new pigs and the chicken house I'm framing . . . these lie close to my heart as the throb of my own blood. Yet closely as these acres touch me, I cannot look upon them without seeing and feeling the rest of the mountains.

When my earth suffers from drought, I feel the panting agony of that other parched soil. When rain falls on my grain fields I feel those other fields breathing their deep delight. Boundary fences mark the limit of my legal ownership, but no fences can divide that communion which I feel not only for my ranch but for all other earth.

And because of that communion, my life is inexpressably enriched. My life stretches out and out, over and beyond boundary limitations, as the soil stretches. I own not only the earth and experience which is enclosed within my blazes, but all that lies without as well—the wide sunshine, the gypsy wind, the adventure of the seasops and all the joy and despair of those who live by the soil. When we have "a good year" I feel as if I had a share in the success of every ranch in America. When we have "a bad year" I am their companion in misfortune and they are mine. And all this is possible because I realize that all acres, whatever the name on the title deed, are one of clay.

Do not think of yourself as something set apart—as certain special acres with different necessities, different seasons, with more important crops and more poignant ploughing. Realize, rather, that your drought is one with all other droughts—that the forces which move through you are all of a piece with the forces which move through all other human clay—and that your agonies and ecstasies, your dreams and despairs are universal.

Think of yourself? Of course you must think of yourself. But consider how you think of yourself. Think of yourself in one way and your life will be as small and tight and arid as that clod at your feet. Think of yourself in another way—including all otherselves with yourself—and your life will be as wide as the horizon.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

You better not talk back to the cop unless you got a stand-in at City Hall. There was a guy with a couple of black eyes and a swollen jaw come up in police court one morning, and the judge was asking him questions.

"So you ran past the red light, did you?" says the judge.

"Yes, your honor, I did."

"And then you and this cop had some words?"

"Yes, I guess you might say we had some words. I still got mine, though. The cop never gave me a chance to use any of them."

The Perfect Gift

This is the perfect gift, a rose,
Fresh from the ardent sun's caress;
A flower whose every petal glows
With loveliness.
Rose blossoms red, rose blossoms white;
Always a peerless gift is this
Of roses sweet with day's delight
Or moonlight's kiss.
Each rose breathes still of wind and dew
And stars that watched the bud unfold.
Each rose recalls morn's pearly hue
And sunset's gold.
This gift surpasses things of art,
Gems, tapestries or lace;
For with each rose there goes a part
Of God's own grace!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

It is, of course, possible that experimental evidence of such a mode of inheritance could be obtained. In animals or plants under domestication the circumstances can be controlled and simplified, and the possibility of such rival influence as selection, for example, can be removed.

A number of experimental researches have indeed been made, which seem at first sight to give evidence in favor of Lamarckism, but not one of them is in any sense final. Many of them, when repeated by other investigators have failed to give the original results. Many others have given negative results from the outset.

H. G. Wells

We will not trouble the reader with a catalogue of these experiments. Not one but has some possible alternative explanation, some little slip that invalidates its testimony.

So that the reader, in this disputed matter of the inheritance of acquired characters, is free to choose which side he pleases. He can believe in it if it suits his philosophy.

But he has to admit that it is at present quite impossible to see how such a mode of inheritance could work. There is certainly no inescapable argument in its favor. For such sound reasons, a majority of biologists regard the inheritance of acquired characteristics as, to say the least of it, an unnecessary hypothesis. They do not find it explains anything that variations due to mutation, whose occurrence is known and proven, cannot equally well explain.

This is perhaps as well for humanity. It would doubtless be very desirable if the benefits of healthy upbringing, good education and mellow experience could be entailed upon our descendants.

But if they could be entailed, so could the effects of disease and unhealthy homes, the cramping effects of bad education and the fruits of vice and laziness and degenerate living. And it must be confessed that over the greater part of history, the bad has outweighed the good in the conditions under which most human beings have had to live.

Disease, drink, excessive toil, slums, semi-starvation alternating with gross excess—the machinery of our germ-plasm is mercifully such that no taint rests upon us through the inheritance of these degradations.

SECTION 5. ARTIFICIALLY INDUCED MUTATION

It should not be inferred from our refusal to accept the inheritance of acquired characteristics that we think it impossible to modify the germ-plasm from without.

It is entirely possible to do that. Mutations can be produced at will. But the thing is done by going straight for the germ-plasm and tackling that, and not by worrying with the individual body which bears it.

This work on the production of mutations is a product of the last few years. Until very recently no way of deliberately altering the germ-plasm was known. It seemed that mutations were like the transformations of radio-active elements—something truly spontaneous, in the sense of being determined from within, not to be influenced in their rate of occurrence by any treatment which could be devised.

But during the last few years we have at last received proof that this is not the case, and with this proof a new and vitally important field of research is opened up—the investigation of how to control the variation of animals and plants, not by the tedious and indirect methods of selection, but directly and immediately.

The most spectacular success is that of H. J. Muller, of the University of Texas, who chose the fruit-fly for his experiments, because its genetic constitution is already so well worked out.

Briefly, his method was to bombard the fly with X-rays. He employed pretty heavy doses, enough to induce a slight degree of sterility in the flies, and he found that some wave-lenghths were better than others. By this means he succeeded in altering the germ-plasm directly.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—To my motion the fascinating hour along Broadway is between 6:30 and 7:30 in the evening. It is the period when the street throws off its mask and becomes humanized. Sightseers disappear and Broadway is left to its grifters, its denizens.

Bright eyed girls with that strained vivacity eddy into doorways to whisper amorously to hawk-nosed, pimply youths who affect airplane wing shoulders and yawning boredom. Actors with police dogs and chorus girls with Pekes and Pomps drift from side street rooming houses.

Jobless musicians with flowing ties group along curbs awaiting the break. Taxi drivers sink in their seats to peruse the morning tabloids. Gold roped doormen drift across sidewalks to movie ticket cages and chat with the unsmiling blondes inside.

The flux of life congeals. Ladies about town drop artifices and talk to people they know without usual guile. They are conscious of that economic complexity of their lives—the struggle to live and support their men, too. Orange juice jerkers relax and swap nifties.

Policemen enjoy the hour as an interlude in the turmoil. They chaff and skylark. Near Irving Berlin's music publishing house in the upper 40's will be found song writers wrestling with new themes, knitting brows over new gags.

Old men at corner news hutches settle on camp chairs to puff pipes. Touts, gigolos and the rest of the easy money boys, like those white wiggly things emerging from suddenly lifted rocks, fill chop houses for copious cups of black coffee.

Clerks hang to awning ropes and become neighborly from doorways. Ballyhoo men of sucker and notch joints and bediamoned auctioneers drop the professional manner. It is a fleeting hour and the street as suddenly stiffens into spunglass brittleness. Broadway is Broadway again.

Among Tenderloin characters are astonishingly old-young men—straight as Indians and clear-eyed as a morning sun. Many have facial scar mementos of adventure. They are not braggarts but have lived dangerously and speak casually and authoritatively of Capetown and far away places. How they live, no one knows. But they pay their way, linger awhile and vanish.

* * *

Mid-town is especially appealing these mist hung nights. Another theatrical season is on. Song birds rehearse at the Met. Flo Ziegfeld is back with a Hollywood tan, and a spy in our Roaring Forties Department informs us padlocked Dinty Moore's will open soon.

I am likely prejudiced because he is an old friend, but it seems to me Don Clarke is writing "raw realism" with a greater hell's-bells-and-fuzzio than Hemingway, and holds down a publicity job on the side. His "Louis Beretti" was a knockout. His newest, "Millie," has the same red-corpuscled motif and pagan sublimity. It should register him among top writers of his day.

* * *

Even if I did not like his newest tome I could turn cartwheels from the Circle to Herald Square over the dedication which is: "To Gladys: Who thought all that authors were good for was writing—until she met me."

* * *

Its absurd, of course, but I sit here wondering if a man who has never been inside a modern chain tobacco shop could guess what it is.

* * *

Among doo-dads in one I noticed sun-lamps, fishing tackle, golf clubs, tennis rackets, bathing suits, mechanical toys, latest books, safety razors, pocket knives, candy, umbrellas, auto tire covers, clocks and playing cards. To be an old tease I asked a clerk if he carried lip-stick. He reached for some. And I did a skating slide right out.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

One of the reasons why you would like to be a boss is that you think you could act as you please.

Often your disposition is such that you wish you might vent your ill-feeling on someone under you.

As an employe you dare not show your ugly moods.

And if you are mean and revengeful it is a good thing that you are not put in a responsible place with men under you.

If there were nothing to deter you from being a fault-finding, grumbling sort that characteristic would soon become master of you.

Such a disposition grows stronger and more uncontrollable if there is nothing to check it and the owner becomes unpopular with employes, business associates, friends and even members of the family.

If this is your weakness it would act against you in a place of authority.

You can't treat men as chattels and command their fullest cooperation.

That you are arrogant may be the reason why you are not a boss today.

The man who cannot control himself cannot control others.

It is one thing to control words and actions, but it is still better if you can control your voice also in anger and if you want to be head or leader in business or otherwise cultivate self-control always.
